No. 1 P.

Fort William, the 1st January 1878.

IN pursuance of HER MAJESTY'S Gracious Command to notify publicly HER high appreciation of the feelings of personal devotion to HERSELF and loyalty to the British Crown which have been expressed in connection with the Proclamation, at the Imperial Assemblage at Delhi and throughout the Provinces and States of India, of HER MAJESTY'S assumption of the title of EMPRESS OF INDIA, the following correspondence which has passed between the Government of India and the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for India, is published for general information :—

From the Viceroy and Governor General of India in Council, to Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India,—No. 24, dated the 2nd February 1877.

In forwarding to us a copy of the Proclamation notifying the assumption by Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen of the Title of Empress of India, Your Lordship requested that this addition to the Royal Style and Titles might be proclaimed throughout the Queen's Indian dominions in a manner suitable to Her Majesty's Gracious intentions.

2. Acting in accord with these instructions, and fully recognizing the political importance of the event to be proclaimed, we resolved, as we informed you in our letter of the 5th of October last, that no effort should be wanting on our part to carry out the wishes of Her Majesty's Government, in a manner befitting the occasion, and consonant with the expectations of the Chiefs and peoples of India.

3. Our letters noted in the margin will have placed Your Lordship in possession of the general views which we formed last autumn as to

No. 47, dated	5th October	1876.	the nature of the ceremonial, and the acts of grace and above-mentioned letters, an Assemblage of the principal Chiefs and Nobles of India was held by the Viceroy at Delhi on the 1st January 1877, and Her Majesty's new Title proclaimed amid great rejoicings, and most gratifying demonstrations of loyalty. On the same date Durbars for the reading of the Proclamation were held in each District or Division throughout British India; the troops in each cantonment were paraded, and salutes of 101 guns fired from all forts and batteries in the three Presidencies. Displays similar in character took place at the capitals of those Chiefs who were prevented from attending the Delhi ceremonial.

4. Since the submission in October last of our proposals on the subject of the Assemblage, the unexpected visitation of famine in Southern India and other unforeseen difficulties induced us to consider very seriously whether it might not be our duty to withdraw them; but, after full consideration of the political importance of the event, and in view of the advanced state of our preparations, as well as the disappointment which the abandonment of the Assemblage would occasion to Native Chiefs and others who had completed arrangements for attending it, we felt satisfied that such a course would be inexpedient. We carefully reconsidered, however, certain details of our general plan, relinquishing, on account of the expenditure they involved, some proposals which we should otherwise have been glad to carry out, and reducing the scale and cost of others within narrower limits than would under other circumstances have been desirable. We, moreover, limited the number of invitations to the Assemblage, and directed that no Native Chiefs, Noblemen, or others should be encouraged to attend it, in any case likely to involve them in expenses which they were not fully able to afford.

5. Notwithstanding these measures, the number of Chiefs, Nobles, and European visitors attending the Assemblage, largely exceeded our anticipations. Of the Ruling Chiefs, no less than sixty-three were present, including the Nizam of Hyderabad; the Maharaja of Mysore; the Gaekwar of Baroda; the Maharajas of Gwalior and Indore, and the principal Chiefs of Central India; the Maharana of Udaipur, the Maharajas of Jaipur and Jodhpur, and the principal Chiefs of Rajputana; the Maharaja of Jammu and Cashmere and the principal Chiefs of the Punjab; together with Chiefs from Bombay, the North-Western and Central Provinces, Bengal and Sindh. A complete list of the Ruling Chiefs attending, with returns of the area, revenue and population of their States, will be found among the enclosures of this despatch; it will suffice here to mention that the aggregate populations under the direct rule of the Chiefs present at Delhi approach 40 millions, while their united territories exceed the combined areas of England, Italy, and France. The titular Chiefs and Native Gentlemen attending (exclusive of members of the Suites of Ruling Chiefs) were nearly three hundred in number, comprising the flower of the Indian Nobility, and persons of distinction from almost every province of the Empire. Among them were the Prince of Aroet and the Princess of Tanjore from the Madras Presidency; the Maharaja Sir Jai Mangal Singh, and some of the principal landowners and citizens of Bengal; the Maharaja of Balrampur and the principal Talukdars of Oudh; forty representatives of the most distinguished families of the North-Western Provinces; scions of the ex-Royal family of Delhi; descendants of the Saddozai of Cabul, and the Alora Chiefs of Sindh; Sikh Sardars from Amritsar and Lahore; Rajputs from the

- Kangra Hills; the semi-independent Chief of Amb, on the Hazara border; Envoys from Chitral and Yassin, who attended in the train of the Maharaja of Jammu and Cashmere; Arbabs from Peshawur; Patan Chiefs from Kohat and the Derajat; Biluch Tomandars from Dera Ghazi Khan; leading citizens from Bombay; Gond and Maharratta Nobles from the Central Provinces; Rajputs from Ajmere; and Natives of Burma, Central India, Mysore, and Baroda. In addition to the Feudatories and Nobles of the Empire, His Excellency the Governor General of the Portuguese Settlements in India; the Khan of Khelat; a deputation from the Sultan of Muscat; Ambassadors from His Majesty the King of Siam, and the Maharaj Adhiraj of Nepal; the Envoy from the Amir of Kashgar; the Foreign Consular Body; and a large concourse of English and Native officials and visitors,—were present as spectators.

6. The Chiefs and Nobles, with their followers and most of the visitors present, were accommodated in large encampments, arranged, for the most part, in provincial groups on either side of roads converging to a central group of camps on the north side of the ridge, comprising those of the Viceroy, the Governors of Madras and Bombay, the Commander-in-Chief in India, and the Lieutenant-Governors and Chief Commissioners of Provinces. We enclose a map of Delhi and its environs, showing the location of the several encampments, and a directory, published for the convenience of visitors, giving further details on this subject. For the multitude thus brought together, which cannot, with the troops, have fallen far short of one hundred thousand souls, besides horses, elephants and camels—thanks to the complete arrangements of the local authorities—ample supplies were available; and the sanitary and police arrangements were excellent.

7. With these preliminary observations, we proceed briefly to record the events connected with the Proclamation from the date of the Viceroy's arrival at Delhi until the day of his departure.

8. Having completed a tour of two months' duration from Simla to Bombay, visiting in the course of his journey Peshawur, Lahore, Multan, Bhawalpore, Jacobabad, and Kurrachee, the Viceroy arrived at Delhi by special train on the afternoon of Saturday, the 23rd December. On alighting from the train he was received by the President in Council and other high Civil and Military Officials. In accordance, likewise, with an invitation addressed to them, the Ruling Chiefs present in camp assembled at the Railway station to take part in the reception. The Viceroy, after short conversations with the Officers of Government present on the platform, turned to the Native Chiefs, and addressing them collectively, expressed his pleasure at meeting them, and his thanks for their attendance at Delhi. This reception formed one of the most interesting events of the Assemblage. Many of the sixty-three Chiefs present had never previously met each other; some had not even before left their own principalities; they, one and all, evinced the greatest eagerness to welcome the Viceroy; they moved about without ceremony or question of precedence, and were most cordial and friendly in their manner towards each other.

9. After conversing with the Nizam, the Maharajas Sindia and Holkar, the Maharaja of Cashmere, the Maharajas of Mysore, Udaipur, Jaipur, and others, the Viceroy mounted his State elephant, and followed by the whole of the British Officials present, proceeded in State through the principal roads and thoroughfares of Delhi to the Viceregal Camp. Along the line of route, from the Railway station to the Camp, a distance of nearly six miles, were disposed in a continuous line the whole of the available British and Native Troops and Volunteers assembled at Delhi, in number nearly 15,000 men, interspersed at varied distances with the troops, followers, and State elephants of the Native Chiefs. Crowds of Europeans and Natives filled the available spaces along the route, and received the Viceroy with every demonstration of cordiality and respect. For the Princes, Governors, Deputations, Ambassadors, and Envoys from Foreign States, the Foreign Consular Body present at Delhi, the titular Chiefs, Nobles, and high Government officials, not taking part in the procession, suitable accommodation was provided in favorable localities from which to witness the procession.

10. From the 26th until the 29th of December the Viceroy received and returned official visits, which collectively occupied nine hours daily, including visits to and from the Governor General of the Portuguese Settlements in India; the Khan of Khelat; the Foreign Ambassadors and Envoys; and seventy-seven of the principal Native Chiefs, ruling and titular, present at Delhi. His Excellency took advantage of these receptions to present to the Ruling Chiefs the Banners and Gold Medals commemorative of the Assemblage sanctioned by Her Majesty's Government. When presenting the Banners and Medals, the Viceroy addressed each Chief as follows:—

“I present Your Highness with this Banner, on which are blazoned the armorial bearings of your family, as a personal gift from Her Majesty the Queen in commemoration of Her assumption of the Title of Empress of India.

“Her Majesty trusts that it may never be unfurled without reminding you, not only of the close union between the Throne of England and your loyal and princely House, but also of the earnest desire of the Paramount Power to see your dynasty strong, prosperous, and permanent.

“I further decorate you, by command of the Queen and Empress, with this Medal. May it be long worn by yourself, and long kept as an heirloom by your family, in remembrance of the auspicious date it bears.”

11. His Excellency likewise announced to the several Native Chiefs and Princes the special concessions and acts of grace which Her Majesty the Queen or His Excellency the Viceroy had been pleased to bestow upon them. Marked indications of pleasure were evinced by them at these announcements, and expressions of gratification at the assumption of the new title, as also of desire to give some tangible proof of loyalty and devotion to the Throne, were reiterated to the Viceroy.

12. The 29th and 30th of December were also occupied by the Viceroy in conferring Banners and Gold Commemorative Medals on the Governors of Madras and Bombay, the Lieutenant-Governors of Bengal, the North-Western Provinces, and the Punjab, and the Commander-in-Chief in India. Gold Commemorative Medals were also conferred upon the Members of the Executive Council, the Chief Commissioners, the Resident at Hyderabad, and the Agents to the Governor General. His Excellency likewise received the Consular Body, as well as the Native Noblemen and Gentlemen, nearly 300 in number, who had been specially invited to Delhi, and presented Silver Commemorative Medals to them. We append a list showing in further detail the manner in which these Commemorative Medals were distributed.

13. During this interval the Viceroy held large evening receptions for the European and Native visitors in Camp, and a Levée which was numerously attended. He also entertained each evening at separate banquets the Governors of Madras and Bombay, the Commander-in-Chief of India, the Lieutenant-Governors of Bengal, North-Western Provinces and the Punjab, and the Members of the Executive Council. His Excellency was thus enabled before the actual day of the Proclamation to receive and make the personal acquaintance of a large number of the European official and non-official visitors in Camp, as well as of the principal Native Chiefs and Noblemen present at Delhi.

14. The Imperial Assemblage itself was held in pavilions, specially erected for the purpose, on a slightly rising ground overlooking an extensive plain to the north of the City of Delhi. The ceremonial was conducted in general accordance with the anticipatory description of it contained in our letter of the 5th October last. The Governors of Madras and Bombay, the Ruling Chiefs present at Delhi, with their principal attendants, and the various High Officers of Government, were seated in a large semicircle 800 feet in extent facing the Viceregal Throne. The arrangement by which the Chiefs were seated in a semicircle and intermingled with high officials of the British Government,—their seats being unnumbered and grouped according to the political Jurisdictions to which they appertained—gave great satisfaction; and we are glad to be able to inform Your Lordship in Council that by the excellence of these arrangements not a single complaint was received in regard to those questions of precedence which had previously prevented many of the Chiefs from meeting each other, and given rise to constant anxiety and embarrassment on all former occasions of the kind. A large concourse of spectators, including His Excellency the Governor General of the Portuguese Settlements in India, His Highness the Khan of Khelat, the Foreign Envoys and Consular Body, and European and Native noblemen and gentlemen from all parts of India, witnessed the proceedings from pavilions erected to the right and left of the Viceroy's dais. The British troops, European and Native, and the troops, followers, and elephants of the Chiefs and Nobles, were disposed in a vast circle on the plain around.

15. The Viceroy arrived at the place of assemblage a little after noon, and, advancing in a State procession to the central dais, took his seat upon the Throne, amidst the usual formalities. His Excellency wore the collar, badge, and robes of the Grand Master of the Order of the Star of India; and his train was borne by two pages—the one an officer of the British Navy, the other a younger son of the Maharaja of Cashmere. The Queen's Proclamation, transmitted in Your Lordship's letter of the 13th July last, was then read in English by the Chief Herald, and afterwards in Urdu by our Foreign Secretary. At its conclusion, a salute of 101 salvos of artillery was fired, interspersed at intervals with feu-de-joie from the combined lines of British and Native Infantry; massed bands played the National Anthem; and the Royal Standard was unfurled and hoisted in honour of Her Majesty the Queen and Empress. We do not attempt any further description of the ceremonial, than to say that it was exceedingly impressive, and passed off with complete success.

16. After a suitable pause the Viceroy rose and delivered an Address, of which copies are enclosed. It will be seen that the main object of His Excellency's speech was to clearly explain the gracious intentions of Her Majesty in assuming the new Title, to describe to the people of India the foundation, growth, and character of British Supremacy and assert its permanency. But His Excellency also took occasion to convey to the Civil and Military Officers of the Crown Her Majesty's grateful and emphatic recognition of their energy, public virtue, and self-devotion in the service of the Empire; he expressed to the non-official classes the Queen's appreciation of their loyalty, industry, and enterprise; and cordially thanked the Army of India for the heroic achievements by which they had upheld on every occasion, side by side, the honour of the country. The Viceroy then proceeded to express the acknowledgments of the British Government to the Native Chiefs and Princes for their continued loyalty and attachment to the Crown of England, and to assure them that the ceremony in which they were taking a part that day was the result of Her Majesty's anxious wish to confirm and perpetuate the intimacy of the relations now indissolubly uniting the British Crown with India.

17. Addressing the Native subjects of the Empire generally, the Viceroy explained to them that it was on their gradual and enlightened participation in the exercise of the mild and just authority of the government of the Queen and Empress, and not upon conquest or annexation, that Her Majesty relied for the development of Her Indian Empire. Finally, His Excellency thanked the Foreign Representatives for their attendance, and before concluding his address announced to the assembled gathering the gracious message of royal greeting which the Queen and Empress had sent that day by telegraph for communication to those present at the Assemblage.

18. No sooner had the Viceroy finished his address, than the Assemblage spontaneously rose and joined the troops in giving repeated cheers; many of the Native Chiefs essayed at the same time to speak. Amongst others, the following replies are worthy of record:

The Maharaja Sindia was the first to speak. He said:—

"Shah-in-Shah; Padshah,—May God bless you! The Princes of India bless you, and pray that your sovereignty (hukumat*) and power may remain steadfast for ever."

The Begum of Bhopal spoke in a similar sense. Sir Salar Jung likewise rose, on behalf of the Nizam, and spoke as follows:—

"I am desired by the Nizam to request Your Excellency to convey to Her Majesty, on the part of himself and the Chiefs of India, the expression of their hearty congratulations upon Her assumption of the title of Empress of India, and to assure Her that they pray for Her long life and for the enduring prosperity of Her Empire both in India and England."

The Maharajas of Udaipur and Jaipur desired, in the name of the United Chiefs of Rajpootana, that a telegram might be sent to the Queen, offering their dutiful and loyal congratulations to Her Majesty on Her assumption of the Imperial Title. The Maharaja of Cashmere expressed to the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab, who was sitting near him, his great satisfaction at the tenor of the Viceroy's speech, adding that the day would never be forgotten by him or his children; that it would ever be regarded as an auspicious one; and that the shadow of Her Majesty's gracious Empire would for ever be his chief protection.

19. When the Native Chiefs had ceased speaking, the Viceroy dissolved the Assemblage, and left the dais with the same ceremonies as were observed on his arrival.

20. We have thus the satisfaction of being able to state, for the information of Her Majesty's Government, that the proclamation of the Imperial Title at Delhi was, partly from the care with which all the arrangements had been carried out by those entrusted with them, and partly from the enthusiasm with which all classes joined in the celebration of the event, a great and gratifying success. As it was found impracticable to announce at the place of assemblage the various acts of grace which formed part of the day's proceedings, these were published immediately afterwards in a Gazette Extraordinary, copy of which we annex. We have reason to believe that these concessions have given much satisfaction, particularly to the Native Ruling Chiefs. In addition to the above, other minor concessions were granted at or in connection with the Imperial Assemblage to individuals or local bodies; a descriptive list of such concessions will be furnished with a subsequent despatch, but two of them may be here referred to as having been received with particular satisfaction by the Mahomedan community of Delhi,—the re-opening to public worship of the Zinat-ul-Musajid, a mosque near the Palace, long closed on military grounds; and the restoration to that community of the precincts of the Fatehpuri mosque, in the principal street of Delhi, which was confiscated in 1857, and had since been used as a Serai.

21. On the evening of the Proclamation day a State Banquet was given by the Viceroy. The occasion was one of considerable interest, as being the first on which the Governor-General of India, the Governors, the Lieutenant-Governors, the Members of the Executive Council, the various Heads of Administrations, and other High Officers of Government, as well as the Governor-General of the Portuguese Settlements, and various Native Noblemen, had ever been present at table at one time. The Viceroy, when proposing the health of the Queen and Empress, addressed those present in a speech of which we annex a copy.

22. The three days succeeding to the day of the Proclamation were occupied by the Viceroy in receiving and replying to addresses from Municipal Committees and other public bodies; in receiving farewell visits of ceremony from the Native Chiefs, Ambassadors, and Noblemen present in Camp; and in the transaction of important official business. At the farewell visits each Chief received parting gifts from His Excellency; and some of their Suite, as well as the Political Officers accompanying them, were presented with silver commemorative medals.

23. With regard to the official business transacted by us, we may remind Your Lordship that in our despatch of the 5th October last we stated our intention of endeavouring to take advantage of the presence at the Assemblage of the Governors and Heads of Administrations and Native Chiefs to confer with them personally on a large number of important administrative and financial questions. This we were able to effect with great advantage to the general interests of the Empire. The most pressing questions which engaged our attention were those of the famine in Southern India; the various important financial measures connected with the budget for 1877-78; the amalgamation of Oudh with the North-Western Provinces; the arrangements by which, in amicable communication with the Rajputana States, we hope to be able to abolish the Inland Customs line, and ultimately reduce the price of salt through the greater part of India; and the forthcoming negotiations with the Portuguese Government in regard to fiscal and other matters affecting the Settlement of Goa. Other matters of importance were discussed; and in personal conferences with the Governors of Madras and Bombay, we were enabled to settle questions connected with the scarcity which might otherwise have entailed much correspondence and controversy, and to arrange for the deputation of Sir Richard Temple on the special inquiries regarding famine operations separately reported to Your Lordship.

24. A review of Troops on Friday, the 5th of January, concluded the events of the Imperial Assemblage. At noon of that day fourteen thousand of the troops of the three Presidencies, under the Commander-in-Chief in India, passed in review order before the Viceroy in presence of the British and Native visitors at the Camp, the Foreign representatives, and a large concourse of spectators. Nothing could exceed the martial appearance and steady movement of the troops, which elicited universal admiration from those present. We annex a statement of the various corps and regiments present, as well as copy of an address made to them by the Viceroy at the conclusion of the review. Advantage was taken of this opportunity to pass in review the troops and retinues of the Native Ruling Chiefs, and the display was a most interesting and striking one. The proceedings of the Assemblage were formally closed at sunset on the same day, by a salute of 101 guns from the flag-staff tower in the vicinity of the Viceregal Camp; and at 11 P. M. His Excellency left Delhi for Patiala for the purpose of installing the young Maharaja.

25. We have not attempted in this letter to do more than submit for the information of Her Majesty's Government a brief record of facts connected with an Assemblage of which the various scenes will, we feel assured, long live in the memories of those present at it. We earnestly trust that the political importance of the Proclamation of the new title may be increasingly felt as time rolls on, and that the anticipations in connection with it, which we ventured to form in our Despatch of the 5th of October last, will be more than realized, in results fraught with benefit to the interests of the Indian Empire.

26. We desire, in conclusion, to bring to Your Lordship's notice the services of the Officers mentioned in the annexed list, who were charged with the general arrangements of the Assemblage, and to express our warm appreciation of the ability with which they accomplished the important duties entrusted to them. Nothing could exceed the care and solicitude with which these officers, one and all, laboured to bring the proceedings at Delhi to a successful issue. The sanitary, police, commissariat, and other arrangements of the Camp were in every way admirable. We, moreover, received from the Government of the Punjab, which had great responsibilities placed upon it in connection with so large a gathering within the limits of its jurisdiction, the most loyal and able assistance.

27. We propose shortly to submit, for the information of Her Majesty's Government, copies of the various addresses to Her Majesty presented at Delhi, and the congratulatory letters received from Native Chiefs, descriptions of the local durbars held throughout the various provinces of India, and detailed accounts of the expenditure which has been incurred in connection with the Assemblage. We have at present every reason to believe that this expenditure is well within our original estimate of ten lakhs of rupees.

From the Secretary of State for India, to the Viceroy and Governor General of India in Council,—
No. 42, Political, dated London, 29th March 1877.

I have to acknowledge the receipt of Political letter of Your Excellency's Government, No. 24, dated the 2nd February last, reporting the principal events in connection with the Imperial Assemblage held at Delhi on the 1st January 1877, for the purpose of proclaiming the assumption by Her Majesty the Queen of the title of "Empress of India."

2. Her Majesty's Government had previously been informed by telegraph of the general course of the proceedings, but they have perused with interest and satisfaction the detailed report with which they have now been furnished. They desire to convey to Your Excellency personally and to your Colleagues in the Government of India their cordial congratulations on the success of the Assemblage, and they do not doubt that, as anticipated by your Government, the political results, both of the assumption by the Queen of the new title, and of the concessions and acts of grace which have accompanied the notification of that Act of Her Majesty to the Princes and people of India, will be increasingly felt as time goes on, and be beneficial in various ways to the interests of the Empire at large.

3. Her Majesty's Government have much pleasure in recording their entire concurrence in the sentiments expressed by Your Excellency in Council in regard to the value of the services rendered in connection with the Assemblage by the Government of the Punjab and the officers and gentlemen specified in the list accompanying your letter under reply. Upon the Government of the Punjab much responsibility necessarily rested, while any failure in the arrangements at Delhi, however well considered they may have been, would have seriously marred the political success anticipated from the proceedings. That no failure of any kind should have occurred in the arrangements, whether those of a ceremonial character, or those incidental to the gathering together in a limited space of a great and miscellaneous multitude, is a cause for much satisfaction, and is a result highly creditable to the local Government and to the officers immediately concerned.

From the Viceroy and Governor General of India in Council, to the Secretary of State for India,—
No. 142, Political, dated 6th August 1877.

In our letter of the 2nd of February last, we had the honour to report the ceremonies with which the assumption by Her Majesty the Queen of the title of Empress of India had been proclaimed at Delhi. We then promised to submit, for the information of Her Majesty's Government, a further communication descriptive of the local Durbars held throughout India in celebration of the event, as well as copies of the various addresses and congratulatory letters received, then and since, from Native Chiefs and others throughout India. In accordance with this engagement we now enclose the papers connected with these subjects.

2. The list of concessions enclosed in the present despatch refers chiefly to minor acts of grace, the arrangements for which were not completed in time to allow of their publication in the Gazette of India of January 1st, 1877. Many of them consist of rewards granted for important services inadequately recognized in the past; as well as of increases to pensions and jaghirs enjoyed by ancient Native families, whose unquestioned loyalty rendered them deserving of assistance on this special occasion in the maintenance of their former position and dignity. These marks of favour, which Your Lordship will find fully described in the abstract of contents attached to this letter, were deeply appreciated by all concerned.

3. Our Resolution regarding the release of prisoners in the various provinces of India was, as Your Lordship is aware, published in the Gazette issued at Delhi on the day of the Proclamation; but we now beg to enclose a Minute since drawn up by Sir Edward Bayley, containing some interesting details on the subject. Under the careful supervision of our Colleague, this particular act of grace, to which the natives of India attach much importance, was brought to a successful issue. After the most careful enquiry into each case, nearly 16,000 prisoners were released, carrying the feeling of rejoicing, with which we desired the day to be marked, to a vast number of individuals in remote districts, who would probably have never heard of the occasion in any other way. Sir Edward Bayley points out that apprehensions were expressed in some quarters lest any indiscriminate order for the release of persons of bad character should lead to a disturbance of the public peace, or to a large increase of crime. We ourselves never shared these apprehensions, and it is satisfactory to learn from our Colleague's Minute that no such result took place. "So far as can be ascertained," he says, "but a very infinitesimal fraction of the large number set free has again relapsed into crime, and only one or two cases have been brought to notice in which persons so released have been again arrested on criminal charges. This fact is very creditable to the judgment with which the sections for release were made, and the present feeling of the native community may safely be said to be one of almost entire satisfaction and approbation. As regards the release of prisoners confined for petty debts, by payment of their liabilities, the feeling has," he adds, "been everywhere one of great and unanimous satisfaction. In the Central Provinces, at Seonee, a rich money-lender, at whose suit a good many debtors were in jail, as soon as he heard that all of them who owed him under Rs. 100 had their debts paid by Government at once sent releases for all the rest, in order to mark his appreciation of the liberality of Government and his own loyal feeling." We desire to take the opportunity of expressing our high sense of the value of our Colleague's labours in a matter which was one of great delicacy, and yet specially calculated to cause the assumption of the new title to be remembered with satisfaction throughout the Empire.

4. The loyal tone which pervades the enclosed addresses and letters, received from Native Chiefs, public bodies, and private individuals, in all parts of India, will, we feel sure, be appreciated by Her Majesty's Government. The addresses and congratulatory poems, herewith enclosed, are written in divers languages and dialects, and many of them are rich in Oriental imagery; but we venture to think that they contain unique and gratifying evidence of the hearty satisfaction with which all races and creeds in this country have regarded Her Majesty's formal assumption of the imperial title. We have not sent separate answers to the several communications herewith transmitted, being of opinion that a general letter from Your Lordship, which we could publish in the various Gazettes throughout India, will afford the most appropriate means of acknowledgment.

5. From the papers enclosed in this letter, Your Lordship will see that the manner in which the assumption of the new title was celebrated throughout this Empire and its dependencies was very gratifying. In the districts and towns under direct British administration, as well as in the durbars of those Native Chiefs who were unable to attend the Imperial Assemblage, the manifestations of loyalty were marked, and the occasion evidently looked upon by the people at large as one of peculiar importance.

6. At the Presidency Towns of Calcutta, Madras, and Bombay, the Proclamation was read by the chief civil officer of the district and the Presidents in Council respectively, in the presence of thousands of spectators and the troops of the garrisons, and was received by all with marked attention and respect. The local rejoicings in the various districts and towns throughout India were not less gratifying, and were remarkable, both for their spontaneous and cordial character and for the care with which the proceedings were conducted by the local officials. We refrain from entering into the details of those proceedings only from a desire not to unduly lengthen this letter. Throughout the whole of the British districts, notably in Madras, Bengal, and the North-Western Provinces, food and clothing were gratuitously distributed to the poor; whilst many of the wealthy zemindars and municipalities gave liberal grants towards works of public utility, in order to commemorate the assumption of the new title in some permanent form. In British Burmah and other outlying provinces, the same loyalty was evinced; whilst at Aden the ships in harbour, including a steamer of His Highness the Khedive, were dressed in honour of the occasion, and much enthusiasm evinced by the mixed population of that Settlement.

7. The durbars held at the capitals of the Native Chiefs and Princes absent from Delhi were equally characterized by demonstrations of cordial loyalty. In Bengal and Northern India, for instance, the Raja of Hill Tipperah personally superintended the arrangements of the durbar held at his capital, and evinced much pleasure at having such an opportunity of testifying his fidelity to the British Government; the Maharaja of Sikkim, unable to hold a durbar in his own capital, sent all his chief officers to attend the reading of the Proclamation at Darjeeling; at Moorshedabad there were great rejoicings on behalf of the Nawab Nazim of Bengal; at Cuttack the residents subscribed a large sum to be spent in building a Town Hall for public use; the Nawab of Rampore proclaimed a general holiday for three days throughout his territories, and brilliantly illuminated his capital; whilst at Telri, Bustar, and elsewhere, demonstrations of loyalty characterized the proceedings of the day. In the Punjab every anxiety was shown by the States of Puttiala and Kuporthulla to do honor to the occasion; and it is reported that throughout this important province generally, the bearing of the people was exceptionally loyal and cordial. In the numerous and important Hill States of the Himalayas, the Rajas observed the appointed day with the ceremonies usual on the installation of a reigning Chief. In Hyderabad and Berar the demonstrations of good feeling towards the British Government were evinced in a marked manner. In Central India and Rajpootana the evidences of loyal feeling shown at the various courts of those Princes who were unable to attend at Delhi, were likewise very gratifying. The Maharaja Holkar gave a special donation of money towards the famine relief in Southern India, and the Nawab Begum of Bhopal placed in the hands of the Political Agent a like sum to be spent in Her Highness' name in any good work that the British Government might select. In Madras, the Maharaja of Travancore, the Rajas of Cochin and Pudukottai, and many of the rich landed proprietors of that Presidency, held durbars at their principal stations in honor of the event; amongst others, those of Chittur subscribed Rs. 10,000 towards providing the district of North Arcot with a district school to be called after the Empress of India; whilst the day was celebrated with equal honor throughout the Province of Mysore. In Bombay the Nawab of Cambay released all his prisoners (which, it may be said, was a measure generally carried out on the day of the Proclamation throughout the whole of the Native States), presented his troops with a day's pay, and left nothing undone to evince his loyalty. The Thakur of Bhaonagar has intimated his intention of constructing, at a cost of a lakh of rupees, a bridge over the Aji River at Rajkote, to be called the Kaiser-i-Hind Bridge. Similarly, the Rao of Kutch, the Maharajas of Edur and Kolhapore, the Nawab of Junjeera, and the numerous Chiefs of Kattywar, celebrated the event at their capitals with every possible mark of honor. Among the latter the Thakur Sahib of Palitana has presented the town of Palitana with a Dhurumsala and clock-tower at a cost of Rs. 9,000 in honor of the occasion.

8. At Zanzibar, Muscat, Bushire, and elsewhere, the importance of the event was equally appreciated. The Resident in the Persian Gulf reports that the Flag Staff of the British Residency and those of the Ottoman and Netherland Consulates at Bushire were dressed; whilst official visits were paid to him by the representatives of Holland and the Porte. The Sultan of Muscat, although represented at Delhi, honored the occasion by firing at his capital a salute of 101 guns, and by paying a personal visit to the Political Agent.

9. We desire, in conclusion, to enclose, for Your Lordship's information, a report submitted to us by Dr. Ross, in charge of the sanitary arrangements of the Assemblage at Delhi, showing the success which attended the important labours of himself and the medical officers associated with him on that occasion; and we also append extracts from our financial statement shewing the net cost of that Assemblage. And we cannot close this letter without expressing to Your Lordship our high appreciation of the cordial assistance of the heads of the local Governments, and the officers under them, in making the assumption of the Imperial title an event brought home to the masses of India, in a manner which we feel assured will long live in the memories of all classes and creeds throughout the Empire.

From the Secretary of State for India, to the Viceroy and Governor General of India in Council,—
No. 109 (Political), dated London, 31st October 1877.

I HAVE to acknowledge the receipt of Political letter of Your Excellency's Government, No. 142, dated the 6th August last, with its accompaniments, reporting the manner in which the assumption by the Queen of the title of "Empress of India" was celebrated throughout that country on the 1st January last, and forwarding copies of various addresses and congratulatory letters from Native Chiefs and others.

2. I have laid these papers before the Queen, by whom they have been perused with great interest. Her Majesty is very sensible of the efforts made by the Local Officers, in all parts of Her Indian dominions, to celebrate the occasion in a manner suitable to the varying conditions of the population, and of their care to explain to the Chiefs, noblemen, and gentlemen, who attended the several Durbars, the sentiments by which Her Majesty was animated in deciding to assume the new title.

3. The reports which you have transmitted, testifying to the loyalty and good-feeling shown by all classes of Her subjects in India, European and Native, have afforded the Queen extreme satisfaction; while Her Majesty has been gratified to learn that, at the capitals and in the territories of the Native Princes and Chiefs generally, the day was marked by demonstrations not less cordial than those by which it was signalized in Her own dominions.

4. The Kharitas and congratulatory addresses forwarded with your letter, whether proceeding from Native Chiefs, from public bodies, or from private individuals, have been received by the Queen with sincere pleasure; and I have been honored by Her Majesty's commands to instruct Your Excellency to notify publicly Her high appreciation of the feelings of personal devotion to Herself and of loyalty to the British Crown which are expressed in them.

5. It only remains for me, on the part of Her Majesty's Government, to express their satisfaction that the proceedings throughout India generally upon this great occasion should have been attended by the same marked success as that which characterized the ceremonial at Delhi itself. This result must be attributed to the energy and tact shewn by the Heads of the Local Governments, and the Officers under them, in carrying into effect your instructions; and Her Majesty's Government fully concur in the sentiments which Your Excellency in Council has recorded upon this point.

By Order of the Viceroy and Governor General,

C. U. AITCHISON,
Secy. to the Govt. of India.

Star of India.

No. 1. S. I.

Fort William, the 1st January 1878.

His Excellency the Grand Master of the Most Exalted Order of the Star of India is pleased to announce that HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN AND EMPRESS OF INDIA has been graciously pleased to appoint Sir Richard Temple, Bart., K.C.S.I., to be a Knight Grand Commander, and the Honourable Major-General Michael Kavanagh Kennedy, R.E., to be a Knight Commander of the said Order.

By Order of His Excellency the Grand Master,

C. U. AITCHISON,

Secretary to the M. E. Order

of the Star of India.

Order of the Indian Empire.

By the Gracious Command of HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN AND EMPRESS OF INDIA, conveyed through Her Principal Secretary of State for India, the Viceroy and Governor General is pleased to publish the following notifications:—

No. 1. I. E.

Fort William, the 1st January 1878.

HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN AND EMPRESS OF INDIA having been pleased to institute an Order of Distinction to be styled The Order of the Indian Empire, for the purpose of rewarding services to HER MAJESTY and Her Indian Empire, and of commemorating the proclamation of Her style and title of EMPRESS OF INDIA in Her Indian Dominions, the following Warrant for the Institution of the Order is published by HER MAJESTY'S command:—

Warrant for the Institution of the Order to be styled and designated THE ORDER OF THE INDIAN EMPIRE, and of the Regulations or Statutes for the Government of the same.

VICTORIA, by the grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland Queen, Defender of the Faith, Empress of India, to all to whom these presents shall come, greeting. Whereas, We, taking into Our Royal consideration that there does not exist adequate means whereby We can reward the important and useful services rendered to Us and to Our Indian Empire, and being desirous to commemorate the event of the proclamation of Our style and title of Empress of India in Our Indian Dominion, We have resolved to institute a new Order or Decoration. Now know ye that, for the purpose of carrying this Our resolution into effect, We have instituted, constituted, and created, and by these presents for Us, Our heirs and successors do institute, constitute, and create an Order of Distinction, to be known and have for ever hereafter the name, style, and designation of THE ORDER OF THE INDIAN EMPIRE, and We are graciously pleased to make, ordain.

and establish the following rules and ordinances for the government of the same, which shall from henceforth be inviolably observed and kept.

I. It is ordained that this Order shall henceforth be styled in all Acts, Proceedings, and Pleadings, THE ORDER OF THE INDIAN EMPIRE.

II. It is ordained that the Order shall consist of the Sovereign, Grand Master, and of such Members or Companions as We, Our heirs and successors, shall appoint.

III. It is ordained that We, Our heirs and successors, Kings and Queens Regnant of the United Kingdom of Great Britain, Emperors and Empresses of India, are, and for ever shall be, Sovereigns of this Order.

IV. It is ordained that the Viceroy and Governor General of India for the time being shall hold and enjoy the office of Grand Master of this Order, and shall in virtue thereof be First and Principal Companion of the Order, and he shall take especial care that these Statutes be regularly observed; and We do hereby nominate and appoint Our Right trusty and well-beloved Councillor Edward Robert Lytton, Lord Lytton, Viceroy and Governor General of India, to be Grand Master of the said Order, to hold the same during the time he shall continue to hold and enjoy the high and important office of Viceroy and Governor General of India. And We do hereby ordain and declare that, upon every person hereafter ceasing to hold the said office of Viceroy and Governor General of India, he shall nevertheless remain a Companion of the Order, with rank among the Companions according to the date of his or their having been sworn in as Viceroy and Governor General of India: Provided, nevertheless, and We do hereby declare, that this rule shall not be applicable to such persons who may merely act as Governor General of India to meet an emergency.

V. It is ordered that it shall be competent for Us, Our heirs and successors, to confer the decoration of this Order upon such persons who by their services, official or other, to Our Empire in India, have merited Our Royal favour, and upon such distinguished representatives of Eastern Potentates as We, Our heirs and successors, may think fit.

VI. It is ordained and We do hereby declare that the Councillors of Us, Our heirs and successors, for and in Our Indian Empire, shall be and are declared to be ex-officio and for life Companions and Members of this Order.

VII. It is ordained and We do hereby declare that the number of nominations to this Order shall not, in this first instance, exceed fifty in number, and that the nominations in any successive year shall not exceed twenty, exclusive in every case of the ex-officio appointments provided in the last recited article.

VIII. It is ordained that when We, Our heirs and successors, shall be pleased to appoint any person to be a member of this Order, such appointment shall be made by Warrant under Our Sign Manual, sealed with the Seal of the Order, and countersigned by one of Our Principal Secretaries of State.

IX. It is ordained that the decoration of the Order shall be and shall be worn as set forth* in the Statutes of the Order.

X. It is ordained that the Seal of this Order shall be as set forth in the Statutes of the Order and shall have engraved thereon the circumscription "The seal of the Order of the Indian Empire," and that these Rules and Regulations shall be sealed with the same.

NOTE.—The description of the Insignia will be hereafter notified.

XI. It is ordained that the following officers shall be appointed to this Order, that is to say, a Secretary and a Registrar.

XII. It is ordained that the Grand Master shall from time to time appoint a duly qualified person to be Secretary of the Order, who shall reside at the seat of Government of India, and that he shall, under the direction of the Grand Master, attend to the service of the Order, and enter in a Register the names of the members admitted to the Order, and shall wear around his neck pendant from the Riband of the Order the Badge as shall be set forth in the Statutes of the Order.

XIII. It is ordained that the Registrar of this Order shall be appointed by Us, Our heirs and successors, and shall have the custody of the Seal and of the Archives of the Order. He shall attend to the service of the Order, and shall execute such directions as he may receive from Our Principal Secretary of State for India. He shall prepare and engross all warrants and instruments which may require to be sealed with the Seal of the Order, and record all nominations to the Order in the Register of the Order. He shall wear around his neck pendant from the Riband of the Order the Badge as shall be set forth* in the Statutes of the Order.

XIV. It is ordained that the first day of January in every year shall henceforth be taken and deemed to be the anniversary of the institution of this Order.

XV. In order to make such additional provisions as shall effectually preserve pure this most honourable Order, We do hereby declare that if any person on whom the said Order is conferred or granted be guilty of any crime or disgraceful conduct which in Our judgment disqualifies him for the same, his name shall, by an especial Warrant under our Sign Manual, to be countersigned by Our Principal Secretary of State for India, be forthwith erased from the Register of those upon whom the said Order shall have been conferred, and his decoration forfeited and returned to Us, Our heirs and successors. We do further declare that We, Our heirs and successors, shall be the sole judges of the circumstances demanding such expulsion, and that We shall at all times have power to restore to the Order any person who may have been expelled when circumstances render such restoration just and expedient.

XVI. It is ordained that this Order shall rank next to and immediately after Our most distinguished Order of St. Michael and St. George, and that the Companions thereof shall in all places and assemblies whatsoever have place and precedence next to and immediately after the Companions of Our said Order of St. Michael and St. George, and shall rank among themselves according to the dates of their respective nominations, and, further, that the members shall be entitled to suspend a representation of the Riband and Badge of the Order from the bottom of the escocheon containing their Armorial Bearings.

Lastly, We reserve to Ourselves, Our heirs and successors, full power of annulling, altering, abrogating, augmenting, interpreting, or dispensing with these regulations or any part thereof, by a notification under the Sign Manual of the Sovereign of the Order.

Given at Our Court at Osborne under the Seal of the said Order, this thirty-first day of December one thousand eight hundred and seventy-seven, in the forty-first year of Our reign.

By Her Majesty's command.

SALISBURY.

* NOTE.—The description of the Insignia will be hereafter notified.

No. 1 P.

Fort William, the 1st January 1878.

IN pursuance of HER MAJESTY'S Gracious Command to notify publicly HER high appreciation of the feelings of personal devotion to HERSELF and loyalty to the British Crown which have been expressed in connection with the Proclamation, at the Imperial Assemblage at Delhi and throughout the Provinces and States of India, of HER MAJESTY'S assumption of the title of EMPRESS OF INDIA, the following correspondence which has passed between the Government of India and the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for India, is published for general information:—

From the Viceroy and Governor General of India in Council, to Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India,—No. 24, dated the 2nd February 1877.

In forwarding to us a copy of the Proclamation notifying the assumption by Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen of the Title of Empress of India, Your Lordship requested that this addition to the Royal Style and Titles might be proclaimed throughout the Queen's Indian dominions in a manner suitable to Her Majesty's Gracious intentions.

2. Acting in accord with these instructions, and fully recognizing the political importance of the event to be proclaimed, we resolved, as we informed you in our letter of the 5th of October last, that no effort should be wanting on our part to carry out the wishes of Her Majesty's Government, in a manner befitting the occasion, and consonant with the expectations of the Chiefs and peoples of India.

3. Our letters noted in the margin will have placed Your Lordship in possession of the general views which we formed last autumn as to the nature of the ceremonial, and the acts of grace and favour which might appropriately accompany it. We have now the honor to report that, as proposed in our above-mentioned letters, an Assemblage of the principal Chiefs and Nobles of India was held by the Viceroy at Delhi on the 1st January 1877, and Her Majesty's new Title proclaimed amid great rejoicings, and most gratifying demonstrations of loyalty. On the same date Durbars for the reading of the Proclamation were held in each District or Division throughout British India; the troops in each cantonment were paraded, and salutes of 101 guns fired from all forts and batteries in the three Presidencies. Displays similar in character took place at the capitals of those Chiefs who were prevented from attending the Delhi ceremonial.

4. Since the submission in October last of our proposals on the subject of the Assemblage, the unexpected visitation of famine in Southern India and other unforeseen difficulties induced us to consider very seriously whether it might not be our duty to withdraw them; but, after full consideration of the political importance of the event, and in view of the advanced state of our preparations, as well as the disappointment which the abandonment of the Assemblage would occasion to Native Chiefs and others who had completed arrangements for attending it, we felt satisfied that such a course would be inexpedient. We carefully reconsidered, however, certain details of our general plan, relinquishing, on account of the expenditure they involved, some proposals which we should otherwise have been glad to carry out, and reducing the scale and cost of others within narrower limits than would under other circumstances have been desirable. We, moreover, limited the number of invitations to the Assemblage, and directed that no Native Chiefs, Noblemen, or others should be encouraged to attend it, in any case likely to involve them in expenses which they were not fully able to afford.

5. Notwithstanding these measures, the number of Chiefs, Nobles, and European visitors attending the Assemblage, largely exceeded our anticipations. Of the Ruling Chiefs, no less than sixty-three were present, including the Nizam of Hyderabad; the Maharaja of Mysore; the Gaekwar of Baroda; the Maharajas of Gwalior and Indore, and the principal Chiefs of Central India; the Maharana of Udaipur, the Maharajas of Jaipur and Jodhpur, and the principal Chiefs of Rajputana; the Maharaja of Jammu and Cashmere and the principal Chiefs of the Punjab; together with Chiefs from Bombay, the North-Western and Central Provinces, Bengal and Sindh. A complete list of the Ruling Chiefs attending, with returns of the area, revenue and population of their States, will be found among the enclosures of this despatch; it will suffice here to mention that the aggregate populations under the direct rule of the Chiefs present at Delhi approach 40 millions, while their united territories exceed the combined areas of England, Italy, and France. The titular Chiefs and Native Gentlemen attending (exclusive of members of the Suites of Ruling Chiefs) were nearly three hundred in number, comprising the flower of the Indian Nobility, and persons of distinction from almost every province of the Empire. Among them were the Prince of Arcot and the Princess of Tanjore from the Madras Presidency; the Maharaja Sir Jai Mangal Singh, and some of the principal landowners and citizens of Bengal; the Maharaja of Bahrapur and the principal Talukdars of Oudh; forty representatives of the most distinguished families of the North-Western Provinces; scions of the ex-Royal family of Delhi; descendants of the Saddozai of Cabul, and the Alora Chiefs of Sindh; Sikh Sardars from Amritsar and Lahore; Rajputs from the Kangra Hills; the semi-independent Chief of Amb, on the Hazara border; Envoys from Chitral and Yassin, who attended in the train of the Maharaja of Jammu and Cashmere; Arbabs from Peshawur; Patan Chiefs from Kohat and the Derajat; Biluch Tomandars from Dera Ghazi Khan; leading citizens from Bombay; Gond and Maharatta Nobles from the Central Provinces; Rajputs from Ajmere; and Natives of Burma, Central India, Mysore, and Baroda. In addition to the Feudatories and Nobles of the Empire, His Excellency the Governor General of the Portuguese Settlements in India; the Khan of Khelat; a deputation from the Sultan of Muscat; Ambassadors from His Majesty the King of Siam, and the Maharaj Adhiraj of Nepal; the Envoy from the Amir of Kashgar; the Foreign Consular Body; and a large concourse of English and Native officials and visitors,—were present as spectators.

6. The Chiefs and Nobles, with their followers and most of the visitors present, were accommodated in large encampments, arranged, for the most part, in provincial groups on either side of roads converging to a central group of camps on the north side of the ridge, comprising those of the Viceroy, the Governors of Madras and Bombay, the Commander-in-Chief in India, and the Lieutenant-Governors and Chief

Commissioners of Provinces. ' We enclose a map of Delhi and its environs, showing the location of the several encampments, and a directory, published for the convenience of visitors, giving further details on this subject. For the multitude thus brought together, which cannot, with the troops, have fallen far short of one hundred thousand souls, besides horses, elephants and camels—thanks to the complete arrangements of the local authorities—ample supplies were available; and the sanitary and police arrangements were excellent. . .

7. With these preliminary observations, we proceed briefly to record the events connected with the Proclamation from the date of the Viceroy's arrival at Delhi until the day of his departure.

8. Having completed a tour of two months' duration from Simla to Bombay, visiting in the course of his journey Peshawur, Lahore, Multan, Bhawalpore, Jacobabad, and Kurrachee, the Viceroy arrived at Delhi by special train on the afternoon of Saturday, the 23rd December. On alighting from the train he was received by the President in Council and other high Civil and Military Officials. In accordance, likewise, with an invitation addressed to them, the Ruling Chiefs present in camp assembled at the Railway station to take part in the Reception. The Viceroy, after short conversations with the Officers of Government present on the platform, turned to the Native Chiefs, and addressing them collectively, expressed his pleasure at meeting them, and his thanks for their attendance at Delhi. This reception formed one of the most interesting events of the Assemblage. Many of the sixty-three Chiefs present had never previously met each other; some had not even before left their own principalities; they, one and all, evinced the greatest eagerness to welcome the Viceroy; they moved about without ceremony or question of precedence, and were most cordial and friendly in their manner towards each other.

9. After conversing with the Nizam, the Maharajas Sindia and Holkar, the Maharaja of Cashmere, the Maharajas of Mysore, Udaipur, Jaipur, and others, the Viceroy mounted his State elephant, and followed by the whole of the British Officials present, proceeded in State through the principal roads and thoroughfares of Delhi to the Viceregal Camp. Along the line of route, from the Railway station to the Camp, a distance of nearly six miles, were disposed in a continuous line the whole of the available British and Native Troops and Volunteers assembled at Delhi, in number nearly 15,000 men, interspersed at varied distances with the troops, followers, and State elephants of the Native Chiefs. Crowds of Europeans and Natives filled the available spaces along the route, and received the Viceroy with every demonstration of cordiality and respect. For the Princes, Governors, Deputations, Ambassadors, and Envoys from Foreign States, the Foreign Consular Body present at Delhi, the titular Chiefs, Nobles, and high Government officials, not taking part in the procession, suitable accommodation was provided in favorable localities from which to witness the procession.

10. From the 26th until the 29th of December the Viceroy received and returned official visits, which collectively occupied nine hours daily, including visits to and from the Governor General of the Portuguese Settlements in India; the Khan of Khehat; the Foreign Ambassadors and Envoys; and seventy-seven of the principal Native Chiefs, ruling and titular, present at Delhi. His Excellency took advantage of these receptions to present to the Ruling Chiefs the Banners and Gold Medals commemorative of the Assemblage sanctioned by Her Majesty's Government.

When presenting the Banners and Medals, the Viceroy addressed each Chief as follows :—

“ I present Your Highness with this Banner, on which are blazoned the armorial bearings of your family, as a personal gift from Her Majesty the Queen in commemoration of Her assumption of the Title of Empress of India.

“ Her Majesty trusts that it may never be unfurled without reminding you, not only of the close union between the Throne of England and your loyal and princely House, but also of the earnest desire of the Paramount Power to see your dynasty strong, prosperous, and permanent.

“ I further decorate you, by command of the Queen and Empress, with this Medal. May it be long worn by yourself, and long kept as an heirloom by your family, in remembrance of the auspicious date it bears.”

11. His Excellency likewise announced to the several Native Chiefs and Princes the special concessions and acts of grace which Her Majesty the Queen or His Excellency the Viceroy had been pleased to bestow upon them. Marked indications of pleasure were evinced by them at these announcements, and expressions of gratification at the assumption of the new title, as also of desire to give some tangible proof of loyalty and devotion to the Throne, were reiterated to the Viceroy.

12. The 29th and 30th of December were also occupied by the Viceroy in conferring Banners and Gold Commemorative Medals on the Governors of Madras and Bombay, the Lieutenant-Governors of Bengal, the North-Western Provinces, and the Punjab, and the Commander-in-Chief in India. Gold Commemorative Medals were also conferred upon the Members of the Executive Council, the Chief Commissioners, the Resident at Hyderabad, and the Agents to the Governor General. His Excellency likewise received the Consular Body, as well as the Native Noblemen and Gentlemen, nearly 300 in number, who had been specially invited to Delhi, and presented Silver Commemorative Medals to them. We append a list showing in further detail the manner in which these Commemorative Medals were distributed.

13. During this interval the Viceroy held large evening receptions for the European and Native visitors in Camp, and a Levée which was numerously attended. He also entertained each evening at separate banquets the Governors of Madras and Bombay, the Commander-in-Chief of India, the Lieutenant-Governors of Bengal, North-Western Provinces and the Punjab, and the Members of the Executive Council. His Excellency was thus enabled before the actual day of the Proclamation to receive and make the personal acquaintance of a large number of the European official and non-official visitors in Camp, as well as of the principal Native Chiefs and Noblemen present at Delhi.

14. The Imperial Assemblage itself was held in pavilions, specially erected for the purpose, on a slightly rising ground overlooking an extensive plain to the north of the City of Delhi. The ceremonial was conducted in general accordance with the anticipatory description of it contained in our letter of the 5th October last. The Governors of Madras and Bombay, the Ruling Chiefs present at Delhi, with their principal attendants, and the various High Officers of Government, were seated in a large semicircle 800 feet in extent facing the Viceregal Throne. The arrangement by which the Chiefs were seated in a semicircle and intermingled with high officials of the British Government,—their seats being unnumbered and grouped according to the political Jurisdictions to which they appertained—gave great satisfaction; and we are glad to be able to inform Your Lordship in Council that by the excellence of these arrangements not a single complaint was received in regard to those questions of pre-

The Viceroy, when proposing the health of the Queen and Empress, addressed those present in a speech of which we annex a copy.

22. The three days succeeding to the day of the Proclamation were occupied by the Viceroy in receiving and replying to addresses from Municipal Committees and other public bodies; in receiving farewell visits of ceremony from the Native Chiefs, Ambassadors, and Noblemen present in Camp; and in the transaction of important official business. At the farewell visits each Chief received parting gifts from His Excellency; and some of their Suite, as well as the Political Officers accompanying them, were presented with silver commemorative medals.

23. With regard to the official business transacted by us, we may remind Your Lordship that in our despatch of the 5th October last we stated our intention of endeavouring to take advantage of the presence at the Assemblage of the Governors and Heads of Administrations and Native Chiefs to confer with them personally on a large number of important administrative and financial questions. This we were able to effect with great advantage to the general interests of the Empire. The most pressing questions which engaged our attention were those of the famine in Southern India; the various important financial measures connected with the budget for 1877-78; the amalgamation of Oudh with the North-Western Provinces; the arrangements by which, in amicable communication with the Rajputana States, we hope to be able to abolish the Inland Customs line, and ultimately reduce the price of salt through the greater part of India; and the forthcoming negotiations with the Portuguese Government in regard to fiscal and other matters affecting the Settlement of Goa. Other matters of importance were discussed; and in personal conferences with the Governors of Madras and Bombay, we were enabled to settle questions connected with the scarcity which might otherwise have entailed much correspondence and controversy, and to arrange for the deputation of Sir Richard Temple on the special inquiries regarding famine operations separately reported to Your Lordship.

24. A review of Troops on Friday, the 5th of January, concluded the events of the Imperial Assemblage. At noon of that day fourteen thousand of the troops of the three Presidencies, under the Commander-in-Chief in India, passed in review order before the Viceroy in presence of the British and Native visitors at the Camp, the Foreign representatives, and a large concourse of spectators. Nothing could exceed the martial appearance and steady movement of the troops, which elicited universal admiration from those present. We annex a statement of the various corps and regiments present, as well as copy of an address made to them by the Viceroy at the conclusion of the review. Advantage was taken of this opportunity to pass in review the troops and retinues of the Native Ruling Chiefs, and the display was a most interesting and striking one. The proceedings of the Assemblage were formally closed at sunset on the same day, by a salute of 101 guns from the flag-staff tower in the vicinity of the Viceregal Camp; and at 11 P. M. His Excellency left Delhi for Patiala for the purpose of installing the young Maharaja.

25. We have not attempted in this letter to do more than submit for the information of Her Majesty's Government a brief record of facts connected with an Assemblage of which the various scenes will, we feel assured, long live in the memories of those present at it. We earnestly trust that the political importance of the Proclamation of the new title may be increasingly felt as time rolls on, and that the anticipations in connection with it, which we ventured to form in our Despatch of the 5th of October last, will be more than realized, in results fraught with benefit to the interests of the Indian Empire.

26. We desire, in conclusion, to bring to Your Lordship's notice the services of the Officers mentioned in the annexed list, who were charged with the general arrangements of the Assemblage, and to express our warm appreciation of the ability with which they accomplished the important duties entrusted to them. Nothing could exceed the care and solicitude with which these officers, one and all, laboured to bring the proceedings at Delhi to a successful issue. The sanitary, police, commissariat, and other arrangements of the Camp were in every way admirable. We, moreover, received from the Government of the Punjab, which had great responsibilities placed upon it in connection with so large a gathering within the limits of its jurisdiction, the most loyal and able assistance.

27. We propose shortly to submit, for the information of Her Majesty's Government, copies of the various addresses to Her Majesty presented at Delhi, and the congratulatory letters received from Native Chiefs, descriptions of the local durbars held throughout the various provinces of India, and detailed accounts of the expenditure which has been incurred in connection with the Assemblage. We have at present every reason to believe that this expenditure is well within our original estimate of ten lakhs of rupees.

No. 42, Political, dated London, 29th March 1877.

I have to acknowledge the receipt of Political letter of Your Excellency's Government, No. 21, dated the 2nd February last, reporting the principal events in connection with the Imperial Assemblage held at Delhi on the 1st January 1877, for the purpose of proclaiming the assumption by Her Majesty the Queen of the title of "Empress of India."

2. Her Majesty's Government had previously been informed by telegraph of the general course of the proceedings, but they have perused with interest and satisfaction the detailed report with which they have now been furnished. They desire to convey to Your Excellency personally and to your Colleagues in the Government of India their cordial congratulations on the success of the Assemblage, and they do not doubt that, as anticipated by your Government, the political results, both of the assumption by the Queen of the new title, and of the concessions and acts of grace which have accompanied the notification of that Act of Her Majesty to the Princes and people of India, will be increasingly felt as time goes on, and be beneficial in various ways to the interests of the Empire at large.

3. Her Majesty's Government have much pleasure in recording their entire concurrence in the sentiments expressed by Your Excellency in Council in regard to the value of the services rendered in connection with the Assemblage by the Government of the Punjab and the officers and gentlemen specified in the list accompanying your letter under reply. Upon the Government of the Punjab much responsibility necessarily rested, while any failure in the arrangements at Delhi, however well considered they may have been, would have seriously marred the political success anticipated from the proceedings. That no failure of any kind should have occurred in the arrangements, whether those of a ceremonial character, or those incidental to the gathering together in a limited space of a great and miscellaneous multitude, is a cause for much satisfaction, and is a result highly creditable to the local Government and to the officers immediately concerned.

No. 142, Political, dated 6th August 1877.

In our letter of the 2nd of February last, we had the honour to report the ceremonies with which the assumption by Her Majesty the Queen of the title of Empress of India had been proclaimed at Delhi. We then promised to submit, for the information of Her Majesty's Government, a further communication descriptive of the local Durbars held throughout India in celebration of the event, as well as copies of the various addresses and congratulatory letters received, then and since, from Native Chiefs and others throughout India. In accordance with this engagement we now enclose the papers connected with these subjects.

2. The list of concessions enclosed in the present despatch refers chiefly to minor acts of grace, the arrangements for which were not completed in time to allow of their publication in the Gazette of India of January 1st, 1877. Many of them consist of rewards granted for important services inadequately recognized in the past; as well as of increases to pensions and jaghirs enjoyed by ancient Native families, whose unquestioned loyalty rendered them deserving of assistance on this special occasion in the maintenance of their former position and dignity. These marks of favour, which Your Lordship will find fully described in the abstract of contents attached to this letter, were deeply appreciated by all concerned.

3. Our Resolution regarding the release of prisoners in the various provinces of India was, as Your Lordship is aware, published in the Gazette issued at Delhi on the day of the Proclamation; but we now beg to enclose a Minute since drawn up by Sir Edward Bayley, containing some interesting details on the subject. Under the careful supervision of our Colleague, this particular act of grace, to which the natives of India attach much importance, was brought to a successful issue. After the most careful enquiry into each case, nearly 16,000 prisoners were released, carrying the feeling of rejoicing, with which we desired the day to be marked, to a vast number of individuals in remote districts, who would probably have never heard of the occasion in any other way. Sir Edward Bayley points out that apprehensions were expressed in some quarters lest any indiscriminate order for the release of persons of bad character should lead to a disturbance of the public peace, or to a large increase of crime. We ourselves never shared these apprehensions, and it is satisfactory to learn from our Colleague's Minute that no such result took place. "So far as can be ascertained," he says, "but a very infinitesimal fraction of the large number set free has again relapsed into crime, and only one or two cases have been brought to notice in which persons so released have been again arrested on criminal charges. This fact is very creditable to the judgment with which the sections for release were made, and the present feeling of the native community may safely be said to be one of almost entire satisfaction and approbation. As regards the release of prisoners confined for petty debts, by payment of their liabilities, the feeling has," he adds, "been everywhere one of great and unanimous satisfaction. In the Central Provinces, at Seonee, a rich money-lender, at whose suit a good many debtors were in jail, as soon as he heard that all of them who owed him under Rs. 100 had their debts paid by Government at once sent releases for all the rest, in order to mark his appreciation of the liberality of Government and his own loyal feeling." We desire to take the opportunity of expressing our high sense of the value of our Colleague's labours in a matter which was one of great delicacy, and yet specially calculated to cause the assumption of the new title to be remembered with satisfaction throughout the Empire.

4. The loyal tone which pervades the enclosed addresses and letters, received from Native Chiefs, public bodies, and private individuals, in all parts of India, will, we feel sure, be appreciated by Her Majesty's Government. The addresses and congratulatory poems, herewith enclosed, are written in divers languages and dialects, and many of them are rich in Oriental imagery; but we venture to think that they contain unique and gratifying evidence of the hearty satisfaction with which all races and creeds in this country have regarded Her Majesty's formal assumption of the imperial title. We have not sent separate answers to the several communications herewith transmitted, being of opinion that a general letter from Your Lordship, which we could publish in the various Gazettes throughout India, will afford the most appropriate means of acknowledgment.

5. From the papers enclosed in this letter, Your Lordship will see that the manner in which the assumption of the new title was celebrated throughout this Empire and its dependencies was very gratifying. In the districts and towns under direct British administration, as well as in the durbars of those Native Chiefs who were unable to attend the Imperial Assemblage, the manifestations of loyalty were marked, and the occasion evidently looked upon by the people at large as one of peculiar importance.

6. At the Presidency Towns of Calcutta, Madras, and Bombay, the Proclamation was read by the chief civil officer of the district and the Presidents in Council respectively, in the presence of thousands of spectators and the troops of the garrisons, and was received by all with marked attention and respect. The local rejoicings in the various districts and towns throughout India were not less gratifying, and were remarkable, both for their spontaneous and cordial character and for the care with which the proceedings were conducted by the local officials. We refrain from entering into the details of those proceedings only from a desire not to unduly lengthen this letter. Throughout the whole of the British districts, notably in Madras, Bengal, and the North-Western Provinces, food and clothing were gratuitously distributed to the poor; whilst many of the wealthy zemindars and municipalities gave liberal grants towards works of public utility, in order to commemorate the assumption of the new title in some permanent form. In British Burmah and other outlying provinces, the same loyalty was evinced; whilst at Aden the ships in harbour, including a steamer of His Highness the Khediye, were dressed in honour of the occasion, and much enthusiasm evinced by the mixed population of that Settlement.

7. The durbars held at the capitals of the Native Chiefs and Princes absent from Delhi were equally characterized by demonstrations of cordial loyalty. In Bengal and Northern India, for instance, the Raja of Hill Tipperah personally superintended the arrangements of the durbar held at his capital, and evinced much pleasure at having such an opportunity of testifying his fidelity to the British Government; the Maharaja of Sikkim, unable to hold a durbar in his own capital, sent all his chief officers to attend the reading of the Proclamation at Darjeeling; at Moorshedabad there were great rejoicings on behalf of the Nawab Nazim of Bengal; at Cuttack the residents subscribed a large sum to be spent in building a Town Hall for public use; the Nawab of Rampore proclaimed a general holiday for three days throughout his territories, and brilliantly illuminated his capital; whilst at Tehri, Bustar, and elsewhere, demonstrations of loyalty characterized the proceedings of the day. In the Punjab every anxiety was shown by the States of Puttiala and Kuporthulla to do honor to the occasion; and it is reported that throughout this important province generally, the bearing of the people was exceptionally loyal and cordial. In the numerous and important Hill States of the Himalayas, the Rajas observed the appointed day with the ceremonies usual on the installation of a reigning Chief. In Hyderabad and Berar the demonstrations of good feeling towards the British Government were evinced in a marked manner. In Central India and Rajpootana the evidences of loyal feeling shown at the various courts of those Princes who were unable to attend at Delhi, were likewise very gratifying. The Maharaja Holkar gave a special donation of money towards the famine relief in Southern India, and the Nawab Begum of Bhopal placed in the hands of the Political Agent a like sum to be spent in Her Highness' name in any good work that the British Government might select. In Madras, the Maharaja of Travancore, the Rajas of Cochin and Pudukottai, and many of the rich landed proprietors of that Presidency, held durbars at their principal stations in honor of the event; amongst others, those of Chittur subscribed Rs. 10,000 towards providing the district of North Arcot with a district school to be called after the Empress of India; whilst the day was celebrated with equal honor throughout the Province of Mysore. In Bombay the Nawab of Cambay released all his prisoners, (which, it may be said, was a measure generally carried out on the day of the Proclamation throughout the whole of the Native States), presented his troops with a day's pay, and left nothing undone to evince his loyalty. The Thakur of Bhaonagar has intimated his intention of constructing, at a cost of a lakh of rupees, a bridge over the Aji River at Rajkote, to be called the Kaisar-i-Hind Bridge. Similarly, the Rao of Kutch, the Maharajas of Edur and Kolhapore, the Nawab of Junjeera, and the numerous Chiefs of Kattywar, celebrated the event at their capitals with every possible mark of honor. Among the latter the Thakur Saheb of Palitana has presented the town of Palitana with a Dhurumsala and clock-tower at a cost of Rs. 9,000 in honor of the occasion. -

8. At Zanzibar, Muscat, Bushire, and elsewhere, the importance of the event was equally appreciated. The Resident in the Persian Gulf reports that the Flag Staff of the British Residency and those of the Ottoman and Netherland Consulates at Bushire were dressed; whilst official visits were paid to him by the representatives of Holland and the Porte. The Sultan of Muscat, although represented at Delhi, honored the occasion by firing at his capital a salute of 101 guns, and by paying a personal visit to the Political Agent.

9. We desire, in conclusion, to enclose, for Your Lordship's information, a report submitted to us by Dr. Ross, in charge of the sanitary arrangements of the Assemblage at Delhi, showing the success which attended the important labours of himself and the medical officers associated with him on that occasion; and we also append extracts from our financial statement shewing the net cost of that Assemblage. And we cannot close this letter without expressing to Your Lordship our high appreciation of the cordial assistance of the heads of the local Governments, and the officers under them, in making the assumption of the Imperial title an event brought home to the masses of India, in a manner which we feel assured will long live in the memories of all classes and creeds throughout the Empire.

No. 109 (Political), dated London, 31st October 1877.

I HAVE to acknowledge the receipt of Political letter of Your Excellency's Government, No. 142, dated the 6th August last, with its accompaniments, reporting the manner in which the assumption by the Queen of the title of "Empress of India" was celebrated throughout that country on the 1st January last, and forwarding copies of various addresses and congratulatory letters from Native Chiefs and others.

2. I have laid these papers before the Queen, by whom they have been perused with great interest. Her Majesty is very sensible of the efforts made by the Local Officers, in all parts of Her Indian dominions, to celebrate the occasion in a manner suitable to the varying conditions of the population, and of their care to explain to the Chiefs, noblemen, and gentlemen, who attended the several Durbars, the sentiments by which Her Majesty was animated in deciding to assume the new title.

3. The reports which you have transmitted, testifying to the loyalty and good-feeling shown by all classes of Her subjects in India, European and Native, have afforded the Queen extreme satisfaction; while Her Majesty has been gratified to learn that, at the capitals and in the territories of the Native Princes and Chiefs generally, the day was marked by demonstrations not less cordial than those by which it was signalized in Her own dominions.

4. The Kharitas and congratulatory addresses forwarded with your letter, whether proceeding from Native Chiefs, from public bodies, or from private individuals, have been received by the Queen with sincere pleasure; and I have been honored by Her Majesty's commands to instruct Your Excellency to notify publicly Her high appreciation of the feelings of personal devotion to Herself and of loyalty to the British Crown which are expressed in them.

5. It only remains for me, on the part of Her Majesty's Government, to express their satisfaction that the proceedings throughout India generally upon this great occasion should have been attended by the same marked success as that which characterized the ceremonial at Delhi itself. This result must be attributed to the energy and tact shewn by the Heads of the Local Governments, and the Officers under them, in carrying into effect your instructions; and Her Majesty's Government fully concur in the sentiments which Your Excellency in Council has recorded upon this point.

By Order of the Viceroy and Governor General,

C. U. AITCHISON,

Secy. to the Govt. of India.

Star of India.

No. 1. S. I.

Fort William, the 1st January 1878.

His Excellency the Grand Master of the Most Exalted Order of the Star of India is pleased to announce that HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN AND EMPRESS OF INDIA has been graciously pleased to appoint Sir Richard Temple, Bart., K.C.S.I., to be a Knight Grand Commander, and the Honourable Major-General Michael Kavanagh Kennedy, R.E., to be a Knight Commander of the said Order.

By Order of His Excellency the Grand Master,

C. U. AITCHISON,

Secretary to the M. E. Order of the Star of India.

Order of the Indian Empire.

By the Gracious Command of HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN AND EMPRESS OF INDIA, conveyed through Her Principal Secretary of State for India, the Viceroy and Governor General is pleased to publish the following notifications :—

No. 1. I. E.

Fort William, the 1st January 1878.

HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN AND EMPRESS OF INDIA having been pleased to institute an Order of Distinction to be styled The Order of the Indian Empire, for the purpose of rewarding services to HER MAJESTY and Her Indian Empire, and of commemorating the proclamation of Her style and title of EMPRESS OF INDIA in Her Indian Dominions, the following Warrant for the Institution of the Order is published by HER MAJESTY'S command :—

Warrant for the Institution of the Order to be styled and designated THE ORDER OF THE INDIAN EMPIRE, and of the Regulations or Statutes for the Government of the same.

VICTORIA, by the grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland Queen, Defender of the Faith, Empress of India, to all to whom these presents shall come, greeting. Whereas, We, taking into Our Royal consideration that there does not exist adequate means whereby We can reward the important and useful services rendered to Us and to Our Indian Empire, and being desirous to commemorate the event of the proclamation of Our style and title of Empress of India in Our Indian Dominion, We have resolved to institute a new Order or Decoration. Now know ye that, for the purpose of carrying this Our resolution into effect, We have instituted, constituted, and created, and by these presents for Us, Our heirs and successors do institute, constitute, and create an Order of Distinction, to be known and have for ever hereafter the name, style, and designation of THE ORDER OF THE INDIAN EMPIRE, and We are graciously pleased to make, ordain, and establish the following rules and ordinances for the government of the same, which shall from henceforth be inviolably observed and kept.

I. It is ordained that this Order shall henceforth be styled in all Acts, Proceedings, and Pleadings, THE ORDER OF THE INDIAN EMPIRE.

II. It is ordained that the Order shall consist of the Sovereign, Grand Master, and of such Members or Companions as We, Our heirs and successors, shall appoint.

III. It is ordained that We, Our heirs and successors, Kings and Queens Regnant of the United Kingdom of Great Britain, Emperors and Empresses of India, are, and for ever shall be, Sovereigns of this Order.

IV. It is ordained that the Viceroy and Governor General of India for the time being shall hold and enjoy the office of Grand Master of this Order, and shall in virtue thereof be First and Principal Companion of the Order, and he shall take especial care that these Statutes be regularly observed; and We do hereby nominate and appoint Our Right trusty and well-beloved Councillor Edward Robert Lytton, Lord Lytton, Viceroy and Governor General of India, to be Grand Master of the said Order, to hold the same during the time he shall continue to hold and enjoy the high and important office of Viceroy and Governor General of India. And We do hereby ordain and declare that, upon every person hereafter ceasing to hold the said office of Viceroy and Governor General of India, he shall nevertheless remain a Companion of the Order, with rank among the Companions according to the date of his or their having been sworn in as Viceroy and Governor General of India: Provided, nevertheless, and We do hereby declare, that this rule shall not be applicable to such persons who may merely act as Governor General of India to meet an emergency.

V. It is ordered that it shall be competent for Us, Our heirs and successors, to confer the decoration of this Order upon such persons who by their services, official or other, to Our Empire in India, have merited Our Royal favour, and upon such distinguished representatives of Eastern Potentates as We, Our heirs and successors, may think fit.

VI. It is ordained and We do hereby declare that the Councillors of Us, Our heirs and successors, for and in Our Indian Empire, shall be and are declared to be ex-officio and for life Companions and Members of this Order.

VII. It is ordained and We do hereby declare that the number of nominations to this Order shall not, in this first instance, exceed fifty in number, and that the nominations in any successive year shall not exceed twenty, exclusive in every case of the ex-officio appointments provided in the last recited article.

VIII. It is ordained that when We, Our heirs and successors, shall be pleased to appoint any person to be a member of this Order, such appointment shall be made by Warrant under Our Sign Manual, sealed with the Seal of the Order, and countersigned by one of Our Principal Secretaries of State.

IX. It is ordained that the decoration of the Order shall be and shall be worn as set forth* in the Statutes of the Order.

X. It is ordained that the Seal of this Order shall be as set forth in the Statutes of the Order and shall have engraved thereon the circumscription "The seal of the Order of the Indian Empire," and that these Rules and Regulations shall be sealed with the same.

XI. It is ordained that the following officers shall be appointed to this Order, that is to say, a Secretary and a Registrar.

XII. It is ordained that the Grand Master shall from time to time appoint a duly qualified person to be Secretary of the Order, who shall reside at the seat of Government of India, and that he shall, under the direction of the Grand Master, attend to the service of the Order, and enter in a Register the names of the members admitted to the Order, and shall wear around his neck pendant from the Riband of the Order the Badge as shall be set forth in the Statutes of the Order.

XIII. It is ordained that the Registrar of this Order shall be appointed by Us, Our heirs and successors, and shall have the custody of the Seal and of the Archives of the Order. He shall attend to the service of the Order, and shall execute such directions as he may receive from Our Principal Secretary of State for India. He shall prepare and engross all warrants and instruments which may require to be sealed with the Seal of the Order, and record all nominations to the Order in the Register of the Order. He shall wear around his neck pendant from the Riband of the Order the Badge as shall be set forth* in the Statutes of the Order.

* NOTE.—The description of the Insignia will be hereafter notified.

XIV. It is ordained that the first day of January in every year shall henceforth be taken and deemed to be the anniversary of the institution of this Order.

XV. In order to make such additional provisions as shall effectually preserve pure this most honourable Order, We do hereby declare that if any person on whom the said Order is conferred or granted be guilty of any crime or disgraceful conduct which in Our judgment disqualifies him for the same, his name shall, by an especial Warrant under our Sign Manual, to be countersigned by Our Principal Secretary of State for India, be forthwith erased from the Register of those upon whom the said Order shall have been conferred, and his decoration forfeited and returned to Us, Our heirs and successors. We do further declare that We, Our heirs and successors, shall be the sole judges of the circumstances demanding such expulsion, and that We shall at all times have power to restore to the Order any person who may have been expelled when circumstances render such restoration just and expedient.

XVI. It is ordained that this Order shall rank next to and immediately after Our most distinguished Order of St. Michael and St. George, and that the Companions thereof shall in all places and assemblies whatsoever have place and precedence next to and immediately after the Companions of Our said Order of St. Michael and St. George, and shall rank among themselves according to the dates of their respective nominations, and, further, that the members shall be entitled to suspend a representation of the Riband and Badge of the Order from the bottom of the escutcheon containing their Armorial Bearings.

Lastly, We reserve to Ourselves, Our heirs and successors, full power of annulling, altering, abrogating, augmenting, interpreting, or dispensing with these regulations or any part thereof, by a notification under the Sign Manual of the Sovereign of the Order.

Given at Our Court at Osborne under the Seal of the said Order, this thirty-first day of December one thousand eight hundred and seventy-seven, in the forty-first year of Our reign.

By Her Majesty's command.

SALISBURY.

No. 2. I. E.

His Excellency the Grand Master of The Order of the Indian Empire is pleased to appoint C. U. Aitchison, Esq., C.S.I. and LL. D., to be Secretary of The Order of the Indian Empire.

Colonel H. K. Burne, C.B.
Rear-Admiral J. Bythessea, C.B., V.C.
Colonel J. T. Walker, C.B.
Colonel C. C. Johnson, C.B.

The seats of Members of the Order were placed on either side of the Dais, right and left, in alternate order according to rank and seniority in the Order.

His Highness the MAHARAJA OF GWALIOR was, on his arrival at the foot of the Grand Entrance, led by the Under-Secretary in the Foreign Department and an Aide-Camp to the Viceroy, to the room assigned for his use.

On His Excellency the VICEROY entering the Chamber of Investiture attended by his Personal Staff, a Viceregal Salute was fired, and the Guard presented arms, and all persons present rose and remained standing until His EXCELLENCY had taken his seat. Each Member of the Order made his reverence as His EXCELLENCY passed.

The Band played the National Anthem.

At the conclusion of the National Anthem, His EXCELLENCY took his seat and acted the ceremony to proceed.

The Foreign Secretary then reported that the business before the Assembly was the investiture of His Highness the MAHARAJA OF GWALIOR with the dignity of a Knight

Grand Cross of the Order of the Bath, and read aloud the Warrant of the Sovereign empowering His Excellency the VICEROY to perform the ceremony of investiture. The Secretary then delivered to His EXCELLENCY the Sovereign's grant of the dignity of a Knight Grand Cross.

This done, the Secretary and Under-Secretary withdrew to conduct His Highness the MAHARAJA into the VICEROY'S presence.

A procession was next formed (at the apartment in Government House where His Highness the MAHARAJA had in the meantime been in waiting) of—

His Highness the MAHARAJA OF GWALIOR between the two Junior Knights in attendance.

Attendants of His HIGHNESS.

Members of the Second and Third Classes of the Order rose from their seats.

The Guard of Honour presented arms as His HIGHNESS passed into the Marble Hall. Upon arrival of the procession in front of the Dais, His Excellency the VICEROY stated the object of the Assembly. His HIGHNESS the MAHARAJA then replied.

The Foreign Secretary having received from His EXCELLENCY the Sovereign's grant in favour of the MAHARAJA OF GWALIOR, read it aloud.

HIS EXCELLENCY then proceeded to invest His HIGHNESS with the Riband and Badge, by placing the Riband over the right shoulder and passing it obliquely to the left side. HIS EXCELLENCY then presented to the MAHARAJA the Star by placing it on his left breast, and addressed the following admonition :—

“In the name of the Queen and Empress of India, and by Her Majesty's Command, I hereby invest you with the Insignia of the Order of the Bath, of which Most Honorable Order Her Majesty has been graciously pleased to appoint you to be a Knight Grand Cross.”

A salute of 21 guns was then fired. When the admonition had been given, His HIGHNESS made his reverence to His EXCELLENCY, and was conducted by the two Knights Commanders and the Foreign Secretary to his seat, in front of which he remained standing. The Foreign Secretary proclaimed the full title of His HIGHNESS, that is to say :

HIS HIGHNESS MUKHTAR-UL-MULK, AZIM-UL-IKTIDAR, RUFU-USH-SHAN, WALA SHIKOH, MUHTASHAM-I-DAURAN, UMDAT-UL-UMARA, MAHARAJ ADHIRAJ, ALIAH MAHARAJA JIAJI RAO SINDIA, BAHADUR, SHRINATH, MAUSUR-I-ZAMAN, FIDWI-I-HAZRAT MALIKI MUHAZZAMA, RAFI-UD-DARJA-I-INGLISTAN, HISAM-US-SALTANAT MAHARAJA OF GWALIOR, Honorary Member of the Military Division of the First Class or Knights Grand Cross of the Most Honorable Order of the Bath, Knight Grand Commander of the Most Exalted Order of the Star of India, Honorary General in the British Army.

During the proclamation the Guard of Honour presented arms. The proclamation being ended, His EXCELLENCY retired.

After His EXCELLENCY'S departure, His Highness the MAHARAJA was conducted from the Chamber of Investiture to the room assigned for his use by the Foreign Secretary.

By Command of His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General of India, Raja Degambar Mitter, C.S.I.

Major Edward Ridley Colbourne Bradford, C.S.I.
George Welsh Kellner, Esq., C.S.I.

The seats of Members of the Order were placed on either side of the Dais, right and left, in alternate order, according to seniority.

Gentlemen about to be invested or decorated were provided with seats in a convenient position, and vacant seats were kept for them in the appropriate class of the Order.

His Highness the MAHARAJA OF GWALIOR, who was the only Knight Grand Commander present on this occasion, was, when robed, conducted by the Under-Secretary in the Foreign Department to the Council Chamber, where the Knights Commanders and the Companions of the Order were also assembled. A procession was formed of the Members of the Order according to ancient custom, the Junior preceding the Senior Members of the Order. As the procession entered the Marble Hall, a Viceregal Salute was fired. All present rose and remained standing till the GRAND MASTER had taken his seat.

Officer bearing the Banner of the GRAND MASTER.

His Excellency the Grand Master, G.M.S.I.

Pages and Attendants of His Excellency the GRAND MASTER.

On entering the Throne Room, each Member of the Order filed off, right and left, to the seat allotted to him, and made his reverence to the GRAND MASTER as His Excellency passed.

The Band played the National Anthem. At its conclusion, His Excellency the GRAND MASTER ordered the Secretary to call the roll of those summoned to attend the Chapter. Each Member of the Order who was present bowed to the GRAND MASTER as his name was called, and then took his seat.

When the roll-call was over, the Secretary, by command of the GRAND MASTER, declared the Chapter open.

The Secretary then reported that the business before the Chapter was the investiture of His Highness the MAHARAJA OF BHURTPUR and His Highness the MAHARAJA OF BENARES as Knights Grand Commanders; the Hon'ble EDWARD CLIVE BAYLEY, the Hon'ble SIR GEORGE EBENEZER WILSON COUPER, BART., C.B., and the Hon'ble Major General MICHAEL KAVANAGH KENNEDY, R.E., as Knights Commanders; and the decoration of the Hon'ble WHITLEY STOKES, the Hon'ble THEODORE CRACRAFT HOPE, CHARLES THEOPHILUS METCALFE, Esq., and SETH GOVIND DAS of Muttra, with the Badge of the Third Class of the Order, under the Sovereign's Grants.

The Secretary then delivered to His Excellency the GRAND MASTER the Sovereign's Grants of the dignity of Knights Grand Commanders.

The Secretary of the Order and the Under-Secretary in the Foreign Department and the two Junior Knights Commanders then withdrew from the Chapter in order to conduct His Highness the MAHARAJA OF BHURTPOOR into the presence of the GRAND MASTER.

Spears.

Maces.

Under-Secretary, Foreign Department, bearing the Insignia of the Order.

Secretary of the Order.

The two Junior Knights Commanders present.

Officer bearing the furled Banner of His Highness.

His Highness the MAHARAJA OF BHURTPOOR.

Pages and Attendants of His Highness.

The Guard of Honor presented arms as His Highness passed. All Members of the Second and Third Classes of the Order rose and remained standing until the proclamation hereinafter mentioned was made.

His Highness with the two Knights Commanders advanced to within a few paces from the Dais, and the Under-Secretary in the Foreign Department placed the Insignia on the table.

The Secretary having received from the GRAND MASTER and read the Sovereign's Grant in favor of the MAHARAJA OF BHURTPOOR, conducted His Highness to the table, and the Junior Knight Commander, receiving the Ribbon and Badge from the Secretary, decorated the MAHARAJA therewith, and the next Junior Knight, receiving the Star of the Order from the Secretary, attached it in its proper place.

The two Knights Commanders next robed His Highness with the Mantle of the Order.

This done, His Highness was conducted by the Secretary to the front of the Dais and made his reverence to the GRAND MASTER.

Meanwhile the two Junior Knights withdrew to their places and remained standing.

The Under-Secretary in the Foreign Department took from the table the Collar of the Knight Grand Commander, and, with due reverence, delivered it to the GRAND MASTER.

The GRAND MASTER, remaining seated, then invested His Highness with the Collar, and addressed the following admonition:—

"In the name of the Queen and Empress of India, and by Her Majesty's Command, I hereby invest you with the Honorable Insignia of the Star of India, of which Most Exalted Order Her Majesty has been graciously pleased to appoint you to be a Knight Grand Commander."

A salute of 17 guns was then fired.

When the admonition had been given, the newly-invested Knight made his reverence to the GRAND MASTER, and was then conducted by the Secretary to his seat, in front of which he remained standing. The officer bearing His Highness' Banner then unfurled it, the Guard of Honor presented arms, and the Secretary of the Order proclaimed the full titles of His Highness, that is to say:—

His Highness MAHARAJA BRIJANDAR SAWAI JASWANT SINGH BAHADUR, BAHADUR JANG, Knight Grand Commander of the Most Exalted Order of the Star of India.

The proclamation being ended, all resumed their seats.

Similar ceremonies were observed on the investiture of His Highness the MAHARAJA OF BENARES* as Knight Grand Commander, except that the salute was 13 guns.

The investiture of Knights Grand Commanders having been finished, the Under-Secretary in the Foreign Department and the two Junior Knights Commanders conducted the Hon'ble EDWARD CLIVE BAYLEY from his seat to the Dais, where he made his reverence to the GRAND MASTER. Members of the Third Class of the Order present rose from their seats.

The GRAND MASTER then conferred upon the Hon'ble EDWARD CLIVE BAYLEY the Title, Degree, and Honor of a Knight Bachelor of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and he was then conducted by the Secretary to the table.

The two Junior Knights Commanders, by desire of the GRAND MASTER, on receiving the Star of the Order from the Secretary, attached it in the proper place. This done, the Hon'ble EDWARD CLIVE BAYLEY was conducted by the Secretary to the front of the Dais, and made his reverence to the GRAND MASTER.

Meanwhile the two Junior Knights Commanders withdrew to their places and resumed their seats.

The Under-Secretary then, with due reverence, delivered the Ribbon and Badge of the Order to the GRAND MASTER.

The GRAND MASTER next invested the Hon'ble EDWARD CLIVE BAYLEY with the Ribbon and Badge, addressing him as follows:—

“ In the name of the Queen and Empress of India and by Her Majesty's Command, I hereby invest you with the Honorable Insignia of the Star of India, of which Most Exalted Order Her Majesty has been graciously pleased to appoint you to be a Knight Commander.”

The newly-invested Knight then made his reverence to the GRAND MASTER, and was led by the Secretary to the seat appointed for him: those standing resumed their seats.

Similar ceremonies were observed on the investiture of the Hon'ble SIR GEORGE EBENEZER WILSON COUPER, BART., C.B., and the Hon'ble Major General MICHAEL KAVANAGH KENNEDY, R.E., as Knights Commanders.

The investiture of the Knights Commanders having been finished, the Secretary delivered to the GRAND MASTER the Badges of the Third Class of the Order for the decoration of the Companions.

The Under-Secretary in the Foreign Department then conducted the Hon'ble WHITLEY STOKES to the front of the Dais, where he made his reverence to the GRAND MASTER.

The GRAND MASTER then handed the Badge of the Third Class of the Order for the Hon'ble WHITLEY STOKES to the Secretary, who attached it in its proper place. Thereafter the Hon'ble WHITLEY STOKES made his reverence to the GRAND MASTER,

* The titles of the MAHARAJA OF BENARES proclaimed were—

and was conducted by the Under-Secretary in the Foreign Department to the seat appointed for him.

Similar ceremonies were observed in conferring the Badge of the Third Class on the Hon'ble THEODORE CRACRAFT HOPE, CHARLES THEOPHILUS METCALFE, Esq., and SETH GOVIND DAS of Muttra.

The Secretary then represented that there was no further business before the Chapter, and the GRAND MASTER, rising, commanded him to declare the Chapter dissolved.

A procession of Knights Grand Commanders of the Star of India, Knights Commanders of the Star of India, and Companions of the Star of India, was thereupon formed and left the Marble Hall and returned to the Council Room in the reverse order to that in which it entered, under a Viceregal Salute, a Grand March being performed and the Guard of Honor presenting arms.

The Secretary of the Order and the Under-Secretary in the Foreign Department conducted the Knights Grand Commanders to their carriages.

Full dress was worn by all Officers on this occasion, and evening dress by all Gentlemen who were not entitled to wear uniform.

By Command of His Excellency the GRAND MASTER,

The 1st January 1878.

No. 1.—With reference to the G. G. O. noted in the margin, and with the sanction of Her Majesty's Government, the Right Hon'ble the Governor General in Council is pleased to notify that:—

No. 656, dated the 25th June 1874.
 No. 1, dated the 1st January 1875.
 No. 294, dated the 15th March 1875.
 No. 1, dated the 1st January 1876.
 No. 8, dated the 1st January 1877.

I. During the year 1878 ninety (90) Officers of the Staff Corps, and Cavalry and Infantry of the Indian Army, will be permitted to retire from the service, receiving, in addition to the pension to which they may be entitled by length of service under existing regulations, not exceeding the full-pay pension of a Colonel (£456-5-0 per annum), an annuity representing the estimated value of their prospective claim to the Colonel's allowance, or its capitalized value as they may prefer.

II. This offer is restricted to substantive Lieutenant-Colonels who shall have completed 28 years' service, from the date of first commission, on or before the date from which they apply to retire, who may either, 1st, have been appointed to one of the Staff Corps on or before the 12th September 1866, and can claim the Colonel's allowance under the provisions of G. G. O. No. 808 of the 26th September 1866, or 2ndly, may be entitled, under G. G. O. of the 12th September 1862, to the Colonel's allowance after 12 years' service in the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel.

III. The number allowed to retire under these conditions will be distributed as follows:—

For Bengal	... 40
„ Madras	... 30
„ Bombay	... 20

TOTAL ... 90

In the event of the whole of the retirements allotted to a particular Presidency not being taken up in that Presidency, those remaining will be distributed in such manner as may be determined by the Government of India.

IV. Applications to retire will be considered and disposed of successively according to priority of proposed dates of retirement until the number of retirements allotted to the service shall have been accomplished, when retirements under this order will cease for the year. In the event of its becoming necessary to select one from among two or three applicants for retirement on the same day, preference will be given according to seniority from the date of first commission.

V. Officers wishing to retire under the terms of this order must, whether in or out of India, submit their applications to the Office of the Adjutant-General of their respective Presidencies, naming such prospective dates for their retirements, as will admit of the receipt of their applications by the Adjutant-General on or before the date named, such date not to be earlier than the 1st April 1878.

VI. Officers whose applications are accepted, will be gazetted out from the dates named by themselves, but will continue to perform their duties and receive the pay and allowances of their positions until officially informed of their removal from the effective list, either by direct communication, or by publication of the Gazette at the station at which they may be serving.

VII. Officers retiring under this arrangement will forego both the good service pension, if they are in receipt thereof, and all claim to bonus compensation under the terms of the despatch of the 8th of August 1866,* No. 160.

VIII. Applicants to retire must state—

1st.—Their rank and service.

2nd.—Their age (supported by certificate of birth, or in its absence, by a formal declaration).

3rd.—Whether they wish to receive commutation for their prospective allowances in the shape of an annuity, or to capitalize its value. Officers who desire to receive the capitalized value of the annuity must attach to their applications a certificate in the form given in Appendix A. In the case of Officers retiring out of India, the health certificate required will be called for and furnished under instructions from the India Office in London.

4th.—Whether they desire to receive payment, wholly, or in part, in India, or in England.

IX. The table given in Appendix B shows the rates at which the expectation of the Colonel's allowance will be calculated in carrying this order into effect in the case of officers of various ages and service.

X. For the purpose of arriving at the amount payable in each case, whether as an annuity or in a single payment, Officers' ages will be calculated from their birthday next succeeding the date from which they propose to retire, and the number of years they have to serve before becoming entitled to the Colonel's allowance will be calculated from the date of the proposed retirement. When the period to serve contains a fraction of a year, the fraction, if it be six months or under six months, will be excluded altogether; if it exceeds six months it will be reckoned as a complete year.

XI. Payments of the capitalized value of the annuity made in India under this order will be at the rate of 1s. 10½d. for the rupee.

XII. Officers who elect to receive an annuity in preference to the capital sum, will not, after their retirements have appeared in the Gazette, be allowed to capitalize such annuity under the provisions of this order; and it is to be understood that no separate applications of individual officers to retire after the present retirements have been allotted will be entertained on the basis of this order.

XIII. Officers of the half-pay list of the Staff Corps will be permitted, if disposed to retire from the service, to avail themselves of this scheme of retirement, provided they are eligible thereto by the fulfilment, previously to their transfer to the half-pay list, of all the conditions required. The time passed by an officer on the half-pay list of the Staff Corps will not count towards the 12 years in the grade of Lieutenant-Colonel required to qualify for promotion to the Colonel's allowance.

XIV. No application from officers to cancel their retirement, or to change the date of such retirement, will be entertained after it has been announced in the official Gazette of the Presidency to which they belong.

APPENDIX A.

FORM OF MEDICAL CERTIFICATE IN THE CASE OF AN OFFICER IN INDIA APPLYING FOR THE CAPITALIZED VALUE OF THE ANNUITY.

I certify that I have examined Lieutenant-Colonel _____ of the _____ and find him to be in a state of health which affords the prospect of an average duration of life.

DIRECTIONS FOR THE USE OF THE TABLE.

Find in the marginal column to the left of the table the number of years the officer has to serve before becoming entitled to the Colonel's annuity, and then in the same line of the table the officer's age—(in column 2).

EXAMPLE.—Lieutenant-Colonel A applies to retire on the 1st April 1878. He will be 49 years of age on the 4th May 1878. He will be entitled to the Colonel's allowance on the 1st August 1883. For the purpose of making the calculation his age is 40; and the time he serves for the Colonel's allowance being five years and four months; the time he has to serve, for the purpose of the calculation under K of the order, is five years. The annuity offered to him is £364-5-0, and its capitalized value is £4,260.

The 4th January 1878.

PAY AND ALLOWANCES.

No. 16.—PAY CODE—

The following corrections are to be made in the Pay Code for India, Volume I, British troops:—

Article 128.—Insert the following additional clause:—

"A station staff officer who may provide accommodation in his own house for a military telegraph office, is granted an office allowance not exceeding Rs. 20 per mensem."

Article 1595, page 298.—The note opposite hospital sergeant, to read as follows:—

"Entitled to all the privileges, including staff pay after 8. of R.'s No. 275 of 11th October 1877. Mily. Dept. notes dated 13th December 1877. seven years' service in the rank (article 1734, clause XII). of hospital sergeants of regiments."

Article 1140, clause b, page 214.—Insert "Somali (colloquial examination) Rs. 360."

Article 1146, clause c, page 216.—Insert the following:—

"Officers proceeding by river steamer from Thayetmyo to Prome and from Tonghoo to the coast in Burmah, are charged for messing, according to the rates in clause b of this article."

Article 2147a.—Add "Military officers in political employ are allowed, in common with other officers, the privilege of counting as service, leave on medical certificate in or out of India consequent on wounds or illness contracted in the field, necessitating the immediate departure of the officer."

Article 2131.—At the end of this article add the following:—

"NOTE.—Officers of the old Indian cadres of royal artillery and those officers of the 12 new line regiments of cavalry and infantry who are serving under Indian pension rules, are allowed to count all leave or furlough taken by them towards pension on retirement. In the case of these officers, all full pay service, past or future, will count towards pension."

Articles 931, 1032, 2124, 2126, 2133 and 2146.—At the end of these articles add "(see article 2131.)"

Article 370, clause c, page 90.—After the word "transfer" insert "(including transfer on promotion.)"

Insert the following article at page 224:—

"1170 B.—Officers of the military account department, and their families, are granted passages at the public expense, under the following special rules:—

"I. An officer appointed permanently to the post of controller will not be allowed free passage on promotion.

II. An officer moved within the presidency in which he is serving to act as controller, will not be allowed free passage; but if moved from one presidency to another on account of such acting promotion, he will be allowed free passage for himself, and for his family also if the duty extends over six months.

III. An officer below the grade of controller, moved from one appointment to another in the interests of the public service, whether permanently or temporarily, will be allowed free passage for himself, and for his family also if the move is permanent, or on account of duty of a permanent nature extending over six months."

Article 1186.—Add "Families of officers of the military account department are allowed passages under the circumstances defined in article 1170 B."

Insert the following article at page 371:—

"2003 a.—In calculating travelling allowances at mileage rates, fractions of a mile are to be omitted."

An addition to the same effect to be made to the Note to article 1158, page 219.

Insert the following article at page 205:—

"1084 b.—The provisions of articles 1078-1080 and 1082-1084 are generally applicable to a British officer (on British pay) landed under proper authority at any intermediate place while on passage to or from India, who shall receive the following rate of personal allowance for every night he may be obliged to remain on shore:—

For a general officer	... 20 shillings.
„ a field officer	... 15 „
„ other officer	... 10 „

Article 1890.—In the margin of this article enter "G. G. O. No. 977 of 1877."

Article 1043 A, page 197.—Expunge the note commencing "Pending further orders," &c., and enter the following at the end of the article immediately above the heading "Furlough":—

"I. Any officer in civil employ on the 7th December 1877, who is subject to the military furlough rules of 1854 or 1868, shall remain so subject.

II. Any military officer who may enter civil employ after the 7th December 1877, who is not already subject to the military furlough and leave rules of 1875, shall remain subject to the rules applicable to him when he enters civil employ.

NOTE.—An officer referred to in the preceding rules, I and II, cannot elect the military furlough and leave rules of 1875 so long as he continues in civil employ.

III. Any officer who may enter civil employ after the 7th December 1877, who is already subject to the military furlough and leave rules of 1875, shall be subject to the rules in the civil leave code applicable to covenanted civil servants, both as regards furlough and leave taken out of India and in India.

IV. If any officer who is employed in the civil administration has taken furlough in the military department under the said rules of 1875, this furlough shall be treated, in calculating the furlough or special leave admissible to him under the preceding rule, as if it had been furlough taken under the civil leave code. Leave taken under article 1043K shall be treated as if it had been privilege leave taken under the civil leave code, and the claims of the officer under the civil leave code adjusted accordingly.

V. If an officer who has been subject to the rules in the civil leave code under rule III above, is again employed in the military department and so again becomes subject to the military furlough and leave rules of 1875, any furlough or special leave taken by him under the civil leave code will be treated, in calculating the furlough admissible to him under the said military rules, as if it had been furlough taken under the said military rules. Privilege leave taken under the civil leave code rules will be treated as if it had been leave taken under article 1043K. Subsidiary or examination leave taken under the civil leave code will not affect the claims of such an officer under the military furlough and leave rules."

The concluding portion of the foot-note at revised page 316, viz., "Lance ranks in receipt of pay as such," &c., is cancelled.

Insert the following article at page 318:—

"1667b.—Lance sergeants, lance corporals and acting bombardiers, when sent from the service companies, will cease to draw their lance pay from the date of leaving. This rule applies to the royal artillery and royal engineers, where paid lance ranks are allowed at the depôts.

Similarly in the depôt batteries and companies of the royal artillery and royal engineers, where paid acting bombardiers and lance corporals are allowed, the lance pay will cease on their leaving such batteries or companies."

Article 1667a.—In the margin of this article enter "G. O. No. 267 of 1877."

Insert the following article at page 371:—

"2004a.—A non-commissioned officer acting as chief civil armourer, when on tour of inspection, will be granted travelling expenses under the provisions of articles 1634, 1634a, 1995, 1996 and 1997."

In the margin of article 2067.—Enter "G. L. No. 102-3 of 6th November 1877, to Madras and Bombay."

Article 212, last line.—Expunge "Jhelum" and substitute "Biluchistan command."

Insert the following article at page 362:—

"1937a.—The procedure laid down in article 1920, for the payment of prizes for soldier's gardens, will also be applicable to prizes for regimental workshops."

Article 1195.—Enter the following at foot of page 228:—

"NOTE.—As a deputy surgeon general does not, as a rule, require to be mounted for his ordinary inspection, free conveyance for a charger is only admissible when one is required for the service on which the officer is travelling."

Article 245.—Make the following addition to the note at page 61:—

"The salary of a third class station staff officer, viz. Rs. 50 per mensem, is specially allowed to the station staff officer at Deolee."

"Subsidiary leave of absence is intended only for the purpose of enabling an officer to make the necessary arrangements for breaking up or reorganizing his household, and for the journey to or from the airport, as the case may be; and its duration should be limited to what is necessary for these purposes."

Article 1515.—Add the following:—

"A free passage to England or the colonies is not admissible to a widow (and family) who marries a warrant officer after his transfer to the pension list."

Insert the following article at page 331:—

"1735a.—No extra duty pay is granted to a man performing the duties of a non-commissioned officer sent to a convalescent depôt, or on leave in India, except under the provisions of article 1719a."

Article 1662c.—After the word "soldiers" insert " (including non-commissioned officers.)"

The latter clause of the foot-note at page 45 to read—"But when a lancer regiment or the 17th Bengal cavalry or the 1st Bombay light cavalry is provided," &c., &c.

No. 17.—The following corrections are to be made in the Pay Code for India, Volume II, Native Troops:—

Article 417.—In the first line, after the words "by rail" insert "or river steamer when the river journey is in connection with that by rail."

Article 191, clause (c) is cancelled, and the following substituted:— "(c) Same as for Bengal Presidency."

Article 179.—Enter the following:—

"NOTE.—The words 'all native troops' in this article include native artillery, regiments of the line, local and irregular corps and regiments of irregular (silladar) cavalry."

Article 559, page 112.—In foot-note "(5)," after the words "dearness of food" insert "Sweepers with the battery of artillery at Darjeeling also receive Rs. 9."

At page 115, in foot-note c, after the words "Darjeeling depôt" insert—"and battery of artillery at Darjeeling"; after "Rs. 9" add "inclusive of hill batta and compensation for dearness of food."

Article 559, page 117.—In the Bombay column—

opposite {	{	Lascar, tent syrang	}	†	{	"For rates of pay to these classes see below."
		Do. do. 1st tindal
		Do. do. 2nd "
		Lascar, tent { 1st " 2nd " } and expunge the existing rates of pay and batta against the latter grade. At foot of page, enter the following:—

		Batta when marching or in the field and not provided with carriage.
	Pay.
	Ra. A. P.	Ra. A. P.

	Do. under 10 do. 6 0 0

To the rates of pay, in the Bombay column, opposite "Lascar, store, above 10 years' service," and "Ditto under ditto," affix a double dagger (‡), and at foot of page enter—

"† These rates are only allowed to store lascars on the establishment of batteries of royal artillery—Bombay G. G. O. No. 486 of 1863."

Page 118.—In the Bombay column, exchange the rates of pay and batta opposite "Tindal" and substitute—

"For pay and batta, see rates at foot of page 117, which are applicable alike to those of the corps of store and tent lascars."

Insert the following article at foot of page 46:—

"206a.—When troops are on the march, compensation for dearness of provisions will be calculated at the average rates obtained from the daily rates at which the articles comprising the rations are sold; the daily rates being based on the price currents of the places from which the supplies are drawn. During the period troops are located at a camp of exercise, the locally prevailing prices will regulate the rate of compensation."

Article 413, page 81.—At the end of this article insert the following:—

"NOTE.—Free conveyance is not allowed for recruits proceeding for approval and medical examination."

Insert the following article at page 79:—

"400b.—Free passage for one servant is allowed to a native commissioned officer when proceeding, on a passage warrant, by river steamer, if the journey by river is in connection with that by rail."

Article 352, page 69.—Make the following addition to the Note:—

"The troops serving in Beluchistan, although not considered as on foreign service according to the strict letter of the regulations, are allowed free rations, or compensation in lieu, on the Bengal scale from the date of crossing the Bolan Pass."

Enter the foregoing as a Note immediately under the fifth line of article 629, page 130.

Article 70 is cancelled and the following substituted:—

"70. A hospital assistant (civil or military) who, in addition to his own proper work, may be temporarily placed in charge of a regiment, will be granted a monthly extra allowance of Rs. 15; if placed in charge of a wing of a regiment, lock hospital or station staff hospital, Rs. 10; if in charge of a detachment less than a wing, Rs. 5. These allowances will be in addition to the pay and other allowances of rank and appointment."

THE INDIAN LAW REPORTS.

PUBLISHED UNDER AUTHORITY.

The "Indian Law Reports," published under the authority of the Governor General in Council, will appear in monthly parts, published as soon as possible after the first of each month at Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, and Allahabad, and will comprise four series,—one for the Calcutta High Court, a second for the Madras High Court, a third for the Bombay High Court, and a fourth for the Allahabad High Court. The cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from each High Court will be reported in the Series for that High Court. Cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from Provinces in India not subject to any High Court will be reported in the Calcutta Series. The Parts of each Series can be had separately, or all four Parts can be had stitched into one wrapper at the option of subscribers and purchasers. It will be observed from the following statement of the terms of subscription and sale, that a considerable reduction is allowed to persons taking the complete set:

Terms of subscription, payable annually in advance.

THE SECOND SCHEDULE.

A Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to Arms, Ammunition and Military Stores.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to arms, ammunition and military stores; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

I.—Preliminary.

1. This Act may be called "The Indian Arms Act, 1877"; and it extends to the whole of British India.

But nothing herein contained shall apply to—

(a) arms, ammunition or military stores on board any vessel and forming part of the ordinary armament or equipment of such vessel, or

(b) the manufacture, repair, sale, import, export, transport, bearing or possession of arms, ammunition or military stores by order of the Government, or by a public servant or a volunteer enrolled under the Indian Volunteers Act, 1869, in the course of his duty as such public servant or volunteer.

2. This Act shall come into force on such day as the Governor General in Council by notification in the Gazette of India appoints.

3. On and from that day the enactments mentioned in the first schedule hereto annexed shall be repealed to the extent specified in the third column of the said schedule. But all authorities and permissions given, licenses and exemptions granted, orders and appointments made, notifications published, and rules, conditions and forms prescribed under any enactment hereby repealed shall be deemed to be respectively given, granted, made, published and prescribed under this Act.

4. In this Act and the second schedule hereto annexed, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context—

"Cannon" includes also howitzer, mortar, mitrailleuse and other ordnance:

"Arms" includes also cannon and parts of arms, and machinery for manufacturing the same:

"Ammunition" includes also rockets, gun-cotton, fulminating material, gunflints, gunwads, percussion caps, fuses, and parts of projectiles and cartridges, and machinery for manufacturing the same, but does not include lead, sulphur or saltpetre:

"License" means a license granted under this Act, and "licensed" means holding such license:

"Military stores" in any section of this Act means any military stores to which the Governor General in Council may from time to time extend such section, and includes also all lead, sulphur, saltpetre and other material to which the Governor General in Council may from time to time extend such section.

II.—Manufacture, Repair and Sale.

5. No person shall manufacture, repair or sell, or keep, offer or expose for sale, any arms, ammunition or military stores except under a license and in the manner and to the extent permitted by such license.

Unlicensed manufacture, repair and sale prohibited.

Nothing herein contained shall prevent any person from repairing any arms which he lawfully possesses for his own private use, or from selling any arms or ammunition which he so possesses to any person who is not by any enactment for the time being in force prohibited from possessing the same; but every person so selling arms or ammunition shall, without unnecessary delay, give to the officer in charge of the nearest police-station notice of the sale and of the purchaser's name and address.

III.—Import, Export and Transport.

6. No person shall import or export by sea or by land into or out of British India any arms, ammunition or military stores except under a license and in the manner and to the extent permitted by such license.

Unlicensed importation and exportation prohibited.

Nothing in the first clause of this section extends to arms or ammunition imported or exported in reasonable quantities for his own private use by any person lawfully entitled to possess such arms or ammunition; but the Collector of Customs or any other officer empowered by the Local Government in this behalf may at any time detain such arms or ammunition, until he receives the orders of the Local Government thereon.

Explanation.—Arms, ammunition or military stores taken from one part of British India to another by sea or across intervening territory not being part of British India are exported and imported within the meaning of this section.

7. In lieu of the duties imposed by the Indian Tariff Act, 1875, upon the articles imported by sea and mentioned in the second schedule hereto annexed, there shall be levied and collected, in every part of British India, upon the same articles the duties specified in the same schedule.

8. The Governor General in Council may from time to time by notification in the Gazette of India—
(a) prohibit the transport of any description of arms, ammunition or military stores over British India or any part thereof, either altogether or except under a license and to the extent and in the manner permitted by such license, and Power to prohibit transport.

(b) cancel any such notification.

Explanation.—Arms, ammunition or military stores transhipped at a port in British India are transported within the meaning of this section.

Transhipment of arms.

9. Any person found carrying or conveying any arms, ammunition or military stores, whether covered by a license or not, in such manner or under such circumstances as to afford just grounds of suspicion that the same are being carried by him with intent to use them, or that the same may be used, for any unlawful purpose dangerous to the public peace, may be apprehended without warrant by any other person and detained in custody in order that he may be dealt with according to law.

Arrest of persons conveying arms, &c., under suspicious circumstances.

Any person so apprehended by a person not being a Magistrate or Police-officer shall be delivered over as soon as possible to a Police-officer.

Procedure where arrest made by person not a Magistrate or a Police-officer.

All persons apprehended by, or delivered to, a Police-officer under the provisions of this section shall be taken without unnecessary delay before a Magistrate.

IV.—Going armed and possessing Arms, &c.

10. No person shall go armed with any arms except under a license and to the extent and in the manner permitted by such license.

Prohibition of going armed without license.

Any person so going armed without a license or in contravention of its provisions may be punished by any Magistrate or Police-officer.

11. No person shall have in his possession or under his control any arms, ammunition or military stores except under a license and in the manner and to the extent permitted by such license.

Unlicensed possession of arms, &c.

Nothing in this section shall apply during the three months next following the date on which this Act comes into force to the possession by any person of any arms not being cannon or of any ammunition or military stores in any place to which section 32, clause 2 of Act XXXI of 1860 does not apply at such date.

Any person having any such arms, ammunition or military stores in his possession in any such place within the said period of three months may, and any person having any such arms, ammunition or military stores in his possession in any such place at the expiry of the same period, shall, deposit the same with the officer in charge of the nearest police-station.

V.—Licenses.

12. The Governor General in Council may from time to time, by notification in the Gazette of India, make rules to determine the officers by whom, the form in which, and the terms and conditions on and subject to which, any license shall be granted; and may by such rules among other matters—

Power to make rules as to licenses.

(a) fix a fee payable by stamp or otherwise in respect of such license;

(b) fix the period for which such license shall continue in force;

(c) direct that the holder of such license shall give notice to an officer of Government of anything done thereunder, or keep a record or account of anything so done and exhibit such record or account when called upon by an officer of Government to do so;

(d) empower any officer of Government to enter and inspect the business premises of any person holding a license of the description referred to in section 5 or 6 ;

(e) direct that any such person shall exhibit the entire stock of arms, ammunition and military stores in his possession or under his control to any such officer of Government, and

(f) require the person holding any license or acting under any license to produce the same when called upon by an officer of Government to do so.

Cancelling and suspension of license.

13. Any license granted under this Act may be cancelled or suspended—

(a) by the officer by whom the same was granted, or by any authority to which he may be subordinate, when, for reasons to be recorded in writing, such officer or authority deems it necessary for the security of the public peace to cancel or suspend such license ;

(b) by any Judge or Magistrate before whom the holder of such license is convicted of an offence against this Act, or against the rules made under this Act ; or

(c) by the Local Government at its discretion by a notification in the official Gazette cancelling or suspending all licenses of that description throughout the whole or any portion of the territories under its administration.

14. Any person possessing arms, ammunition or military stores, the possession whereof by him has, in consequence of the cancellation of a license under section thirteen become unlawful, shall deposit the same without unnecessary delay with the officer in charge of the nearest police-station.

Arms for which license cancelled to be deposited at police-station.

VI.—Penalties.

For breach of sections 5, 6, 8, 10, 11 and 14. 15. Whoever commits any of the following offences (namely)—

(g) fails to deposit arms, ammunition or military stores, as required by section eleven or section fourteen ;

shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to three years, or with fine, or with both.

16. Whoever does any act mentioned in clause (a), (c), (d) or (f) of section fifteen, in such manner as to indicate an intention that such act may not be known to any public servant as defined in the Indian Penal Code, or any officer or servant of a Railway Company or any public carrier, and whoever, on any search being made under section twenty-one, conceals or attempts to conceal any arms, ammunition or military stores, shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to seven years, or with fine, or with both.

17. Whoever, in violation of a condition subject to which a license has been granted, does or omits to do any act shall, when the doing or omitting to do such act is not punishable under section fifteen or section sixteen, be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or with both.

18. Whoever knowingly purchases any arms, ammunition or military stores from any person not licensed to sell the same ; or sells any arms, ammunition or military stores to any person without previously ascertaining that such person is legally authorized to possess the same, shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or with both.

19. When any person is convicted of an offence punishable under this Act committed by him in respect of any arms, ammunition and military stores, it shall be in the discretion of the Court or Magistrate passing sentence on such person further to declare the whole or any portion of such arms, ammunition or military stores to be confiscated.

20. The Governor General in Council or the Local Government may, in making any rule under this Act, attach to the breach of it, in addition to any other consequences that may ensue from such breach, a punishment, on conviction before a Magistrate, of imprisonment for a term not exceeding one month, or of fine not exceeding two hundred rupees, or of both.

VII.—Miscellaneous.

21. Whenever a Magistrate has reason to believe that any person residing within the local limits of his jurisdiction has in his possession any arms, ammunition or military stores for any unlawful purpose, or that such person cannot be left in the possession of any such arms, ammunition or military stores without danger to the public peace, such Magistrate, having first recorded the grounds of his belief, may cause a search to be made of the house or premises occupied by such person, or in which such Magistrate has reason to believe such arms, ammunition or military stores are or is to be found, and may seize and detain the same, whether covered by a license or not, in safe custody for such time as he thinks necessary.

Power to provide penalty for breach of rule.

Search and seizure by Magistrate.

*The search in such case shall be conducted by, or in the presence of, the Magistrate, or by or in the presence of some European officer, civil or military, to be especially empowered by the Local Government.

22. The Local Government may at any time seize any arms, ammunition or military stores in the possession of any person, notwithstanding that such person is licensed to possess the same, and may detain the same for such time as it thinks necessary for the public safety.

23. The Governor General in Council may from time to time by notification published in the Gazette of India—

(a) exempt any person by name or office or any class of persons, or withdraw any part of British India, from the operation of any prohibition contained in this Act;

(b) cancel any such notification and subject the person or part comprised therein again to the operation of such prohibition.

24. The Governor General in Council may from time to time delegate to any Local Government, absolutely or subject to conditions, all or any of the powers conferred by sections eight, twelve and twenty-three to be exercised by such Government within the territories under its administration by notification in its official Gazette.

25. Where an offence punishable under section 15, clause (f), has been committed within three months from the date on which this Act comes into force in any province, district or place to which section 32, clause 2 of Act XXXI of 1860 applies at such date, or where such an offence has been committed in any part of British India not being such a district, province or place, no proceedings shall be instituted against any person in respect of such offence without the previous sanction of the Magistrate of the district.

26. Where a search is to be made under the Code of Criminal Procedure in the course of any proceedings instituted in respect of an offence punishable under section 15, clause (f), such search shall, notwithstanding anything contained in the said Code, be made in the presence of some officer specially appointed by name or office by the Local Government in this behalf, and not otherwise.

27. No suit or other proceeding shall be commenced or prosecuted against any person for any thing done in pursuance of this Act, without giving him not less than one month's previous notice in writing of the intended proceeding and of the cause thereof, nor after the expiration of three months from the accrual of the cause of action or other proceeding.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE law relating to arms, ammunition and military stores has long been felt to be in an unsatisfactory state. In some particulars it has been found defective, and on many points it presents difficulties of construction which might at any time prove embarrassing to the Government or entail hardship on innocent persons.

2. So far back as the year 1870 a Bill was introduced to remedy this state of things; but, owing in part to press of work and in part to other causes, it was allowed to stand over.

3. The present Bill is in the main a consolidation of the existing law, and a re-enactment of it in a simpler form with such improvements in points of detail as the experience of the working of the Arms Act of 1860 has shown to be desirable. On two points only does it propose to introduce changes of any importance.

4. The first of these points is dealt with in section 7, which, taken with the second schedule, imposes duties on the importation by sea of arms and parts of arms, &c. Those duties, it will be observed, are fixed without reference to the value of the articles on which they are imposed, and they are so fixed and are pitched, at what may seem at first sight to be high rates, expressly with a view to check the importation of a cheap class of arms, the importation of which has of late years largely increased.

5. Such arms cannot, from their inferior make, be intended for sporting purposes, and there is reason to suspect that a considerable proportion of them finds its way into the hands of the criminal classes in the interior of the country or of the hostile tribes on our frontiers. It has been found very difficult to prevent the transit of such arms from the seaports into the interior of the country and towards the frontiers when once they are imported, and it is believed that the simplest method of checking their importation, and the method least calculated to interfere with the legitimate trade in arms of a superior class, is to impose an uniform duty of the nature proposed.

6. The other point on which the Bill goes to introduce a material change in the existing law is that of the possession of arms. At present the mere possession of arms is prohibited only in certain provinces, which, to use the language of Act XXXI of 1860, have been "disarmed." Throughout the rest of the country, though no person can go armed or carry arms except under a special exemption or by virtue of a license, the mere possession of arms other than cannon is not restricted.

7. Now there is good reason to believe that this complete absence of restriction in the districts which have not been disarmed has led to the law prohibiting the transport of arms and the export of arms across the frontiers being extensively evaded. As long as all persons indiscriminately may have arms in their possession to any amount they please in the districts which have not been disarmed, it is practically impossible to prevent such arms being passed on to the disarmed districts, to the predatory classes in Native States, and to the hostile tribes on our frontiers.

The only remedy seems to be to place the possession of arms throughout the whole of British India under control, and this it is proposed to do by section 11 of the Bill, which requires all such possession to be under a license.

8. It will, however, be observed that ample safeguards are provided to prevent this prohibition pressing unfairly against respectable persons desiring to possess arms for legitimate purposes. Section 11 allows a period of three months after the Bill becomes law within which the possession of arms in the districts not hitherto disarmed will not be illegal, and during which any person in such districts can apply for a license; section 25 enacts that in these districts no person shall be prosecuted for possessing arms without the previous sanction of the Magistrate of the District; section 26 imposes special and very stringent conditions on searches for arms; and lastly, under section 23, the Government may exempt any class of persons from the operation of the prohibition altogether.

9. On the whole it may be safely affirmed that, with a system of licenses granted either without charge or on the payment of small fees, and in cases where it is safe so to grant them for reasonably long periods, the Bill will not, as regards the possession of arms, materially affect the position of any persons to whom the right to possess arms can, with a due regard to the public peace and safety, be conceded.

10. It need only be added that section 3 of the Bill maintains in force all exemptions granted under the present law.

CALCUTTA;

The 12th December 1877.

D. FITZPATRICK,
Secy. to the Govt. of India.

[Second Publication.]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor-General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 27th December 1877:—

No. 23 of 1877.

A Bill for the licensing of trades and dealings in the Panjáb, the North-Western Provinces and Oudh.

WHEREAS, in order to provide means for defraying the public expenditure from time to time incurred and to be incurred for the relief and prevention of famine in British India, it is necessary to effect a permanent increase of the revenue available for provincial purposes; and it is therefore expedient that persons carrying on trades and dealings in the territories and provinces respectively administered by the Lieutenant-Governor of the Panjáb, the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces and the Chief Commissioner of Oudh, should take out licenses and pay for the same; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title.

1. This Act may be called "The Northern India License Act, 1878."

Local extent.

It extends to the territories under the administration of the Lieutenant-Governor of the Panjáb, the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces and the Chief Commissioner of Oudh, respectively; but nothing herein contained applies to persons earning their livelihood solely by agriculture.

Commencement.

This Act shall come into force in any of the said territories on such date as the Governor General in Council by notification in the Gazette of India directs in that behalf.

Repeal of Act VIII of 1877.

2. When this Act comes into force in the territories under the administration of the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces, Act No. VIII of 1877 (for the licensing of certain trades and dealings in the North-Western Provinces) shall be repealed.

"Collector" defined.

3. In this Act "Collector" means the chief officer in charge of the revenue-administration of a district.

4. Every person who, on or after the first day of April 1878, falls, in any of the said territories, under any of the heads specified in the schedule hereto annexed, and carries on (whether on behalf of himself or any other person) his trade or dealing, shall take out a license under this Act, and shall pay for the same the annual fee mentioned in such schedule as payable by persons of the class and grade to which he belongs.

5. Every license under this Act shall be granted by the Collector of the District in which the person requiring such license carries on his trade or dealing: provided that, if such person carries on such trade or dealing in more than one district, the license shall be granted by the Collector of the district in which his principal place of business is situate.

Every such license shall be signed by the Collector granting it, or by such officer as he may appoint in this behalf.

Particulars to be specified in the license.

6. Every such license shall specify—
- (a) the date of the grant thereof;
 - (b) the name, father's name, caste and trade or dealing of the licensee;
 - (c) the class and grade to which he belongs;
 - (d) the fee paid for the license;
 - (e) the place or places where the licensee intends to carry on his trade or dealing for the ensuing year; and
 - (f) the term for which the license shall remain in force, and shall be received in evidence as prima facie proof of all matters contained therein.

7. Every such license shall have effect and continue in force from the day of the date thereof till the first day of January next after the date of the grant thereof.

8. Every person to whom any such license has been granted, and who desires to continue to carry on his trade or dealing after the expiration of such license, shall take out a fresh license for that purpose for the following year, to expire on the day appointed in the last preceding section, and shall renew the same so long as he desires to continue to carry on such trade or dealing.

List of Licensees.

9. As soon as may be after the first day of April 1878 and the first day of January in every subsequent year, the Collector shall prepare a list of the persons to be licensed under this Act in his district. Such list shall state—

- (a) the trade or dealing of each of the persons therein named;
- (b) the class and grade under which he is charged; and
- (c) the fee to be paid for his license.

Such list shall be in the language of the district, shall be filed in the office of the Collector, and shall be open to public inspection at all reasonable times without any payment.

10. The Collector shall, from time to time, determine under which of the classes and grades mentioned in the said schedule every person to whom a license may be granted by him as aforesaid shall be charged, and shall amend the said list accordingly.

The list or such part or parts thereof as the Collector thinks fit shall be published in the principal muballas or ganjes of all towns, and in the chaupál, or other public place, in all villages concerned, together with a notification that if any person mentioned in such list continues his trade or dealing, payment of the amount specified in the list as payable by him must be made in the year 1878 within thirty days of such publication in that year and within thirty days next after the first day of January in each succeeding year.

11. The Collector may, by a notice in writing, require the occupier of any house to forward to him a statement in writing signed by such occupier of the names of all persons residing in such house at the date of the notice and of their respective callings.

12. Any person mentioned in the list referred to in sections nine and ten and objecting to the class or grade under which he is charged may, within thirty days after such publication, or within such further time as the Collector may in each case think fit, apply by petition to the Collector in order to establish his right to have his name transferred to another class or grade, or altogether removed from the list.

13. The Collector shall fix a day for the hearing of the petition, and on the day so fixed, or on such subsequent day as he may from time to time direct, shall hear the same and pass such order thereon as he thinks fit:

Provided that if, in his judgment, the petitioner is able to shew that the fee which has been charged exceeds two per cent. upon his annual net earnings, such excess shall, for the purpose of section twelve, be deemed a valid objection.

Provided also that the Collector shall not, in the course of any proceedings under this section, call for any evidence except at the instance of the petitioner, or in order to ascertain the correctness of facts alleged by him.

14. Any person dissatisfied with such order may within fifteen days from the date thereof present a petition of appeal to the Commissioner of Revenue of the Division, whose decision upon such appeal shall be final.

Every petition presented under this section shall be accompanied by a copy of the petition to the Collector, a copy of his order thereon, and all other documents (if any) connected with the case.

15. The Collector may in his discretion remit the whole or any part of the fee payable under this Act by any person who has carried on his trade or dealing for a portion of the year only.

16. A person or firm coming under more than one of the designations in the said schedule shall be chargeable only under one of the said designations at the discretion of the Collector; and in the case of a firm, payment by any one of the partners shall, for the purposes of this Act, be considered payment by the firm.

17. If, after expiry of the period mentioned in the notification published under section ten, for payment of the amount specified therein, any person (whether he is or is not mentioned in the said list) carries on his trade or dealing without having taken out a license as required by this Act, he shall be liable, by order of the Collector, to pay a fine not exceeding thrice the amount payable by him in respect of such license, exclusive of the amount so payable; and on receipt of such payment the Collector shall grant him a license.

All sums due under this section and all fees payable under this Act shall be recoverable as if they were arrears of land-revenue.

18. Every person holding a license under this Act shall produce and show such license when required so to do by an officer generally or specially empowered in writing by the Collector to make such requisition.

But no person shall be proceeded against for neglect or refusal to produce such license except at the instance of the Collector.

19. Courts of Wards and receivers and managers appointed by any Court in British India, shall be chargeable under this Act in respect of any trade or dealing of which the income is officially in their possession or under their control.

20. When any trustee, guardian, curator, committee or agent is charged under this Act in such capacity, or when any Court of Wards or Receiver or manager appointed by any Court is charged under this Act, every person and Court so charged may, from time to time, out of the money coming to his or its possession as such trustee, guardian, curator, committee or agent, or as such Court of Wards, Receiver or manager, retain so much as is sufficient to pay the fee charged.

Every such person or Court is hereby indemnified for every retention and payment made in pursuance of this Act.

Municipalities.

21. The Collector of the District may require any Municipal Committee to furnish, within a period to be specified under the orders of the Local Government, returns showing the names and numbers of persons chargeable under this Act resident within the limits of such Municipality, together with the class and grade to which they respectively belong and the fees payable by them respectively.

If the Municipal Committee fails within the period prescribed to make such returns, or if it make such returns but the Collector of the District has reason to doubt their accuracy, he may at any time cause a return showing the names, numbers, classes and grades aforesaid to be prepared in such manner as may be prescribed by the Local Government.

22. When the return mentioned in section 21 has been furnished or prepared, notice shall be served on the Municipality, calling on it to pay to the Collector of the District, within a period to be specified in the notice, a sum calculated on such return in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

Any Municipality may appropriate any part of its revenues to the payment of the sum leviable from it under this section, or raise such further sums in addition to its existing revenue as may be needful for such payment: provided that such further sums be raised in accordance with the Act under which such Municipality is constituted.

Miscellaneous.

- 23. All fees and penalties paid or recovered under this Act shall be carried to the credit of the Local Government.

The amount so credited shall be applied, in such manner as the Governor General in Council thinks fit, for the purpose of defraying expenditure incurred or to be incurred for the relief and prevention of famine in the territories administered by such Local Government, or, if the Governor General in Council so directs, in any other part of British India.

24. All or any of the powers and duties conferred and imposed by this Act on a Collector may, subject to the orders of the Collector of the District, be exercised and performed by an Assistant Collector or such other officer as the Local Government from time to time appoints in this behalf.

25. Every person shall be legally bound to furnish information to any officer exercising any of the powers of a Collector under this Act when required by him to do so.

26. The Local Government may, from time to time, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council,—

(a) exempt any portion of the territories administered by such Government, or any persons or class of persons in such territories, from the operation of this Act;

(b) exempt from the operation of this Act any persons whose respective net annual earnings are less than such sum as the Local Government may, from time to time, direct in this behalf;

(c) make rules consistent with this Act, (1) for regulating the time and manner of collecting the fees charged under this Act, (2) for providing in any case or class of cases for serving notices on persons charged under this Act, (3) for determining the mode in which persons belonging to any class shall be distributed into grades, and (4) generally for the guidance of officers in matters connected with the enforcement of this Act.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

In the Financial Statement for 1877-78, attention was drawn to the necessity imposed upon the Government of India of bringing the public Revenues and Expenditure into a condition of proper equilibrium. The events that have occurred since that time have shown that the urgency of the case has become greater with each succeeding month of the prolonged crisis through which the country has been passing.

After the Famine of 1874 in Northern Bengal, the Government of Lord Northbrook declared that such calamities could no longer be treated as abnormal or exceptional, and that sound financial principles required that the grave obligations entailed by Famine upon the Government should be explicitly recognised and provided for among the ordinary charges of the State.

The Secretary of State agreed with Lord Northbrook's Government, that the periodical occurrence of Famine ought to enter into the calculation of the Government of India when making provision for its ordinary wants from year to year, and that such a surplus should be provided in each year as would make a sensible impression on the debt incurred in times of Famine. Her Majesty's Government have recently reaffirmed this principle.

To enable the Government to discharge the obligations placed upon it to meet these requirements, additional taxation has been deemed necessary. To provide for a portion of this in a manner suited to the condition of the country and the special circumstances of the case, the present measure is proposed.

CALCUTTA,
The 27th December 1877.

D. FITZPATRICK,
Secy. to the Govt. of India.

[Second Publication.]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor-General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 27th December 1877 :—

No. 24 of 1877.

A Bill for the levy of Additional Rates on Land in the North-Western Provinces.

WHEREAS, in order to defray the expenditure incurred and to be incurred for the relief and prevention of famine, it is necessary to make a permanent increase to the annual revenues available for provincial purposes, and it is therefore expedient to provide, in the territories administered by the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces, for the levy on land of additional rates to be applied to local purposes; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

1. This Act may be called “The North-Western Provinces Local Rates Enhancement Act, 1878,” and it shall come into force on such date as the Governor General in Council by notification in the Gazette of India directs.

2. On and from such date Act No. VII of 1877 (to amend the law relating to assignments from the General Provincial Fund established under the North-Western Provinces Local Rates Act, 1871) shall be repealed.

3. In section three of the North-Western Provinces Local Rates Act, 1871, after the proviso the following shall be inserted, that is to say—

“Every estate situate in a district of which the land-revenue is liable to periodical revision, shall be liable, in addition to any rates levied under the foregoing portion of this section, to the payment of such further rate, not exceeding one per cent. on its annual value, as the Lieutenant-Governor from time to time imposes.

“Such further rate shall be paid by the landlord independently of, and in addition to, any land-revenue assessed on the estate.”

4. To section four of the same Act the following clause shall be added, that is to say :—

“The Lieutenant-Governor may from time to time impose upon any such estate, in addition to any rate imposed under the first clause of this section, a further rate of such amount not exceeding half an anna for each acre as aforesaid as he thinks fit.”

5. In sections five, seven, and eight of the same Act, after the word “rate” wherever it occurs, the words “or further rate” shall be inserted.

6. For section ten of the same Act, the following section shall be substituted :

“10 (a). From such fund the Lieutenant-Governor shall in each year appropriate such amount, not exceeding the proceeds of the further rates assessed in such year under sections three and four, as the Governor General in Council may direct, for the purpose of defraying expenditure incurred or to be incurred for the relief and prevention of famine in the said territories.

“Provided that the whole or any portion of such amount may, if the Governor General in Council so directs, be expended for the relief and prevention of famine in any other part of British India.

“(b). The Lieutenant-Governor may, from time to time, assign from such fund such amount as he thinks fit, to be applied in payment of charges incurred or to be incurred on account of such canals and railways as he, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may declare to be works of general provincial utility.

“Provided that the amounts so assigned in any year shall not exceed one-tenth of the proceeds of the rates assessed in such year under the first clause of section three and the first clause of section four.

“(c). Subject to the appropriation directed by clause (a), the Lieutenant-Governor shall from time to time allot from such fund such amounts as he thinks fit to be applied in each district for expenditure on all or any of the following purposes :—

“(1.) The construction, repair, and maintenance of roads and other means of communication;

“(2.) The maintenance of the Rural Police and District-post;

“(3.) The construction and repair of school-houses, the maintenance and inspection of schools, the training of teachers, and the establishment of scholarships;

“(4.) The construction and repair of hospitals, dispensaries, lunatic asylums, markets, wells and tanks; the payment of all charges connected with the purposes for which such buildings or works have been constructed, and any other local works likely to promote the public health, comfort or convenience.

“Provided that the amounts so allotted in any year for any district shall not be less than nine-tenths of the proceeds of the rates assessed under the first clause of section three and the first clause of section four in such district in such year.”

7. In section eleven of the same Act, for the word “assignments” the word “allotments” shall be substituted.

In section twelve of the same Act, for the word “assignment” in each of the places where it occurs, the word “allotment” shall be substituted, and for the word “reassigned” the word “re-allotted” shall be substituted.

And in section thirteen of the same Act, for the word “assignment” the word “allotment” shall be substituted.

And in section fourteen of the same Act, for the word “amount” in each of the places where it occurs, the word “allotment” shall be substituted.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

In the Financial Statement for 1877-78, attention was drawn to the necessity imposed upon the Government of India of bringing the public Revenues and Expenditure into a condition of proper equilibrium. The events that have occurred since that time have shown that the urgency of the case has become greater with each succeeding month of the prolonged crisis through which the country has been passing.

After the famine of 1874 in Northern Bengal, the Government of Lord Northbrook declared that such calamities could no longer be treated as abnormal or exceptional, and that sound financial principles required that the grave obligations entailed by famine upon the Government should be explicitly recognised and provided for among the ordinary charges of the State.

The Secretary of State agreed with Lord Northbrook's Government, that the periodical occurrence of famine ought to enter into the calculation of the Government of India when making provision for its ordinary wants from year to year, and that such a surplus should be provided in each year as would make a sensible impression on the debt incurred in times of Famine. Her Majesty's Government have recently re-affirmed this principle.

To enable the Government to discharge the obligations placed upon it to meet these requirements, additional taxation has been deemed necessary. To provide for a portion of this in a manner suited to the condition of the country and the special circumstances of the case, the present measure is proposed.

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor-General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 27th December 1877 :—

No. 25 OF 1877.

A Bill for the levy of Additional Rates on Land in Oudh.

WHEREAS, in order to defray the expenditure incurred and to be incurred for the relief and prevention of famine, it is necessary to make a permanent increase to the annual revenues available for Provincial purposes; and it is therefore expedient to provide, in the territories administered by the Chief Commissioner of Oudh, for the levy on land of additional rates to be applied to local purposes; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

1. This Act may be called "The Oudh Local Rates Enhancement Act, 1878;" and it shall come into force on such date as the Governor General in Council by notification in the Gazette of India directs.

2. In section three of the Oudh Local Rates Act XVII of 1871, section 3, amended. Act (No. XVII of 1871), for the word "one" the word "two" shall be substituted.

3. For section ten of the said Act the following shall be substituted for section 10 of the same Act :—

"10 (a). From such fund the Chief Commissioner shall in each year appropriate such amount, not exceeding four-ninths of the proceeds of the rate assessed in such year under this Act, as the Governor General in Council may direct, for the purpose of defraying expenditure incurred or to be incurred for the relief and prevention of famine in the said territories :

"Provided that the whole or any portion of such amount may, if the Governor General in Council so directs, be expended for the relief and prevention of famine in any other part of British India.

"(b.) Subject to such appropriation, the Chief Commissioner shall from time to time allot from the said fund such amounts as he thinks fit to be applied in each district for expenditure on all or any of the following purposes :—

"(1.) The construction, repair, and maintenance of roads and other means of communication;

"(2.) The construction and repair of school-houses, the maintenance and inspection of schools, the training of teachers, and the establishment of scholarships;

"(3.) The construction and repair of hospitals, dispensaries, lunatic asylums, markets, wells and tanks; the payment of all charges connected with the purposes for which such buildings or works have been constructed, and any other local works and undertakings of public utility, likely to promote the public health, comfort or convenience.

"Provided that the amounts so allotted in any year for any district shall not be less than five-ninths of the proceeds of the rate assessed in such district in such year."

4. In sections eleven and twelve of the same Act, for the word "assignment," in each of the places in which it occurs, the word "allotment" shall be substituted, and for the word "re-assigned" the word "re-allotted" shall be substituted.

5. In section thirteen of the same Act, for the words "mentioned in" the words "allotted under" shall be substituted.

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor-General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 27th December 1877 :—

No. 26 of 1877.

A Bill for the levy of Additional Rates on Land in the Panjáb.

WHEREAS, in order to defray the expenditure incurred and to be incurred for the relief and prevention of famine, it is necessary to make a permanent increase to the annual revenues available for provincial purposes, and it is therefore expedient to provide, in the territories administered by the Lieutenant-Governor of the Panjáb, for the levy on land of additional rates to be applied to local purposes ; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

1. This Act may be called "The Panjáb Local Rates Enhancement Act, 1878."

And it shall come into force on such date as the Governor General in Council by notification in the Gazette of India directs.

2. On and from such date the following portions of the Panjáb Local Rates Act, 1871, shall be repealed, that is to say—

(a). in section three, the words and figures following, namely, "shall be computed as from the first day of April 1871 and :"

(b). in section four, the illustration.

3. In section three of the said Act, for the word "six" the word "eight" shall be substituted.

4. For section six of the said Act the following shall be substituted :—

"6. (a). "Provided that the whole or any portion of such amount may, if the Governor General in Council so directs, be expended for the relief and prevention of famine in any other part of British India.

"(b). Subject to such appropriation, the Lieutenant-Governor shall from time to time allot from the said sums such amount as he thinks fit to be applied in each district for expenditure on all or any of the following purposes :—

"(1). The construction, repair, and maintenance of roads and other means of communication ;

"(2.) The construction and repair of school-houses, the maintenance and inspection of schools, the training of teachers, and the establishment of scholarships ;

"(3.) The construction and repair of hospitals, dispensaries, lunatic asylums, wells, and tanks, the payment of all charges connected with the purposes for which such buildings or works have been constructed, the planting and preservation of trees, and any other local works likely to promote the public health, comfort, or convenience.

"Provided that the amounts so allotted in any year for any district shall not in the aggregate be less than three-fourths of the proceeds of the rate assessed in such district in such year."

5. In sections seven, eight and nine of the same Act, for the words "assignment" and "assignments" wherever they occur, the words "allotment" and "allotments" shall be respectively substituted ; and in section eight of the same Act, for the word "re-assigned" the word "re-allotted" shall be substituted.

6. In section ten of the said Act, for the words "mentioned in" the words "allotted under" shall be substituted.

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor-General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 27th December 1877 :—

No. 27 of 1877.

A Bill for the levy of Additional Rates on land in the Central Provinces.

WHEREAS, in order to defray the expenditure incurred and to be incurred for the relief and prevention of famine, it is necessary to make a permanent increase to the annual revenues available for provincial purposes; and it is therefore expedient to provide, in the territories administered by the Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces, for the levy of additional rates on land to be applied to local purposes; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

1. This Act may be called "The Central Provinces Additional Rates Act, 1878."

It extends only to the territories administered by the Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces;

And it shall come into force on such date as the Governor General in Council by notification in the Gazette of India directs.

2. Every estate shall be liable, in addition to the rates and cesses payable under any settlement for the time being in force, to the payment of such further rate not exceeding one per cent. on its annual value, as the Chief Commissioner, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, from time to time imposes.

"Annual value" means

(1). in cases in which the settlement of the land-revenue is liable to periodical revision, double the amount of the land-revenue for the time being assessed on an estate;

(2). in cases in which such settlement is not liable to such revision, or in which the land-revenue has been, wholly or in part, released, compounded for, redeemed or assigned, double the amount which, if the settlement were liable to such revision, or an assessment at full rates were to be made, would be assessable as land-revenue on the estate.

All sums due on account of any rate imposed under this Act shall be recoverable as if they were arrears of land-revenue due on the land on account of which the rate is payable.

4. The proceeds of all rates levied under this Act shall be carried to the credit of a general provincial fund.

5. From such fund the Chief Commissioner shall from time to time appropriate such amount as the Governor General in Council may direct, for the purpose of defraying a due proportion of the expenditure incurred or to be incurred in the said territories for the relief and prevention of famine:

Provided that the whole or any portion of such amount may, if the Governor General in Council so directs, be expended on the same objects in any part of British India.

Subject to such appropriation, any portion of the fund may be applied by the Chief Commissioner to such local works likely to promote the public health, comfort or convenience as he thinks fit.

6. The Chief Commissioner, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may by notification in the Local Gazette from time to time—

(a) determine by what instalments and at what times such rate shall be payable, and by whom it shall be assessed, collected and paid;

(b) make rules consistent with this Act for the guidance of officers in matters connected with its enforcement;

(c) exempt any portion of the territories under his government from the operation of this Act, or exempt any estate from liability to pay the whole or any part of any rate under this Act;

(d) direct fresh measurements of estates liable to pay rates under this Act, and vary the assessments accordingly.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.
PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT.

COMPARATIVE STATEMENTS OF IRRIGATION AND RAINFALL IN GUZERAT
AND DECCAN FOR THE YEARS 1875-76 AND 1876-77.

No. 5847, dated 26th September 1877.

Memorandum—By J. H. E. HART, Esq., C.E., Acting Chief Engineer for Irrigation, Poona.

The accompanying comparative statements of irrigation and rainfall on our new irrigation works in Guzerat and Deccan for the years 1875-76 and 1876-77, are submitted for the information of Government.

2. The figures may be thus re-capitulated :—

			1874-75.	1875-76.	1876-77.
Area commanded	179,249	185,799
Area irrigated.	Kharif	2,833	3,459	5,982
	Increase over previous year	626	2,523
	Rabi	2,154	3,610	10,864
	Increase over previous year	1,456	7,254
	Total	4,987	7,069	16,846
Increase over previous year	2,082	9,777

The increase in area irrigated is particularly satisfactory. Attached will also be found a statement giving the areas irrigated each year for the last eleven years. The figures are as follows :—

YEAR.	Number of Works open.	Area commanded.	Area irrigated.	Percentage of column 4 to column 3.	REMARKS.
1	2	3	4	5	6
1866-67	3	31,635	1,136	3·6	The area under command is over-stated in these earlier years, precise information not being available. The area irrigated is exact.
1867-68	3	31,635	1,195	3·8
1868-69	5	58,971	1,825	3·1
1869-70	8	86,226	2,358	2·7
1870-71	9	87,878	2,920	3·3
1871-72	11	104,359	6,299	6·0
1872-73	12	108,893	4,330	4·0
1873-74	16	166,585	5,453	3·2
1874-75	18	171,295	4,987	2·9
1875-76	19	179,249	7,069	3·9
1876-77	19	185,799	16,846	9·07

Considering how short a period the majority of the works have been opened, and how entirely new irrigation is to the people whose apathy and indebtedness and consequent indifference to their best interests are notorious, it is satisfactory that 9 per cent. of the whole area under command was irrigated last year.

WEEKLY CONDITION REPORT OF THE DISTRESSED DISTRICTS OF THE

PROVINCE OF MYSORE.

(No. 46.)

Special Famine Report for the Week ending 22nd December 1877.

Statement No. 46, regarding Famine Relief Operations in the Province of Mysore for the Week ending the 22nd December 1877.

During the week ending the 22nd December there was no rain, but colder weather and a clearer sky than before, with heavy dews which are good for the crops. The showers of the preceding week also did some good, but there is a general agreement now that the crop which is partly cut and partly on the ground is a much poorer one than was at first anticipated. Its sudden and surprising revival in September, when it had been so nearly lost in the drought of July and August, led people to think of it as very good, where as it was in reality only just saved it has suffered since then from a plague of caterpillars; and in the Eastern Districts, where the loss of cattle and of population has been greatest and hardly more than half the usual area has been cultivated, there is reason to doubt whether there is food enough on the ground to feed the population till the next crop comes in.

2. The Chief Commissioner has been led by this consideration to review the question of the collection of land revenue, to put off the first instalment from the 20th December to the 20th January, and to decide that, although no remissions of revenue can be granted, the demand shall be postponed till next year in the case of all ryots who have only dry lands, and have not cultivated half of their usual area.

3. The effect of the shortness of the crops is to be seen in the prices which still rule high and have if anything risen a little since last week, especially in Mysore; and in the imports by rail which amount to 1,279 tons against 888 the week before. The exports from Bangalore also to the outlying districts continue to be brisk, and stand at almost the same figure as last week, 895 tons.

4. The Civil Relief Officers have been mainly engaged during the week in carrying out the preliminary census, in preparation for the 19th January and in distributing the funds allotted to them from the Mansion House Subscription. But several of them have suffered from the severe and unusual type of fever now prevalent; three officers have had to leave their posts, while others have been partially disabled.

5. The number of persons employed on civil relief works appears as 6,357 against 13,303 in the previous week. This decrease is mainly due to the steps taken in the Bangalore and Tûmkûr Districts to transfer the labourers from roads supervised by the civil agency to works under professional superintendence: only a small proportion however have accepted the change, the distance test being a great stumbling-block to those who have any crops on the ground or any property in their houses, and the severer task-work exacted being a bug-bear to the idle and weak.

6. On works conducted by professional agency, there has been a slight increase, the numbers being 45,286 against 45,163: the increase has been almost entirely in the Tûmkûr District, where the operations of the Department have been considerably extended: on the Railway and other works near Bangalore there is a falling off. The following is a list of the more important works, employing 500 labourers and upwards :—

	Present week.	Previous week.

Chitaldrug-Chellakere Road ...	592	...
Total...	43,421	42,768

7. The numbers on gratuitous relief amounted to 13,223, a decrease of 2,270 as compared with 15,493 in the week before. Of these, 2,605 received grain doles in their villages, being old, bed-ridden, cripples, &c., against a return of 1,137 such cases in the previous week ; but the returns of these numbers for both weeks have been incomplete. This mode of relief is now being put a stop to, the famine not being sufficiently severe to require it. Looking at the relief camps alone, the numbers have fallen from 14,356 to 10,618 : of these 4,170 were sick in hospital, leaving only about 6,500 as the ordinary inmates of the relief camps, out of whom again probably 1,500 are establishment. The actual number of paupers fed at Government expense is now extremely small, and it is hoped that before long this kind of relief will be closed altogether. There are still however considerable numbers of new applicants for admission, but the figures required to illustrate this point have not been received from all districts and will be given in the next report. The cost per head of feeding the paupers was as follows :—

	Cost per head

or an average cost per head of 14 annas 5 pies compared with 15 annas 2 pies for the preceding week.

NORTHERN INDIA LICENSE BILL.

The Hon'ble Sir J. STRACHEY moved for leave to introduce a Bill for the licensing of trades and dealings in the Panjāb, the North-Western Provinces and Oudh. He said—

FINANCIAL STATEMENT.

MY LORD;—"In the Financial Statement for 1877-78, which I had the honour to present to your Excellency and this Council on the 15th of March last, I dwelt at some length upon the necessity imposed upon the Government of India of bringing the public Revenues and Expenditure into a condition of proper equilibrium, and I indicated that it would be our duty, at some future time, to propose further measures for accomplishing this object. The events that have occurred since that time will have prepared every one for the conclusion that the urgency of the case has become greater with each succeeding month of the prolonged crisis through which the country has been passing. The Government fully recognizes the fact that the community at large is not less interested in the measures that it has been deemed expedient to adopt than are the Members of the Government on whom devolves the responsibility for framing those measures, and your Excellency has, I may be allowed to say, wisely determined, therefore, to lose no time in introducing before the Council the Bills which are necessary for obtaining the requisite Legislative authority for carrying out its policy. This course will give ample time for that full consideration of our measures, which it might have been difficult to secure if we had waited till a later part of the season.

"I reminded the Council, at the time to which I have referred, that, after the famine of 1874 in Northern Bengal, the Government of Lord Northbrook declared that such calamities could no longer be treated as abnormal or exceptional, and that sound financial principles required that the grave obligations entailed by famine upon the Government should be explicitly recognized and provided for among the ordinary charges of the State. Within the previous ten years, three serious famines had occurred. The drought of 1866 led to famine in Bihār and Orissa. The failure of the rainy season in 1868 and 1869 caused severe distress over a great tract of country in Northern India; and in 1874 came the famine in Bengal. As it could not be doubted that India was liable to the periodical and not unfrequent occurrence of such calamities, Lord Northbrook most justly concluded that to attempt to meet them merely by borrowing without a simultaneous increase of income would be financially ruinous: it was out of the question to think of meeting with borrowed money the charges which we should have to incur in future on their account. Whatever means, he said, we may take to obviate or mitigate them, it must, under present circumstances, be looked upon as inevitable that famines will from time to time occur.

"He therefore determined that, to enable the State to meet the serious obligation of preventing and relieving famine, it was necessary to secure, in prosperous times, a substantial surplus of Revenue over Expenditure in addition to that necessary margin which a prudent administration demands for the ordinary requirements of the State. Due provision would thus be made for meeting occasional expenditure upon famine. He argued that, if this surplus were devoted to the reduction of debt or to preventing the increase of debt for the construction of reproductive public works in years of ordinary prosperity, there would be no objection to the Public Expenditure exceeding the Public Revenue in occasional years of adversity, so that we might then without objection meet the charges on account of famine from borrowed funds, to the full extent to which our surplus had permitted the discharge of debt or prevented its increase.

"The Secretary of State agreed with Lord Northbrook's Government that the periodical occurrence of famine ought to enter into the calculation of the Government of India when making provision for its ordinary wants from year to year, and that such a surplus should be provided in each year as would make a sensible impression on the debt incurred in times of famine. Her Majesty's Government have recently re-affirmed this principle.

"I was authorized, in making my Financial Statement, to declare the entire concurrence of your Excellency's Government in this policy, the wisdom of which had again been painfully enforced upon us by the famine in Southern India, but which no sufficient steps had till then been taken to carry out. A careful examination of the accounts of the seven years ending on the 31st March 1876, a period long enough to illustrate fairly the state of our Finances, made it plain not only that we had, when I spoke, made no proper provision for the cost of famines, but that we possessed no true surplus of Revenue over Expenditure to cover the many contingencies to which a great country is exposed. As I then said, the financial administration of our predecessors had been most careful and economical. They acted in accordance with the facts which their experience appeared to supply, and with that reluctance to add to the public burdens which has always most properly characterized the action of the Indian Government. But our fuller information had made it manifest, beyond the possibility of dispute, that, whether by retrenchment of expenditure, or development of the existing sources of revenue, or fresh taxation, or by a combination of these means, a substantial improvement of our financial position was indispensable; and we only postponed the adoption of vigorous measures to this end until returning prosperity should enable the country to undertake fresh burdens with less difficulty, and allow the Local Governments more leisure to afford us their counsel and co-operation. Subsequent events have only served to show more clearly the urgency of our need. The year 1877 has been a year of gloom and difficulty to multitudes of the people, and of deep anxiety to the Government. In consequence of the delay in the coming of the summer rains, the distress in Southern India was prolonged much beyond the period which, it had been hoped, would terminate it. We had estimated the cost of the famine at five and a quarter millions, but this sum had subsequently to be raised to our present estimate of nine and a quarter millions. In addition to the scarcity in the south, a fresh danger arose in the north, from the very insufficient rainfall in that quarter. The autumn crops over a great part of Upper India were almost wholly lost, no such complete failure having occurred, in the North-Western Provinces, since 1837-38. The drought extended into Rājputāna and Central India; and there are few Provinces in India which did not suffer more or less loss. At one time there were imminent apprehensions that it would be impossible to sow the winter crops of Upper India, and that another famine of great severity was there impending. Happily, the rain in the beginning of October saved India from this peril; abundant falls have already almost obliterated famine in our Southern Provinces, and the timely rainfall of the present month of December has removed our remaining anxiety for Northern India. We may reasonably hope that our long-continued adversity will now be succeeded by a season of national prosperity.

"I must not turn aside now to speak of the lessons for our future guidance which, I hope, will be derived from the dearly-bought experience of the recent famine. But I hope that, upon a retrospect of the famine campaign of 1876-77, it will be found that former experience was not thrown away; that there has been a better application of national resources; and that better fruits may be expected from the famine-expenditure than on former occasions. Doubtless, we are far from having completely learnt the most economical, or the most efficient, method of dealing with these calamities. However, it is not my present object to discuss these matters. What I have to do is, now that we are in a condition to face the question, to redeem the pledge I before gave, and to propose the measures which seem to the Government necessary in order to place the finances in a proper condition.

"To enable the Council and the country fully to understand the true position of affairs, it is necessary for me to state, with such precision as is possible, the actual cost of recent famines, in order that an estimate may be made of the amount of financial relief which must be obtained before the Treasury can permanently undertake this burden. The task is not so easy as might at first sight appear.

"I am not able to compute with certainty the cost of the famine of 1866 in Orissa; but it has been estimated at £1,700,000. From various causes, however, the measures of relief then taken fell so far short of what would now be deemed necessary, that we could not base upon them any calculations for the future. Even as regards the Bengal famine of 1874, and the famine in Southern India in 1876 and 1877, it will be obvious, on reflection, that it must be long before the accounts of the receipts and disbursements can be completed, and that, to the last, many of the component items must be estimates rather than facts. The main expenditure is, or ought to be, for the wages of labour upon public works: it must be always a matter of estimate how much of this expenditure is infructuous and a dead-weight famine-charge, and how much may be fairly reproductive. The extra expenditure in consequence of the famine upon the several services, Military and Civil, may be more precisely ascertained. On the other side, the Revenue lost under many Heads of Account, and the net Revenue gained upon the Railways, although real and important elements in the accounts of a famine, can never be exactly known: the Railway gains operate more or less as a set-off against the charges, but all the amounts will to the last be open to much doubt. Then we have loans or advances made to other Governments, public bodies, or individuals, which may or may not be repaid; and such large items as the provision of additional rolling-stock for Railways and the like, which may long be a cause of additional charge.

"Without troubling the Council with further details, I have said enough to show that the actual cost of a famine must, to the end, be the subject of estimate rather than account.

"The Bengal famine of 1874 is, in this way, estimated to have cost £6,750,000, and the famine in Southern India, which in March last was expected to cost £5,250,000, is now estimated to cost £9,250,000, making a charge of £16,000,000 for famine relief in the five years from 1873 to 1878.

"The serious character of such a fact can hardly be exaggerated; its gravity becomes more apparent when it is understood that, by the end of the current year, the public debt of India will be larger by at least £16,000,000, and the annual charge for interest by £640,000, than they would have been if there had been no famine in these five years. I make no attempt to estimate the vast waste of private capital due to the same causes.

"Happily, there are grounds for believing that this has been a period of exceptional disaster. Famines are, indeed, so far from being uncommon occurrences in India, that scarcely a year passes without distress in some part of the country; but their frequency, severity and extent during the last few years have exceeded what past experience would lead us to expect hereafter. Moreover, we trust that we are constantly learning more of the best and most economical way of dealing with these calamities; that every famine wisely administered will leave behind it works which will tend to make similar future difficulties less serious and less costly; that the material improvements we otherwise continue to make will enable the country to bear the effects of drought more and more easily, and we may hope that the cost of famine relief will hence be less in the future than it has been in the past.

“Making all allowances for these considerations, I cannot now venture to estimate the yearly average cost of famines in loss of Revenue and actual expenditure at less than £1,500,000. This amount has necessarily been arrived at in a somewhat arbitrary manner, and it will be seen to correspond approximately with the sum that would be requisite to distribute the charges of the last five years over a period of ten years. It will remain for the Government in the future to reconsider, from time to time, the practical result of the assumption which we are now constrained to make on what are necessarily imperfect grounds, and to take all requisite steps in the way of correcting any error into which further experience may indicate that we have fallen, either in the one direction or the other.

“What, then, we have now to do is to improve our financial condition as it was at the beginning of the present year, by £1,500,000 a year on account of famine alone. This, however, is not all.

“Successive Secretaries of State have urged the Government of India to provide a margin on our annual estimates of from half-a-million to a million sterling, some such moderate surplus on the ordinary account being obviously necessary to enable us to meet those contingencies to which every great Government is always liable, and which cannot be foreseen, and to provide the means of carrying out administrative and other improvements. The latest injunction upon this subject was given in a Despatch of October 1877, reviewing the financial arrangements of the present year, which contained also the renewed recognition by Her Majesty's Government of the duty of making definite provision for the cost of famine. Inasmuch, therefore, as at the time when the present famine began, our income did little more than suffice to meet the charges, even if that was secured, I consider that our Revenues were on the whole about £2,000,000 a year short of what was necessary. We required £1,500,000 for famine, and, at the very least, £500,000 of ordinary surplus.

“In considering how to discharge its weighty responsibility for securing financial equilibrium in such circumstances, the Government of India first turned its attention to the possibility of effecting reductions in the Public Expenditure.

“Excluding famine relief and Public Works treated as Extraordinary, the yearly gross cost of the administration of British India is now between £18,000,000 and £49,000,000, and the net cost, after subtracting from those sums the amounts that may be more properly treated as deductions from charge than receipts of income, is between £37,000,000 and £38,000,000. These are large sums in themselves; but if we consider the vastness of the Empire, which includes a territory little less than the whole of Europe excluding Russia, the costliness of a foreign administration, especially of a foreign military equipment, in an uncongenial climate, and, what is more pleasant to contemplate, the growing intelligence, the growing civilization, and therefore the growing wants of the people, I do not think that the cost of the administration can be deemed extravagant.

“In the Minute attached to my Financial Statement, I calculated the true net expenditure upon the Army in each of the years 1876-77 and 1877-78 to be upwards of £17,000,000, or nearly 45 per cent. of the whole net expenditure of the Empire, excluding famine and Reproductive Works. Of the remaining £21,000,000, about £6,750,000 is for net interest on the public debt and on the capital of the Guaranteed Railways after setting off their net traffic earnings; and £3,750,000 is the net grant for ordinary Public Works. There remains net £10,500,000 for the general civil administration and government of our vast population, which amounts to 185 millions, excluding the people of our feudatory States. No great saving can be expected in this part of the Public Expenditure.

“Nevertheless, as is well known to the Council, efforts to reduce the Civil charges have never been wanting. On the contrary, they have been made persistently again and again, and will certainly not now be abandoned. I had the satisfaction of showing, in March last, that excluding famine relief and Loss by Exchange—an element practically beyond our control—a reduction of the net Civil Expenditure had been effected in the seven years from 1869 to 1876, amounting to no less than £1,500,000 a year. This fact justifies me in asking the Council and the public to trust in the determination of the Government of India to spare no pains to keep down the demands upon the Public Treasury for the Civil Services.

“In giving effect to this policy in the past, the Government of India has found a powerful instrument in the system of Provincial Finance introduced by the Earl of Mayo in 1870, under which the Government of India renounced interference in the detailed administration of many services, granting the Local Governments a permanent but fixed income to cover their cost. The saving to the Imperial Treasury effected upon the first introduction of this scheme was £330,000 a year. Its further development this year has already produced an additional saving of £169,000. Thus, a positive saving to the taxpayer of nearly £500,000 has already resulted from this policy, and this will certainly be increased hereafter. Moreover, the demands from the Local Governments on account of these services, as I showed in March, had, till the change of system was adopted, been constantly growing; the cost of the services transferred in 1870 had risen from £5,100,000 in 1863-64 to upwards of £6,000,000 in 1869-70. All further increase of such demands has been stopped, if not for ever, at least to a great extent and for a long time to come.

“The public may very well be financially content with the arrangements thus made. Under them the greater part of the Civil Services proper, costing, as I have estimated, with ordinary Public Works, £14,250,000, either have already been, or will shortly be, entrusted, with fixed grants, to the Provincial Governments. In this branch of the public outlay, it is, I am satisfied, visionary to think of obtaining any important reduction. It is true that irresponsible persons find it easy to declaim as to the possibility of enforcing large economies. But I fearlessly challenge any one having a sufficient knowledge of the real requirements of the administration to indicate any branch of the Civil Services of which it would not be far easier to give substantial proofs that more money is required for it than the converse. No one, I think, can doubt that I personally should feel my task rendered infinitely lighter and more agreeable if I could see relief in this direction, or that I should have hesitated to seek it there, if it had been really practicable.

“As to that part of the Expenditure which arises from the payment of interest on ordinary debt, and on capital laid out on productive Public Works, as well as that which is required for the current demands for Public Works, a little consideration will show that, at all events, no reduction of charge can be looked for. The heavy burden of the recent famine has added not far from £400,000 to the charges on account of our ordinary debt. Further, so long as a policy prevails which requires of us the prosecution of works of internal improvement on a scale commensurate with the growing wants of the agriculture and commerce of the country,—a policy which we strongly hold,—we cannot, for the present at least, safely look for any diminution of charge for interest on this account. The charge for the Guaranteed Railways, at one time so onerous, has, of late years, it is true diminished rapidly, so that we have a good hope that in the current year it may disappear altogether. This last result, if it occurs, will no doubt be to some extent rather apparent than real, being attributable largely to the famine traffic, which is calculated to have added altogether about £600,000 to the Government share of the Net Traffic Earnings of the Railways, £300,000 of which falls into the current year. It would be too much, however, to expect that we shall be, as yet, finally emancipated from all burdens on account of these great undertakings; but we may confidently hope that the charge will continue to diminish and will eventually disappear altogether: the fact is full of hope for India. At the same time, it must be remembered that we are constantly undertaking fresh and heavy burdens of this character, so that it is only prudent to reserve any margin which we may obtain from the income of our existing Public Works as security for the outturn of future works, which, however carefully devised, may sometimes disappoint expectations. Neither can any diminution be hoped for in the Ordinary Public Works Charges, which include the necessarily increasing burdens due to meeting the constantly increasing wants of our administration and demands for works of internal communication and irrigation, any falling off in the efficacy of which would instantly re-act on the public security and prosperity. The transfer of the bulk of this class of objects to provincial management provides the best, indeed the only possible, safeguard against the undue increase of charge on their account, while it gives due protection to the interests they are designed to subserve.

"Turning to the military expenditure, I examined in some detail in my Minute laid before the Council on the 15th March, the accounts of the Army. I showed that it now costs upwards of £17,000,000 a year; that its cost has increased by upwards of £1,000,000 since 1875-76; and that a large share of this increase is in the expenditure recorded in the Home Accounts.

"I need not recapitulate the details thus reviewed, but I will repeat the conclusion which I then stated as follows:—

"The Government of India must certainly endeavour to find the means of meeting the increased Military charges, some of which are apparently inevitable, by economies in other departments of the Military Service; this endeavour must be largely dependent for success upon the support of Her Majesty's Government. I do not assert that the whole of the additional expenditure on the Army has not been incurred for excellent objects, or that it could have been avoided; but, that the Indian Revenues are liable to have great charges thrown upon them without the Government of India being consulted, and almost without any power of remonstrance, is a fact the gravity of which can hardly be exaggerated."

"We have not neglected this matter during the year; it has been the subject of elaborate enquiry, the results of which have still to be considered. Whether we shall be able to carry out reductions which some high authorities have advocated, depends upon considerations, the effect of which on the ultimate conclusions of the Government I cannot now foresee. Judging from the past, we may esteem ourselves fortunate if further additions to the Home Military charges are not thrown upon us; but what is possible on our part to prevent such a result shall certainly be done. We know that we may rely upon the support of the Secretary of State in securing this object, and we may hope that some reconsideration of the burden thrown upon us on account of this branch of charge may be found possible, which shall lead to an arrangement more consistent with our own views of what is equitable to India. Meanwhile, for its immediate need, the Government of India can plainly not count upon any material saving in our military charges.

"Present reduction of expenditure thus appearing impracticable, we next examined carefully the prospects of our present sources of Revenue, but found no grounds for reckoning upon any certain material increase in their yield. The Revenue from Customs Duties, both on inland and sea-borne trade, so far from increasing, must rather be expected to diminish. How soon, and to what extent, we shall be able to carry out the important, and in my own opinion most necessary, reform in regard to the Cotton Duties which has now been enjoined upon us by Her Majesty's Government, supported by a unanimous vote of the House of Commons, and other reforms less disputed and not less urgent, I am now unable to foresee; but at least it is unlikely that the Government of India will be able to increase its Customs Revenues. The imposition of an Excise Duty on Indian cotton manufactures, has not appeared to us to call for serious attention. For though I might recognize the force of arguments in favour of such taxation if the Import duties on foreign cotton goods were to be maintained as a permanent part of our fiscal system, yet in the face of the repeated and plainly expressed views of Her Majesty's Government and Parliament, the matter presents itself in a totally different aspect.

"The measures which I shall presently propose for the equalization and better collection of the Salt Tax will, if sanctioned by the Council, doubtless yield us, for the time, an increase of Revenue; but, as I shall explain further on, this increase cannot be looked on as permanent, and I must decline to reckon it among the permanent assets to be set against the liabilities for which we have now to provide. The eventual object of our policy as regards Salt is rather the reduction, than the enhancement, of the duty, and to enable the people to procure a full supply of salt at the cheapest rate consistent with our financial necessities.

"The greater part of the increase which is to be anticipated during the next few years from the normal growth of the Revenues under the Heads of Excise and Stamps, we have discounted in the arrangements for the administration by the Provincial Governments of these branches of the Revenue; and, though some further improvement in the Revenue from Stamps is expected to follow upon the consolidation and revision of the Law now under the consideration of this Council, the amount is uncertain, and not likely to be important.

"The increased Revenues which the Local Governments have undertaken to provide with effect from the beginning of this year amount already to £78,000 a year.

"The recent measures for extending the interests and responsibilities of the Provincial Governments in respect to the financial administration, will doubtless give considerable relief to the Imperial Exchequer. This great reform is not yet complete, and its precise results cannot yet be stated, but it may be expected in all to improve the balance sheet by a sum not far from £400,000, and no portion of this sum is derived from fresh taxation. This is irrespective of the £330,000 which was the first-fruit of Lord Mayo's original measure; and thus we shall have gained, without imposing any fresh burdens on the country, a virtual addition of about three-quarters of a million to our annual resources. Your Lordship and the Council will agree with me in thinking it highly satisfactory that such important financial advantages should have been produced by a policy from which we anticipate a great increase of administrative efficiency.

"Before proceeding further, I wish to refer to suggestions which have been made in England, that, upon occasions of urgent need, assistance should be given to British India from the public resources of the United Kingdom.

"When the humanity of our countrymen at home prompts them to offer charitable assistance to their suffering fellow-subjects here in the time of their distress, we welcome the generous impulse, because such liberality must tend to unite the people of India to those of Great Britain by the bonds of gratitude. It will be interesting to the Council to know that, besides large charities distributed through private channels, the Madras Famine Committee has already received, in this way, no less a sum than £700,000, which is expected ultimately to be increased to nearly £750,000. Of the sum already received, £600,000 came from the United Kingdom, and £80,000 from British Colonies. The Indian subscriptions have amounted to £23,000. As Englishmen, we are proud of such splendid national generosity.

"But for my own part, I am not prepared to say that I should welcome as enthusiastically a grant from the British Exchequer in support of our burdened Revenues. I appreciate the kindly spirit which prompted the thought, but shall not be sorry if Her Majesty's Government do not see their way to propose any such assignment.

"I believe that India is well able to bear her own burdens, and we should not be wise so far to sacrifice her financial independence as to accept assistance even from England. National self-reliance is essential for national self-respect, and whatever differences of opinion there may be as to the best way of meeting our difficulties, there will, I am confident, be perfect unanimity that they must be borne by ourselves, and not by our neighbours. I concur, then, with those friends of India who, at home, have deprecated the grant of such assistance; and would rather urge that, in dealing with questions which arise when the separate pecuniary interests of the two countries come into apparent conflict, as, for instance, in apportioning the cost of the British Army between England and India,—England should be strictly just, may I not even say that she should be generous, to this comparatively poor country. India may claim such generous justice without sacrificing her national self-respect; and I venture to believe that she will not claim it in vain.

"I will not detain the Council by detailing the several methods of taxation which we have considered in our present need only to reject them. We have thought of taxes on tobacco, of succession duties, of taxes on marriage expenses, and of other taxes which I will not now enumerate. Some of these appear to me to be in themselves open to little objection, but none of them would give us the increased Revenue which we require, and the Government has felt that a time when we are proposing to place fresh burdens on the people is not opportune for trying new experiments in taxation.

"One Tax remains of which I must necessarily speak. I refer to the Income Tax.

"I said last March that when the Income Tax disappeared, I regretted its loss, but that the Government of India had entertained no thought of restoring it. In spite of all the rumours that we have heard, this is still true. I anticipate no great dissatisfaction at the announcement I now make of the decision of the Government, that the re-imposition of the Income Tax shall not now be proposed. It will not be necessary, I think, for me to enter at any length on the grounds for this decision. Although an Income Tax has been advocated in many quarters, the Government has not had any idea of adopting such advice. And for myself I will add, that though I was a supporter of that Tax while it remained in force, and though I am far from saying that circumstances may not hereafter arise which will justify or compel its restoration, yet I have not failed to recognize the fact that at the present time such a course would neither be politic nor just. I think, however, that it should be remembered, that if the measures which I am about to propose to the Council be not approved, an Income Tax is the sole alternative that remains. I at least can see no other. Much more than the sum which we now require has been raised before by an Income Tax, and there can be no question that this could be done again.

"I have already briefly stated to the Council the reasons which have led the Government to the opinion that at the beginning of the present famine we required an improvement of about £2,000,000 a year in our financial position—£1,500,000 on account of famine and £500,000 as a margin to meet ordinary contingencies. A few more words of explanation may, perhaps, usefully be added.

"The accounts of the actual Revenue and Expenditure of the Empire during the seven years ending with 1875-76 show that, excluding the cost of famine relief, we had just managed to pay our way. These results having been based on the actual accounts of seven years, are far more valuable than any which we could draw from an examination of the figures for any particular year; but the estimates for the current year, which I laid before the Council last March, illustrate the same fact, that before the commencement of the present famine, our finances might be considered to be nearly in a condition of equilibrium. The estimates showed that, putting aside expenditure on famine, we expected to end the year with a surplus of about £900,000. But of this sum, £520,000 was provided by the measures taken at the beginning of the year for increasing our income, so that if there had been no such measures, there would have been an apparent surplus of only about £400,000. The famine, however, will probably lead to a permanent addition of nearly £400,000 a year to our annual charges on account of interest on debt, so that the apparent surplus of £400,000 vanishes. This result, however, has still to be further modified if we seek to arrive at the balance between the present normal or average annual income and charge from the estimates of this single year. Correcting the figures by making allowances for receipts which do not constitute such normal income and payments not having a character of normal charge, we should arrive at a deficit of about a quarter of a million for the current year, instead of any surplus. These figures, based on the estimates of a single year, are not worth very much; but I think they serve usefully to illustrate the fact which I desire to make plain to the Council, that, apart from the measures taken in March last, our annual receipts were hardly sufficient to cover our expenditure.

"I will now explain what we have done already towards providing the £1,500,000 for famine, and what we propose to do hereafter.

"The measures of financial decentralization taken during the present year will, as I have stated to the Council, give, when they are complete, a relief of some £400,000 a year without any addition to the burdens of the people. Thus, out of the £1,500,000, we have already provided £400,000 in the most satisfactory way possible, and we have only to provide the remaining sum of £1,100,000. It being, in our judgment, impossible to obtain any substantial portion of this amount by other means, it had to be raised by fresh taxation. There has, however, already been imposed in the current year, by the measures taken last March, additional taxation to the extent of £300,000 in the Bengal Presidency. This was the only part of India with which we then could deal, because famine was raging in Madras and Bombay. Thus, there now only remains for us to provide on account of famine about £800,000 by new taxation. I will now tell the Council how it is proposed to obtain this money, first speaking of the measures contemplated for the Bengal Presidency.

"When I endeavoured to explain to the Council nine months ago the measures taken by the Government at the beginning of the present financial year, I pointed out that the essential principles underlying the whole of the changes of system then made were these: we asserted the necessity of enforcing, so far as this was practicable, the responsibility of every great Province of the Empire for meeting its own local wants; we gave to the Local Governments largely increased powers; we gave them, for the first time, a direct interest in the development of the Revenues, and we gave them, at the same time, strong incentives to economy. And among the responsibilities thus transferred to the Local Governments, we included one, perhaps, the greatest and the most important of all, that of providing the means of protecting the people of their own Provinces against famine, and of meeting, to the full extent of what was possible, the cost of relief when famine actually occurred. To this policy we firmly adhere. It has received the cordial approval of Her Majesty's Government in its main outlines, and through its extension and development it is that we propose to apply the measures we now contemplate.

"The measures and the changes of system which the adoption of such a policy involved, were too large and too numerous to be carried out all at once, and with famine over a great portion of Southern and Western India, very much had to be left undone which might otherwise have been undertaken. A great step, however, was made. Irrigation works and railways are the principal material means by which famine can be prevented and relieved. The Government of India declared that each Province must, to the utmost of its power, pay for works of this kind, undertaken for its own protection, and we have made fair progress in the actual enforcement of this rule.

"In Bengal and in the North-Western Provinces, the whole responsibility for the cost incurred in the past and to be incurred in the future, on the construction of canals and railways of provincial utility, was imposed on the Local Governments and accepted by them with thorough and loyal approval. In those Provinces, our measures, so far as they relate to the provision of means for meeting the cost of public works, have been already carried out, and the time is not distant when they will be everywhere in operation.

"To prevent or to mitigate the worst effects of drought and so to remove within certain limits the risk of famine, by the construction of canals and railways, is a comparatively easy task. It is mainly a question of money. To relieve famines when they have actually come upon us (and in the present condition of India their occurrence from time to time is inevitable) is far more difficult and far more costly. How difficult and costly it is, we have unfortunately had of late years ample experience.

"The necessity of localizing, so far as may be practicable, the responsibility of the people in every part of India for providing the means of their own support in time of scarcity has, as the Council is aware, been repeatedly urged by the Secretary of State and acknowledged by the Government of India. To use the words of a despatch from Lord Salisbury relating to the Bengal famine,—'While we fully admit the obligation which rests upon the State of preserving the lives of the people, it cannot be doubted that the primary responsibility for providing for their own support ought to rest upon the people themselves. The duty of the State does not extend further than to see that the needful means are supplied for giving effect to this principle, and for distributing the local burdens arising from its practical application in the manner which shall be most equitable, and least onerous to those who have to bear them.'

"This question of how local resources can best be made to meet local wants in time of famine, is obviously one of extreme difficulty. When I made my last Financial Statement, I said that the Government did not pretend to have solved it, and that we had, at best, only taken a step in the right direction by throwing upon each Province the responsibility for meeting the charges necessary for providing the public works required for the protection against famine of its own people. I said that we had thus given practical recognition to the principle on which the Secretary of State had insisted, and had obtained, to a certain extent, though far from completely, that safeguard for the Imperial Revenues which is so necessary. The Government has continued to give to this subject its anxious attention. The problem is still far from being fully solved, but I will now explain to the Council the further measures which we propose to take, by which, while re-affirming the principle of local responsibility, we hope, by degrees, to place the country in the best possible position to avert the extreme consequences of aggravated seasons of drought, while we obtain that safeguard for the Imperial Revenues of which I have just been speaking.

"If we were simply to lay down a rule that every Province shall meet, hereafter, from its own separate resources the cost of each particular famine by which it has been attacked, the rule would be one which it would be often impossible to enforce. What is necessary, therefore, is to establish some system of mutual assurance, as I may term it, under which all parts of the country, while primarily responsible for supplying the wants which arise within their own area, will contribute towards the relief of other parts on which famine may actually fall. In this spirit our present proposals are framed. Resources will be created from which the central authority will draw whatever sum is found to be requisite to discharge the obligations arising from what I may term the dead-weight of famine expenditure. We can hardly now anticipate that when this has been done our exigencies will be found to have left much margin; yet, so far as it may be obtained, the Provincial Governments will derive from it increased means for carrying out the new duties thrown upon them, of making financial provision for the works of improvement best suited to ward off the direct effects of scarcity, and dangers of ensuing famine.

"There is certainly no class in the whole community which might not equitably be made to contribute for such a purpose as this, and, if I were now advocating the imposition of a widespread Income Tax, from which no sort of property or income should escape, it would not be difficult to find excellent reasons for the proposal. The expediency or in expediency of an Income Tax is, however, a question which, as I have already said, I do not now think it necessary to discuss. It cannot, I think, be denied, even by the warmest supporters of such a tax, that there are, at the present time, special causes which would render its imposition undesirable, and the Government believes that the money which we want may be obtained with less objection in another way.

"When, in March last, the Government proposed to improve our financial position, it showed, by the measures which it introduced and which have since become law, that there were in its opinion two great classes of the community on which the duty of contributing for the prevention of famine more especially fell. The mere fact that the agricultural classes constitute by far the greater portion of the population, and, when famine occurs, form the great majority of those who require relief, is alone sufficient to show that these classes ought to pay their quota of the sum required for their own protection. To say that the people (to quote again the words of the Secretary of State) ought 'themselves to provide for their own support and well-being,' and then to say that the agricultural classes shall be exempted from payment, would be equivalent to saying that the principle laid down was to remain a dead letter. It would have really no meaning at all.

“The next very numerous class, although of course a small class compared to that of the agriculturists, is the class of traders and artisans. Although prosperous in ordinary times, this is a class on which, when famine occurs, pressure is the first to fall, and it ought to contribute for its own protection. Not only does it now contribute nothing for this purpose, but it is notorious that, throughout nearly the whole of India, although there is no class which benefits so greatly from our rule, there is none which bears so insignificant a share of the expenses of the State. Nor I think can we avoid the conclusion that there is hardly any part of India which does not in one shape or other, or at some time, either feel directly the pressure of the severe droughts to which the country as a whole is liable, or, by indirectly deriving benefits from the rise of prices consequent on local scarcity, does not render itself justly subject to contributing to the common insurance fund.

“The justice of imposing new burdens on the agricultural classes will possibly be more questioned than that of imposing them on the traders. I do not deny that there may be some parts of India where the land revenue is so high that it would be unwise to make fresh demands upon the land; but I confidently assert that this is not the case in those Provinces with which we are now proposing to deal. There is no greater, though no commoner, mistake than to suppose that, because the land in India yields two-fifths of the entire Revenues of the State, the part of the community that derives its support from agriculture contributes an unfairly large proportion of the public burdens. The ordinary misconceptions on this point arise from forgetfulness of the fact that the greater part of our land revenue is not taxation, but rent paid to the State as proprietor of the land, rent which, in European countries, would be absorbed by landlords with exclusive private rights of property, but which, in India, by immemorial custom, is enjoyed by the State as the sole proprietor, or as a joint proprietor with others. There are great differences of opinion among high economic authorities as to whether this state of things is good or bad; but such differences rather refer to its secondary results than to any question of the ultimate rights of property involved, which, like all other such rights, are essentially based on established custom. In my own belief, however, India is fortunate in deriving so large a portion of her Public Revenues from such a source. It spares her the necessity of heavy taxation, and, provided of course that we do not rack-rent the land, and provided that we give to private proprietors and tenants security of tenure and an ample and assured margin of profit, India will, I think, never regret the conditions under which her landed property is held.

“I am sure that there is no one in this Council who doubts the great and increasing prosperity of the agricultural classes in nearly all parts of Northern India, which I may speak of as the Bengal Presidency. I need not speak of the permanently-settled districts of Bengal proper, where the land revenue is so small that it has often become, I may say, without exaggeration, a hardly appreciable burden. In the temporarily-settled Provinces of Upper India, the revenue assessments were, even when they were originally made, almost everywhere moderate; and they have been made with an earnest and scrupulous desire to strengthen and preserve the rights of private property, to create a valuable property in the soil where none before existed, and to give to the agricultural classes, generally, security in their tenures and moderation in their rents.

“The demand of the State, which was originally light, has become far lighter since the settlements were made; pressure goes on diminishing as the country increases in prosperity. No class has benefited so immensely as the agricultural class from the great expenditure on the roads, railways, and canals, which have brought about a complete revolution in the condition of the country. As the Government of India wrote not long ago, communications of all kinds have been multiplied; markets have been created, enlarged, and rendered permanent; irrigation has ensured the produce and well-being of the people of wide tracts which in old times were periodically desolated by drought; prices at the same time have been continually rising, and, under our permanent or long settlements, the greater portion of the enhanced value of agricultural produce accrues to those who have an interest in the soil. There is certainly no reason, in the condition of the agricultural classes, why they should not bear their share of any necessary fresh taxation for the purpose of protecting themselves and the country against famine.

"It is quite certain, I may add—and this is practically one of the most important facts of all—that we could not raise the sum of money required unless we make the agricultural classes contribute. We might of course levy our taxation upon them in a different form. We might, for instance, make a general increase to the Salt Tax. But this is a measure which I do not propose to discuss, and the Government considers it altogether out of the question. Or we might, as I before said, impose an Income Tax to which agricultural, like all other incomes, would be liable. Anyhow, there can, in my opinion, be no doubt that, in some shape or other, the land ought to pay a portion of the new burdens.

"I am quite aware of the objections which have been, and will no doubt continue to be, urged against the imposition of fresh taxation on the class interested in the land. In respect to the permanently-settled districts of Bengal, as well as to the temporarily-settled districts of Northern India, we have, for many years past, been familiar with the claims which have been made to the effect that the settlement of the land revenue has debarred the State from imposing any additional burdens on the land. It was on this ground that the zamindárs of Bengal objected to the application of the Income Tax to their profits; it was on similar grounds that they objected to the local road cess which was imposed a few years ago, and to the new cess which has lately been introduced in furtherance of the policy of localizing the responsibility for meeting the cost of works required for the protection of the country against famine.

"There is certainly no question which has been more completely argued out than this, and I am sure that the Council will not wish me to enter again into any long discussion regarding it. These questions have not only been completely and repeatedly settled by the Government of India, but they have been finally closed by the distinct and positive decision of Her Majesty's Government. That decision has been declared to the effect that the State has an undoubted right to impose on persons in possession of incomes derived from land, taxation separate and distinct from the ordinary land revenue, in order to meet the natural growth of the public requirements, local or otherwise. 'The levying of such rates,' the Secretary of State wrote, 'upon the holders of land irrespective of the amount of their land assessment, involves no breach of faith upon the part of the Government, whether as regards holders of permanent or temporary tenures.' I may add that, in the present case, the essential conditions which were laid down by Her Majesty's Government when the Duke of Argyll was Secretary of State, regarding the circumstances in which such rates as these may properly be levied, are completely fulfilled, and it would be difficult to suggest any purpose for which they could be more equitably imposed.

"One of the main conditions laid down by Her Majesty's Government was this, that when rates of this kind are levied at all, they ought, as far as possible, to be levied not only on the agricultural but on other classes also.

"If time allowed I should like to read to the Council some remarks on this subject which were made by my distinguished predecessor, Sir William Muir, when he was Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces, in the debate in 1871, when the existing Local Rates Act became law. He was then justifying the imposition of local rates on the proprietors of land in the Benares districts, which are permanently settled, and he showed that this course was just, whether the revenue settlement was permanent or for a term of years, because other property than land was already taxed for similar purposes. He said that there were in the North-Western Provinces municipalities in all the large towns, and that they raised between them an income of some 17 lakhs of rupees a year. These municipalities defray the cost of their police, their roads, their drainage, and their sanitation, and they contribute for education, dispensaries, vaccination, poor-houses, &c. These obligations are precisely similar to those for which, under the existing law, rates are levied on the land, and Sir William Muir justly maintained that the condition laid down by the Secretary of State was thus substantially fulfilled, that such taxation as this, when levied at all, should be imposed 'upon all holders of property equally, without distinction and without exemption;' and 'for the future,' Sir William Muir said, 'no further taxation on the land would be justified unless some corresponding additional burden were placed on other property likewise.'

"While Sir William Muir urged very strongly and wisely the necessity of maintaining the inviolability of our Revenue settlements, and declared that it would be a breach of the engagements of the State to step in and say to the landholders, 'Because,' to use his words, 'your profits are greater than they need be, you shall pay an extra cess,' he no less distinctly affirmed the liability of the land to future additional taxation, provided that such taxation were imposed in just proportion to additional burdens upon other property.

"This is the principle we are now affirming by the Bills which I shall lay before the Council. We hold with Sir William Muir (and exactly the same may be said in regard to the other provinces of Northern India) that the previously existing rates on the land in the North-Western Provinces are compensated and made equitable by a corresponding rate levied upon other classes of property. And when, therefore, we now impose additional taxation upon the country, acting on this just principle, we propose to place upon the land an obligation equivalent, so far as may be, to that which other kinds of property will have to bear. The same rule will be applied to Bengal by the measures which my honourable friend the Lieutenant-Governor proposes to take. They will impose upon the non-agricultural classes, so far as this is practicable, rates which will correspond with the rates already levied from the land.

"The form of our proposed new taxation on the land in Northern India will be similar in principle to that lately adopted in Bengal. We shall simply make an addition to the local rates already levied.

"In the case of the taxation which we propose to levy on the commercial and industrial classes, the assumption, as I shall presently explain, is that, under no circumstances, can the burden imposed fall at a heavier rate than 2 per cent. on a man's profits. In the Bills which I am about to lay before the Council, we apply a corresponding rate to the agricultural classes; but, following the precedent of the old Income Tax, we do this in a manner which will really be, as a general rule, favourable to them. The settlements of the land revenue throughout Northern India are based on the assumption that the State is entitled to one-half of the rental of the land; but the proportion which the Government actually takes has notoriously, in the majority of cases, become smaller than this. The existing local rates in Northern India do not vary very greatly in the different Provinces. In the North-Western Provinces, which may be taken as representing the general case, the total amount of the rates levied for local purposes was 5 per cent. on the gross annual rental of the land, and to this amount we now propose to make an addition of 1 per cent. Thus, under the assumption which I have just stated, that one-half of the rental goes to the State, the maximum rate at which the new tax will fall upon net annual profits will be 2 per cent. The burden on the two great sections of the community will then be approximately equalized, and we shall maintain the principle on which so much stress has justly been laid by the Secretary of State.

"In considering the equity of levying fresh taxation from the agricultural and commercial classes for the special purpose of meeting expenditure on account of famine, there are other points which ought not to be left out of sight. The late famine in Madras and Bombay has given us an admirable illustration of the fact that, with our present excellent system of communications, which goes on improving almost from day to day, serious and widespread famine in one portion of the Empire brings wealth and prosperity to a very large section of the agricultural and commercial communities in other Provinces.

"India is so vast, and the physical characteristics of its Provinces are so diverse, that famine has never visited, and, we may reasonably hope, never will visit, the whole country at once. If famine prevails in Bengal and Bihar, there are bountiful harvests in Burma, Madras, and the Panjab. If crops fail in Madras and the Dekkhan, the surplus food of Bengal, and Central India, and the North-West is at once poured into the afflicted country. Even in a famine-stricken Province the irrigated lands furnish surplus food which the owners sell at a great profit.

"It has, I trust, now been accepted as one of the most certain and fundamental maxims of our policy in dealing with famine, that, except under circumstances the occurrence of which on a large scale is to the last degree improbable, the Government must abstain absolutely from all interference with trade, and that this is the only way in which we can feel confident that everything which it is possible to do to bring food to the starving population will be done. The Government of India has acted consistently upon this principle throughout the late famine. The result has been that, as the demand arose for an additional supply of food from without, the agriculturists and the traders of the most distant parts of the Empire, prompted by the hope of gain, hastened to pour their surplus stocks into the distressed Provinces of the south. Never in the history of India has such a spectacle been presented as that which we have seen during the last few months; railway stations in districts 2,000 miles away encumbered with grain awaiting the means of transport, and our ports filled with ships destined to bear to the starving millions the plenty of happier regions. My friend the Lieutenant-Governor will, I think, bear me out when I say that never has the Ganges or the port of Calcutta been the scene of such an active trade as it was during August and September last, when the grain traffic to Madras was at its height.

"There could hardly be a better illustration of the immense activity in the trade in grain during the late famine than that which is afforded by a comparison of the receipts on our Indian Railways during what I may call the famine year and the year which preceded it.

"The receipts on the whole of our Guaranteed and State Railways from 1st October 1875 to 30th September 1876 amounted to £8,700,000. In the corresponding period for 1876-77, they amounted to £12,000,000, and the increase has been spread over every one of the Lines without exception. I do not propose to dilate on the immense advantages which these Railways have conferred upon India during the late great calamity. This would be foreign to my present purpose. But having mentioned these Railways, I will ask you not to forget that at least four-fifths of the food imported into the famine country travelled over them, and I believe that the average journey made by each bag of grain was hardly less than 500 miles. When it is remembered that barely one quarter of this food could have reached the Famine Districts at all without the Railways, some idea may be formed of the millions of lives they have saved, and of the priceless boon they have conferred upon the country. A great Engineer, for whose services to India no one can have a higher esteem than I have, asserted, a short time ago, that the Railways were causing to India a loss of 3 millions a year. The facts that I have just given are a sufficient comment on such a statement, but it leads me to repeat, what I before mentioned, that we now have good grounds for hoping that the net earnings of our Railways during the year 1877 (including the receipts from the famine traffic) will suffice to pay the whole of the interest on the capital which has been expended on all the Guaranteed Railways, and that no burden on their account will be imposed on our Treasury.

"During the past year, more than a million-and-a-half tons of food have been carried into the famine districts from other parts of India. The profits on this great trade, after paying all expenses of carriage, have been estimated on what appear to be fair grounds at not less than 40 rupees a ton, and I believe that I am understating the fact if I estimate that the producing and trading classes have made a clear profit of 6 millions sterling on this business of supplying grain to the famine districts.

"Before leaving this part of my subject, I must add that, when the dark shadow of famine hung over the North-Western Provinces and the Panjáb in September last—a shadow which has been happily dispelled—there were many signs that all classes had learnt an important lesson from the history of 1877, and that they trusted the Government to act up to its avowed principles and leave the trade in grain unfettered. Not only traders, but people of all classes, rushed into the grain market and bought up food for future need or for future sale. In this way prices went up very suddenly, it is true; but high prices are, at such times, the salvation of a country. Consumption not essential is sternly checked, and the reduction of stocks is lessened, until the rise of prices, with the accompanying prospect of profits to producers and traders leads to importations from without. Such were the effects at the time to which I refer, and they supplied by a perfectly natural process the first precautions which were called for. I know how difficult and tedious a work it is to eradicate from the minds of men and of Governments, which, after all, consist of men, false economical beliefs, and I will venture on no prophecies in regard to the future. But I can, for my part, conceive no stronger evidence than that which the late famine has given us of the ruinous impolicy, at such times, of interference by Government with the operations of private trade. Happily for India, all proposals to depart from this principle were rejected, and the event has shown that the supply of food has never failed.

"It is true that, in one instance, the Government somewhat departed from its resolution to leave trade absolutely free. It gave the traffic in grain consigned to the famine districts preference over all other traffic on the Railways, and complaint has been made that injury was thus caused to the export trade of the port of Bombay. I do not think it necessary to defend this decision, and I think that all disinterested persons will say that, so long as there appeared imminent risk of multitudes of people starving if food were not sent to them, the Government was right in saying that consignments of grain should take precedence of consignments of other commodities. But I cannot doubt that the temporary falling off during the late famine in the export trade of Bombay was mainly, if not entirely, due to general, rather than to any special causes. It was inevitable that an almost complete failure of crops throughout a great portion of the Dekkhan and Mahratha country which usually sends its surplus produce to Bombay should have its effect in reducing the exports from that port. The trade reports received from Bombay entirely corroborate this view, and indicate that the same causes had a very general operation; so that, speaking for myself, on the information at my command, which is possibly imperfect, I am forced to the conclusion that if the Government had not interfered at all, the ultimate results would not have been materially different from those that actually happened. And I see in this a complete confirmation of the wisdom of the principle of non-interference we have adopted, and an encouragement for the future to leave it on all similar occasions to its fullest operation.

"Let me add that the export of wheat from India to Europe was, during the famine year, larger than ever. During the year ending 30th September 1876, 198,000 tons of wheat were exported, while, in the year ending 30th September 1877, the quantity amounted to 394,000 tons. In Southern India the great mass of the people never eat wheat at all. This explains why, notwithstanding the demand for food in the famine country, the export of wheat from India to Europe could, during the year just passed, become, without difficulty, twice as large as it ever was before. The export of rice to Europe, on the other hand, has decreased, for rice is one of the staple foods of the population of Southern India.

"I will not apologize for this long digression. I have thought it necessary to refer prominently to the question of non-interference with private trade in time of famine, because it has an intimate connection with my argument in favour of throwing upon the agricultural and commercial classes the chief responsibility for meeting the charges required for the protection of the country against famine, and because the wisdom of the policy of non-interference has, during the past year, been proved by facts which are absolutely irrefutable.

"I am told, on the highest authority, that never perhaps within the memory of man has there been seen in Bengal anything like the general prosperity which now prevails among almost all classes; and this prosperity has been immensely stimulated by the influx of money, and the great demands on the produce and industry of the Province which have arisen from the famine in Madras. Agriculture, trade, and the industrial arts have alike benefited. But it is not to be overlooked that there is one class which does not share in this general prosperity, or which shares very little in it, the class which depends on fixed incomes for its support, or whose incomes are little affected by competition: The small officials and others subsisting on wages the amount of which they are powerless to regulate, suffer in particular from the high prices which prevail, and which serve to enrich the producing and trading classes. There are, I think, other reasons which make it equitable that the obligation of providing for the relief of famine should fall as lightly as possible on the class of which I have just been speaking, and indeed on the professional classes generally. In times of serious famine no large proportion of these come upon the relief which the Government has to administer. The poorer field labourers in the villages, and the poorer members of the trading and industrial classes in the towns, are the first section of the population which suffers, and, even when famine is at its height, the mass of the people receiving relief are field labourers, petty ryots, and artisans. Very few priests, and lawyers, and schoolmasters, and people with fixed incomes, actually demand Government relief, although they may feel sorely the pressure of famine prices. This class with more or less fixed incomes, then, although we cannot relieve it, will have no fresh burdens imposed upon it by the measures which we now desire to take.

"The principle that it was on the agricultural and commercial and industrial classes that the main burden of providing for their own protection against famine must fall, was recognized and partially enforced by the legislative measures adopted at the beginning of the present financial year. So far as the agricultural classes are concerned, it was carried into effect in Bengal by the imposition of a cess upon land in order to enable the Government to meet the charges incurred on account of the Canals and Railways required for the protection of the Province against famine, and by making the demand in addition to the local rates it was shown clearly that the Government desired to enforce, and to bring home to the minds of the people, the special objects with which the new demand was made. The agricultural classes of Bengal are now paying about £280,000 a year for their protection against famine. The same principle was affirmed, although I can hardly say that practical effect has been given to it, in the North-Western Provinces, by the Act which was passed in March last (No. 7 of 1877) for enabling the Local Government to appropriate, on account of provincial Railways and Canals, a portion of the existing local rates upon land. That Act recognized the principle that the land throughout the whole Province ought to be made to contribute towards the prevention of Famine. The liability of the commercial classes to contribute for this purpose was, at the same time, declared in the North-Western Provinces by the License Tax upon trades which was imposed by Act 8 of 1877. In Bengal no similar law was enacted; but my Honourable friend the Lieutenant-Governor, when the land cess was under discussion in the Bengal Legislative Council, stated very plainly the probability that this measure would soon be followed up by a tax on the trading classes.

"We now propose to supplement the measures of March last. In Bengal we have got already our tax upon the land; we now desire to impose a corresponding tax on the commercial classes. In the North-Western Provinces we have got already a tax on the commercial classes; we propose to develop it and supplement it by a tax on the land. In the Panjáb, in Oudh, and in the other parts of India mentioned in the Bill which I am asking leave to introduce, there has been no fresh taxation; we now wish to impose similar new taxes in those Provinces, both on the commercial classes and on the land. The amount and incidence of these taxes must more or less vary according to the circumstances of different Provinces; but, if our measures receive the approval of the Council, the same principle will have been carried out in all parts of the Bengal Presidency.

"I shall not have to occupy much time in describing the details of the measures which we propose, for they are extremely simple. The License Tax introduced into the North-Western Provinces by Act 8 of 1877 has, so far as our short experience enables us to judge, worked very satisfactorily. It has given rise to no complaints of any importance, and, under the excellent administration of the Government of the North-Western Provinces and its officers, it promises, without the least pressure or harshness, to yield a good deal more revenue than was anticipated. We think, however, that the tax may be made more equitable and at the same time more profitable, by a few changes, and those changes are moreover necessary to make the tax in the North-Western Provinces harmonise with the measures which we shall have to take elsewhere. Under the existing Act, a simple rate of license fee is fixed for each trade without any reference to the extent of the transactions which may be carried on. Thus every one called a Banker pays 16 Rupees a year, whether he deals with millions or carries on the business of a petty money-lender. We now propose to revert to the form of the Licensing Bill originally introduced for the North-Western Provinces, and to adopt a graduated scale of assessment. Thus, for instance, traders in the first class of the Schedule will, as the Council will see, be divided into grades, the highest grade paying Rs. 200 a year, and the lowest grade one rupee. The sums levied will, in all cases, be so moderate that, even when mistakes are made in the assessment, no great hardship can occur. The Collector will usually have little difficulty, in practice, in making a classification of the traders in each class. There must of course be a good deal of inequality in all taxes of this kind, and they are always open to the objection that they press relatively less heavily on the richer than on the poorer classes. This is one of the penalties to which we have to submit as the price of our desire to avoid all inquisitorial proceedings, and of the determination to have no Income Tax. I need not describe the details of the fees proposed for each class. The Council will find them in the Schedule of the Bill. The highest amount which under any circumstances any individual or company can ever be called upon to pay annually will be Rs. 200. The lowest fee of all is one Rupee. These will be the maximum and minimum rates in every Province; but the details of classification will necessarily vary. The Schedule of the Bill has been prepared in communication with the Local Governments, but it is possible that alterations may be suggested before the Council is asked to pass the Bill into law.

"There is a provision in the Bill similar to that contained in the existing Licensing Act, to the effect that any person dissatisfied with the amount of the fee charged against him may claim to be placed in a lower grade, or be exempted from payment altogether, if he is able to produce evidence to satisfy the Collector that the amount demanded will fall at a rate exceeding 2 per cent. on his annual profits. This provision is a useful safeguard, although I do not suppose that it will be very often applied. Notwithstanding our determination to have no enquiries which would make the tax resemble an Income Tax, it is obviously necessary to have some test to which an appeal can be made if a dispute arises regarding the grade in which a man ought to be included. This test, however we may disguise the fact, must depend, in the last resort, on the amount of his estimated profits, and, provided that we confine the application of the test to those cases only in which a person considering himself aggrieved chooses to demand its application, and we leave to him the choice of the evidence by which his claim is to be supported, we reduce to a minimum the difficulties which we cannot avoid altogether. It will be the duty of the Local Governments, subject to the approval of the Government of India, to lay down rules for the guidance of the Collectors in regard to this matter. Subject to the same approval, it is proposed that the Local Governments shall define, according to the circumstances of each Province, the conditions under which persons shall be exempted altogether from the tax, on account of their poverty and presumed inability to pay, without hardship, even the lower rate of license.

"The Bills which I am about to ask leave to introduce are designed to carry out the plans which I have described, throughout the North-Western Provinces, Oudh, the Panjáb, and the Central Provinces. For the Central Provinces, however, legislation is only necessary in regard to the land. The new burden to be imposed on the commercial classes can be levied under the existing law by an addition which the Executive Government is empowered to make to the Pandharí Tax. This being an impost which has existed from time immemorial, it will be much better to make a moderate addition to it, and not introduce similar taxation in another form unfamiliar to the people. There are some other parts of India, and especially British Burma, in regard to which I cannot now make any announcement, because we have not been able to consult the local authorities as fully as we desire.

"In regard to the measures proposed for introducing the License Tax into Bengal, I will not speak in any detail, because those measures will be carried out by the Local Government. The Government of India has been in communication with the Lieutenant-Governor; and the two Governments are in complete accord. As, however, the public in this great Province will naturally be anxious to know something more on the subject, I will, with your Excellency's permission, ask His Honour to give to the Council a sketch of the plans which it is his intention to propose. I will only say, myself, that the measures taken in Bengal will be the same in principle as those described in the Bills for Northern India which I am now asking leave to introduce, and the maximum and minimum fees will also be the same.

"Thus far I have spoken only of the Provinces of the Bengal Presidency. Passing now to Madras and Bombay, I have to remark that it appears to the Government that, so far as the commercial classes are concerned, there are no reasons for applying to them a different rule to that which will be applied to the rest of India. We propose, therefore, that a License Tax, similar in principle and in amount to that which I have described, shall also be levied in those Presidencies. I am not now able to say anything of the details of the plans to be adopted, because our communications with the Local Governments on the subject are incomplete. It will probably be the wish of those Governments that the necessary measures should be taken by the Local Legislatures, and not by this Council.

"We do not, however, propose to levy in Madras and Bombay any new direct taxation on the agricultural community, similar to that which has been proposed, and to a great extent already carried out, in the Bengal Presidency. I will state to the Council the reasons for this determination.

"But before I do this, it will be convenient if I indicate the financial results of the measures which I have been explaining. I am not able at the present time to give an estimate which would show in detail, with any accuracy, the amount which our new taxes will yield. I have, however, endeavoured, by a careful examination of all accessible facts, and especially of the statistics of the old License, and Certificate, and Income Taxes imposed at various times, to form as correct a judgment on this point as possible. My conclusion is that the new taxes may be expected to yield for the whole of India something short of £800,000 a year.

"I have already shown to the Council that at the beginning of the present year new taxes to the amount of about £325,000 were imposed. Thus the total addition made to our Revenue by new taxation since the commencement of the year will be about £1,100,000.

"I have also shown that the new arrangements under which the responsibilities of the Local Governments have been extended will give, without imposing any new burdens on the country, financial relief to the extent of nearly £400,000 a year. We shall thus provide the whole sum of £1,500,000 by which our position has to be improved, to enable us to make due provision for the prevention and relief of famine.

"After, however, all this has been done, there will not remain that margin of Income over Expenditure which, as I reminded the Council, is necessary to enable us to meet those contingencies which cannot be foreseen, but which are certain to occur. Independently of famine charges on the one hand, and of the improvement in our Revenues lately made, or now proposed, on the other hand, my conclusion was that our income, at the time which I have taken as our starting point, could not be regarded as supplying any surplus, and that there was reason to think that the balance was rather in the other direction. I said, following the views expressed by the Secretary of State, that the very smallest sum which we ought to provide in our estimates on this account as a surplus was £500,000 a year. We have still, therefore, at least this sum to make good. I will now explain the manner in which we think that this should be done, and in so doing I shall complete what has to be said regarding Madras and Bombay.

"When I made my Financial Statement, I spoke at some length on the urgent necessity for carrying into effect, with the least possible delay, a great measure of fiscal and administrative reform; perhaps the greatest reform of the kind that remains to be accomplished in India. I mean the equalisation of the Salt Duties, and the abolition of the Inland Customs line, and with it of the transit duties on Sugar, the produce of our own territories. I will not dilate on these barbarous imposts. "Non ragioniam di lor, ma guarda e passa." In order to bring under taxation the salt imported from Rájputána into Northern India, and to shut out salt taxed at a lower rate, this vast system of Inland Customs Lines "stretches its length, accursed of gods and men," some two thousand miles across the whole breadth of India. Committing, as I afterwards found, an unconscious plagiarism from Mr. Grant Duff, I described to the Council this huge barrier, which would reach from London to Constantinople, as comparable to nothing that can be named in the world except the great wall of China; a great impenetrable hedge of thorny trees, and evil plants, and stone walls, and ditches through which no man or beast can pass without being stopped and searched. Eight thousand men guard this unspeakable barrier. I have poured forth in times past such constant indignation against this abominable system, that it is difficult for me to find new terms of opprobrium. I now see, I think, the time at hand when we shall strive to banish from our recollection this anachronism and disgrace to British rule, and, if I may come back to my Poet, say of all these things "Fama di loro il mondo esser non lassa."

"To get rid of these Inland Customs Lines, two things are necessary. We have to enter into arrangements with the Native States of Rájputána, which will enable us to levy our duties at the places of production, and we have to remove the great inequalities in the rates at which salt is taxed in different parts of India. Our negotiations with the Native States of Rájputána are not completed, but they are in active progress, and there is no doubt that they will, before long, be brought to a satisfactory conclusion. There will then remain the equalisation of the duties, which now vary from 1 rupee 13 annas a maund (82 lbs.) in Madras and Bombay, to 3 rupees a maund in Northern India, and 3 rupees 4 annas a maund in Bengal. As I stated to the Council in March, the Government of India has, for many years past, never lost sight of this question, and important and effectual measures were adopted by Lord Mayo and by Lord Northbrook towards the removal of the great evils which I have been describing. But for the steps which they took, the completion of our task would not now have been brought so nearly within our reach.

"Although the necessity for equalising the Salt duties has so long been recognised by the Government of India and by Her Majesty's Government, action has been till now in great degree prevented by the anxious desire that the object in view should be at least partially effected by a reduction of the Salt duties in the Bengal Presidency, and not only by an increase of those in Madras and Bombay. The state of our Finances has never in the past permitted, still less does it now permit, the sacrifice of Revenue which a simple measure of reduction would have involved. I said in March last that if it had been possible we should have been glad to see the rates of duties on this side of India reduced immediately to those in force in Madras and Bombay, but that I feared it would be found financially impossible to bring about the equalisation in this manner, and that we must in the first instance, and at least temporarily, increase the lower duties without reducing the higher to the full extent ultimately desired. Unfortunately, our financial difficulties continue, and although I still look forward hopefully to the time when we shall be able to relieve the people of the Bengal Presidency from the high Salt Duties which they have now to pay, it is clear that under present circumstances we can do this only to a limited extent. The object at which we aim is, as I have said before, to give to the people throughout India the means of obtaining, with the least possible inconvenience, and at the cheapest rate consistent with financial necessities, a supply of salt, the quantity of which shall be limited only by the capacity of the people for consumption.

"It is calculated that a general rate of about two rupees eight annas a maund throughout the whole of India would be necessary to produce an amount equal to the Salt Revenue which we now obtain, and whatever may be our anticipations for the future, we cannot now propose any measures which would reduce the total amount which the Salt Duties yield. For the present, therefore, what we aim at is such a general rate of two rupees eight annas a maund, or one anna a seer. This is something less than three farthings a pound, and it is not more than one-half of the duty levied on salt in France in 1876. The prospect of arriving at a lower rate than this is now too remote to be taken into practical consideration. The step we now propose, then, is an increase of the Salt Duties in Madras and Bombay to the extent I have named.

"A year ago the Government hoped to have soon carried out these measures for abolishing the Inland Customs line and equalising the Salt Duties; but the Famine made this impossible.

"It is true that the increase of annual taxation involved by raising the Salt Duty in Southern India to two rupees eight annas a maund would only be about two pence a head, and for the poorer classes the annual additional charge would be even less. It is true, also, that payment of the tax is distributed over the year by almost daily instalments, each of them infinitesimally small. It is also true that in the years 1859, 1860, and 1861, the Salt Duty was raised in Bengal by twelve annas a maund, and in the Upper Provinces by one rupee a maund, not only without occasioning discontent or reducing consumption, but that these measures hardly even attracted attention. The Government felt, however, that the objections to increasing the price of salt at a time of serious famine were insuperable.

"We were therefore then obliged to postpone this great reform. But the question has now been again forced on the consideration of the Government, by the necessity of providing means for meeting the great expenditure incurred in the past, and to be incurred in the future, for the prevention and relief of famine. The Presidencies of Madras and Bombay must of course bear their share of the common burden. There are no reasons of principle why taxes similar to those which we are proposing to levy in the Bengal Presidency should not also be imposed in Madras and Bombay; and, if we were now to levy those taxes, both on the commercial and on the agricultural classes, in those Presidencies, and, having done this, we were to equalise the Salt duties, it could hardly be said that we were doing anything unjust. It might be urged that there is no reason why the people of Southern and Western India, who in ordinary times are at least as prosperous as those of Bengal, should pay a lower duty on their salt, and it might be said that the existing inequality is aggravated by the fact that owing to the greater proximity of its sources of supply, salt in Madras and Bombay would, if the duty were everywhere the same, be, as a rule, considerably cheaper than in Bengal. We might be told that the necessity of increasing the Salt Duties in Madras and Bombay had been admitted and virtually resolved upon by the Government of India and by Her Majesty's Government long before any of these Famine questions arose, and that we ought not now to take into consideration the equalization of these duties in determining what amount of new taxes Madras and Bombay ought to pay on account of famine expenditure. The Government of India has decided otherwise. While it admits the necessity of making the burden of taxation as equal as possible in the different Provinces of the Empire, it does not think that it would now be right to impose fresh direct taxation on the agricultural classes in Madras and Bombay, and then make an increased demand upon them for the purpose of equalizing the Salt Duties throughout India. It is on these classes that an increase in the tax on salt will mainly fall, and, considering that these also are the classes which have had to bear the severest pressure of famine, the Government does not think that it would be expedient to levy upon them, at any rate at the present time, additional taxes similar to those which we are proposing to levy in the Bengal Presidency. Nor can we neglect the consideration of the fact that, in some parts of the Bombay Presidency, the land revenue is already so high that it would be a measure of very doubtful expediency to impose new direct taxation affecting the classes interested in the land. The Government has therefore decided that the increase of Revenue which it will derive from raising the Salt Duties in Madras and Bombay shall be held to obviate the necessity of imposing new direct taxation on the land.

"We had feared that, while raising the Salt Duties in those Presidencies to two rupees eight annas per maund, and foregoing the fresh taxation which will be imposed in the Bengal Presidency, the state of our finances would not permit of any reduction being made in the Salt Duties of Bengal and Upper India. We find that we cannot safely estimate for a greater sum than £500,000 from the enhancement in Madras and Bombay. We are, however, most anxious to give an earnest of the sincerity of our determination to carry out the great policy which the Government of India and Her Majesty's Government have affirmed. That policy, as I have already said, aims at giving to the people throughout India an unlimited supply of salt at the cheapest possible cost. We desire to show that our main object in increasing the Madras and Bombay Salt tax is not the immediate profit to be derived from the measure. We have therefore determined to devote £200,000 out of the £500,000 to the reduction of the Salt Duties in Bengal and the Upper Provinces. We propose to reduce the Bengal rate by two annas, and that of the Upper Provinces by four annas a maund, and thus, while enhancing the cost of salt to some 47 millions of our subjects, to do something towards cheapening it to some 130 millions.

"With the small difference of four annas per maund duty in Bombay and the Central Provinces, we are enabled, without risk, to abolish the mileage rates now levied on all salt imported by the Great Indian Peninsula Railway to the Central Provinces and Berar. These mileage duties, while necessitating the entertainment of customs establishments on the Railway to supervise the weighing and loading of every pound of salt put into the wagons, have the economic fault of enhancing the duties on the salt in direct proportion to the distance they are carried from the place of production, so that where salt is naturally dearest, it has to pay the highest duty. The effect of the abolition of this duty must be to stimulate the salt trade from Bombay by removing all restrictions and interference from it, while a sensible relief will be given to those of our subjects to whom salt is now dearer than anywhere in India.

"Notwithstanding its anxious desire to carry into effect this great measure of reform with the least possible delay, the Government of India felt that it still remained a serious question whether it was right, at the present time, when the distress which has fallen upon the people of Southern and Western India has hardly passed away, to adopt a measure which would increase, even in the smallest degree, the price of one of the first necessities of life.

"We felt that we exposed ourselves to the risk of misconception and misrepresentation; and that although it was true that the additional burden thrown on the peasant of Madras could not exceed more than a few pence a year for himself and his family, it would be thought that the time was not opportune for making any increase at all to the price of salt. The Government, however, considered that it would not be satisfactory, if it were compelled to confine the announcement of the measures which it proposed to take, to those only which were to be applied in the Bengal Presidency. It was obviously impossible to give any public notice beforehand of the intention of the Government to alter the rates of the duty upon Salt. Serious loss of Revenue and serious disturbance of trade would have been the inevitable result. When we alter duties like these, it is essential that the necessary measures should be passed through the Council at a single sitting. We might of course have postponed giving any information regarding the new taxation in Madras and Bombay; but my Statement would then have been incomplete, and doubt and excitement would have continued to exist regarding the measures to be taken in those Presidencies. We thought it right to leave to the decision of the Government of Madras the question whether the necessary steps should be taken contemporaneously with those in other Provinces; and whether, the eventual increase of the Salt Duties in that Presidency being inevitable, it could give its approval and support to their immediate adoption, or whether that Government saw valid reasons for delaying action for a few months. The decision of the Government of Madras was communicated to the Government of India in these terms, that the eventual increase being decided on, they were of opinion that the change should be simultaneous, universal, and prompt, and that there was no sufficient reason for, nor any benefit from, a few months' delay. The Government of Bombay has given its cordial approval of the measures which the Government of India has proposed to apply to that Presidency, and has concurred in the opinion that the increase in the Salt Duties should take place at once. The Government of India feels no doubt that the Local Governments are right; and, fortified by the decided opinions which they have expressed, it has resolved to ask the Council to pass at once into law the Bill for increasing the Salt Duties in Madras and Bombay which the Hon'ble Mr. Hope is about on my behalf to ask leave to introduce.

"The objections felt to dealing with these duties at the beginning of the financial year would no doubt have been almost entirely sentimental, though they would not on that account have been less real or serious; and this is a truth of which we now have direct evidence of fact, in an ascertained large increase of consumption, both in Madras and Bombay, during the past eight months of very exceptional difficulty through which the population has had to pass. In no equal period of any previous year has the consumption of salt been so large in those Presidencies.

"In regard to the reduction of the duties proposed in the Bengal Presidency, the Government possesses, under the existing law, full power to do, by executive order, all that is required. If, therefore, the Council should approve the measures suggested for Madras and Bombay, no further legislative action will be necessary.

"From these explanations it will be seen that a sum of £300,000 will be provided from the increased Salt Duties, in aid of the addition to the Revenue I had shown to be still requisite to make it up to the amount that should furnish the surplus of £500,000 deemed necessary.

"But it will at the same time be perceived that, as the avowed policy of the Government is to equalize the Salt Duties by the reduction of these duties in the Bengal Presidency, this last named addition of £300,000 will not constitute a permanent item of Revenue. On the contrary, it is our intention, as soon as the improved position of the country will admit, to carry out the long deferred equalization of these duties, which will involve the sacrifice of the temporary increase of income which our present needs will not permit us to forego.

"It might thus appear that there still remains an uncovered deficiency for which no permanent provision has been made. The Council, however, will bear in mind that it has been established, I think beyond reasonable doubt, not only to my own satisfaction, but also to that of my predecessors in office, that we may rely on a steady increase to the general Revenues; and we have felt that it would not be right, when proposing fresh taxation, to neglect this aspect of the case. We have consequently determined to accept this normal growth of our income as a sufficient security for making good the £200,000 which would still be required to complete the desired surplus of £500,000, and as affording a probable means of accomplishing the complete equalization of the Salt Duties, and other desirable fiscal reforms, at no distant future. We are strengthened in this hope by the circumstance that our estimates of the produce of our new taxes have been prudently framed; but after all we have only estimates on which to work, and we must not disguise the fact that should our anticipations of our position at the end of the present financial year be disappointed, we may again have to come to the Council to ask for further aid in completing the task we have in hand, a task than which no weightier one ever rested on the Government of India.

"I have now, my Lord, finished my special task, and I will add only a few words of a more general character. The objects of the Government, it will have been gathered, are twofold, first, to obtain that addition to the public income which experience shows to be required to meet the charges that arise, directly or indirectly, in a series of years, by reason of scarcity and famine; and second, to secure a proper margin of ordinary surplus to meet those unforeseen irregularities in the Revenue and Expenditure, which necessarily lead to differences between the estimates of the year and the actual accounts.

"As to the first of these objects, I desire to say that the recognition by the Government of this new obligation, implies no suggestion of diminished public wealth or a decaying revenue. Rather, the very contrary is true, and it is the stronger perception of the generally advancing condition of the community, and of its requirements and capacities, that has induced this movement. It is the firm intention of the present Government to apply the funds now to be provided for this special purpose, strictly to the exclusive objects which they were designed to secure. In such matters, no doubt, Governments cannot fetter their successors, and nothing that we could now say or do would prevent the application of this fund to other purposes. Without thinking of a future far removed from us, events might of course happen which would render it impracticable even for us, who have designed these measures, to maintain our present resolutions.

“So far, however, as we can now speak for the future, the Government of India intends to keep this million and a half as an insurance against Famine alone. In saying this I should explain that we do not contemplate the constitution of any separate statutory fund, as such a course would be attended with many useless and inconvenient complications, without giving any real security. Unless, then, it should be proved hereafter by experience that the annual appropriation of a smaller sum from our Revenues will give to the country the protection which it requires, we consider that the estimates of every year ought to make provision for religiously applying the sum I have mentioned to this sole purpose, and I hope that no desire to carry out any administrative improvement, however urgent, or any fiscal reform, however wise, will tempt the Government to neglect this sacred trust.

“The second of our objects, the maintenance of a substantial surplus, not liable to be found imaginary when our year's transactions are completed, we regard as the means for securing that continued amelioration of our fiscal and administrative systems, without which no true progress or real economy is

I will only further detain the Council to say that, if one fact has been more certainly established by experience than another, it is this, that, in carrying out really effectual and satisfactory measures of relief in time of famine, sound principles and good administration are far more important and far more efficient agents than the lavish expenditure of money. It would be easy to show that, during the late famine, the districts in which we find false principles, bad supervision leading to every sort of dishonesty and speculation, and reckless waste of the public funds, are the very places where the extremity of suffering has been reached and lamentable loss of life has occurred. On the other hand, in districts where the failure of the crops was quite as complete, and the difficulty of saving the people from starvation was as great, it has been shown that sound principles and good administration can make wise economy compatible with the most efficient system of relief. It is a truth which cannot be too distinctly recognized by the Government and by the Public, that it is not only by the expenditure of money, or by merely material means, by Railways, roads, and works of irrigation, that we can protect the people against famine; but that much progress in their social condition and increase of wealth, as well as improvements in the every-day administration of the country, are also conditions which must be fulfilled before complete and permanent protection against famine can be obtained. To fulfil these conditions a thoroughly sound financial position is an essential preliminary, and it is this that we seek to establish.”

His Honour THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR said:—“My Lord, I have been invited by my hon'ble friend, Sir John Strachey, to explain the measures which it is proposed to adopt in Bengal with a view of carrying out the policy of the Government of India which he has just declared, and I will endeavour to do so as briefly as the circumstances will permit.

“I think it must have been generally anticipated, even before my friend made his able and comprehensive exposition of the present financial position of Government, that it was quite impossible that the administration of the country could be carried on without some increase of taxation.

“If only the country could be secured for a few years from famine, war, or other calamity, the finances of India would evidently be in a most flourishing condition. But such extraordinary calls as have been made upon it in the last few years to meet the expenditure of recurring famines, have plunged the country into difficulties from which it can only be relieved by such measures as shall provide a very considerable increase of revenue to the Imperial Government.

"I may, I think, say for the people of Bengal, that they have for some time past been prepared for a demand to bear, in common with the other provinces of the Empire, their share of the cost of meeting these extraordinary charges; and I feel that they will cheerfully accept the requisition which I shall be compelled to make upon them. I am sure that the action of the Government of India, in determining to save the lives of the people at any cost which it was possible for the country to bear, has the entire concurrence of the people of Bengal. In the early stages of the famine at Madras, many influential and leading men of the country expressed a wish that everything which could be done with this object should be done, and that the cost should be subsequently raised from them by taxation fairly distributed.

"I have under these circumstances felt no hesitation in expressing my readiness to accept the burden which it is proposed to throw on Bengal as its contribution towards the expenses of famine-relief, and I feel that I shall have the support of the Local Council and the public in the measures which I shall be compelled to lay before that Council in a few days to meet the call which has been made upon me.

"I should not, however, be dealing frankly with your Lordship if I did not say that the expressions which I have heard of the readiness of the people of Bengal to bear their share of the cost of famine have been qualified by a strong wish that, before imposing fresh taxation, the Government of India should thoroughly analyze the increasing charges of the Army with a view of applying to that branch of the public service the same rigid economy that has been applied to other branches of the service. I am not in a position to say how far this wish is reasonable, or how far compliance with it is possible; but I feel it my duty to say that I know it is a subject which is very much occupying the mind of educated Native gentlemen in connection with the question of fresh taxation, and that considerable agitation of the subject is going on. And it is therefore with sincere pleasure that I have heard that the question is receiving full consideration from the Government.

"I have much pleasure in saying that the general effect of the decentralization-system, in respect to the facilities which it has given to provincial administration, has been thoroughly satisfactory. In making the Local Governments responsible for expenditure, and giving them a direct interest in the development of various branches of the revenue, it has secured a careful scrutiny over the expenditure of all departments, and a deep interest in all improvable heads of revenue, which has extended to all grades of the service. District officers understand that the provincial Government cannot devote money to new works and schemes without an improving revenue, and they have cordially and loyally co-operated with the Government in suggesting such measures as appear likely to beneficially affect the revenue.

"The Local Government has been able, since the first introduction of the system in 1870-71, to carry out many measures of improvement on its own responsibility, which would, before the introduction of this system, have had to wait upon the requirements of other provinces. All friction with the Imperial Government has been obviated and much useless correspondence avoided.

"I think that, in adjusting taxation to the special circumstances of each province, and equalizing as far as possible the relative incidence of taxation upon the various classes of the community, leaving the details to be settled by the Local Government, the Government has acted most wisely. The circumstances and condition of the various provinces are very different, and the incidence of present taxation is also very different in one part of the country to what it is in another. It is, as has just been explained, proposed to levy in the North-Western Provinces a cess upon the land, while last year the deficiency of revenue was there made up by a license-tax on trades. But in Bengal we have already, in the last few years, imposed upon the land a charge of £600,000, of which £300,000 has been assigned to the Imperial Government as a permanent contribution, while our trading community has been left perfectly free of taxation. Though, therefore, I admit it is just and reasonable that the landed interest should, as in the North-Western Provinces, be called upon to share with the trading classes the incidence of taxation, I feel that it is quite impossible at the present time to ask the landed interests and the agricultural population of Bengal to pay anything further; and feel, in common with nearly all the officials throughout the country who have been consulted on the subject, that the time has come when the trading and artizan classes should be called upon to bear their share of taxation from which they have hitherto been free.

"It may perhaps be considered right that I should take this opportunity of stating formally to the Council the measure which I propose to submit, under the sanction which I have received from your Excellency's Government, for the consideration of the Bengal Legislative Council, in order that I may be in a position to comply with the requirements of the Imperial Government.

"Last year, when introducing the public works cess on land, I observed that there appeared to be a very general opinion that something should be done to throw a portion of the incidence of taxation upon the non-agricultural classes. Time did not then admit of the elaboration of any measure for the purpose, but I promised that I would consult with the Commissioners of Divisions in Bengal, and would watch the working of the new license-tax in the North-Western Provinces with a view of considering whether we could not shift some portion of the burthen of fresh taxation upon classes not interested in the land.

"The result of the reference to Commissioners and local officers was to show that there is a large preponderance of opinion in favour of the feasibility of introducing and working a license-tax of the kind proposed. The events of the past year have, however, made it clear that, so far from our being able to relieve the classes interested in land by transferring a portion of their burden to the classes engaged in trade and commerce, we shall require, not only all that we now draw from the provincial public works cess, but a very considerable additional income to enable us to meet the liabilities which the supreme Government is compelled to impose upon us. The amount that we are now required to find to enable the Imperial Government to meet famine-expenditure is thirty lakhs of rupees nett; and we must therefore raise a sum of money sufficient to cover all costs of collection and to save us all risk of inability to meet the unpaid demand.

"With the approval of the Government of India, it has been determined to raise a sum estimated on this basis by a tax upon trades, dealings and industries throughout the Lower Provinces. Looking to the sums paid by the landed classes and the cultivators under the Road Cess and Public Works Cess Acts, it is clear that this is not too large a demand to make upon the commercial and industrial wealth of this great province. During the last few years Bengal has advanced rapidly in wealth. Its trade has received large developments, having profited generally by the misfortunes of other provinces, and by the gradual improvement of the agricultural classes at home. Its people are, on the whole, the most lightly taxed in all India.

"It having, then, been determined to levy a tax of this amount upon trade and commerce and industries other than agriculture, the question remained what shape the tax should take—should the money required be raised by imposing substantial rates upon the wealthier members of the trading and industrial classes, or by imposing a light general tax upon every class of trade and industry, or by a combination of those measures? To enable us to decide this point, the records of former taxes upon trade and industries were carefully scrutinized.

"We have most carefully examined the statistics of the various license-taxes, certificate-taxes, and income-taxes passed or proposed and discussed since 1861, and have endeavoured to apply the facts thus gleaned in such a manner as to be able to form a very rough approximate estimate of the yield of the modified license-tax which we now propose. On the whole, the conclusion which we came to on a review of the foregoing and other available facts, was that, if we levied a license-tax upon trade and industrial incomes of Rs. 200 and upwards, at the rates adopted in the Certificate Tax Act of 1868, we could not hope to realize much more than fifteen lakhs of rupees in all Bengal. There was, moreover, this objection to any tax based on the model of the Certificate Act, that it was after all a tax regulated directly by reference to income, and that in the higher classes the rates were too high for a mere license-tax.

"The fact that India is, after all, a country where the number of wealthy men is very limited, must always be borne in mind when considering questions of taxation. Any tax, therefore, which is to be largely productive must be assessed on a very large number of people, and it is quite impossible to hope that we can raise all we want by a tax, however heavy, to be levied on only the wealthiest traders. We want to make all classes pay their fair share of taxation. We have, in respect to the land-cess, levied it from every class of raiyat, and the tax on trades and industries should follow the same lines as far as possible. The classes who suffer most when famine occurs should certainly contribute something in seasons of prosperity to funds raised for purposes of enabling the Government to meet famines.

"It was resolved, therefore, that the tax should take the shape of a license-tax, of which the maximum rate should be Rs. 200, and that maximum to be only leviable upon joint-stock companies and a few of the very largest traders and bankers. Substantial traders of a lower class will be taxed at the rates of Rs. 100, Rs. 32 and Rs. 10, while small traders and artisans will pay Rs. 4, Rs. 2 or Re. 1, according to their means.

"In the town of Calcutta a license-tax is already imposed on "Professions, Trades, and Callings" in manner set out in the third schedule of Act IV (B.C.) of 1876. Under that schedule Rs. 2,51,000 are annually collected for municipal purposes. It appeared that, with certain exceptions, the rates therein set forth would be suitable rates to impose for the purposes of a provincial license-tax in the town of Calcutta, so far as the classes specified in that schedule were concerned. It is obviously very desirable to extend existing forms of taxation where they exist, and are capable of adaptation, rather than impose new taxes; and though it may involve some loss of money, we have determined to apply to Calcutta its present form of municipal license-tax, rather than introduce a new tax, with a new assessment and a fresh collecting and assessing machinery. In Calcutta it is not proposed to exempt any of the classes mentioned in the schedule of the Municipal Act. Calcutta has specially benefited by the growth of trade, and its professional men have specially shared in the general prosperity of the place. The tax is so small that I am sure they will gladly accept it as a most beneficial substitute for the income-tax with which my hon'ble friend has just threatened us.

"The only addition to the existing license-tax is that joint-stock companies and wholesale dealers shall pay a license-fee of Rs. 200, and that wholesale brokers shall pay a license-fee of Rs. 100 per annum: and further, some of the classes of artisans and mechanics who will be subject to taxation in the interior will also be subject to the license-tax in Calcutta.

"It has been decided that, after an estimate has been made of the probable proceeds of a license-tax, such as that above described, within the municipal limits of Calcutta, the Municipality should be required to contract for the payment to Government of a fixed annual sum, such as would leave the town a fair margin for cost of collection and to cover all risks.

"For the interior of Bengal I propose to ask the Local Council to pass a License Tax Act under which the highest rate levied upon a joint-stock company or any wholesale dealer will be Rs. 200. The license-fee upon other classes will be graduated in a few clear and distinct grades down to one rupee. The rates, while we hope they will be very productive, will, it is believed, fall very lightly indeed upon any class; and the various grades will be capable of easy classification without any direct reference to income or any sort of inquisitorial proceeding on the part of assessors.

"It has further been decided that the house-cess under Act X (B.C.) of 1871 and Act II (B.C.) of 1877 should be remitted in the case of those paying license-tax. The house-cess was made a part of the Road Cess Act in order to compel traders and professional persons in the interior, living outside municipal limits, to contribute, along with the cultivating classes, for the purposes of that Act. It brings in very little at present (only about 1½ lakhs for all Bengal), and is very unpopular with the officials and the public. Under the Provincial Public Works Act, the house-cess is again levied on the same classes at maximum rates. The license-tax will fall on precisely the same class of persons as pay house-cess under the two Acts last mentioned, and it would be felt as a very great hardship if they had to pay tax three times over—first for local purposes, then for provincial purposes, and lastly for imperial purposes. It is best to remit the house-cess altogether, and to levy one tax only on trades and industries. The loss to district road committees will be comparatively trivial, and will, if necessary, be recouped to them, and the provincial finances will probably not suffer at all in the end.

“The Local Government is well aware that, in proposing to levy a direct tax of this kind upon such a large body of people, it is undertaking a task of great magnitude. But the circumstances of the country render the levy of this amount of taxation imperative, and I believe the necessary amount could not be raised in any less objectionable manner.

“I have heard with great satisfaction the announcement that it is the intention of the Government of India to take measures to equalise to some extent the duties on salt throughout India, and though I should not have advocated in itself a decrease in the salt-duty levied in Bengal, which is a very popular form of taxation, I am glad that the measure of equalisation should have resulted in a diminution of the rate of duty in Bengal, at a time when we are imposing such a heavy burthen on the people in other respects, though I cannot help feeling that it is a sacrifice of revenue in concession to theory which would afford no real relief to the people.”

HIS EXCELLENCY THE PRESIDENT—“I am reluctant to prolong the proceedings of the Council at this comparatively late hour; but the general importance of those explanations with which I desire to accompany the questions now before me, will, I trust, be my sufficient justification for making a further appeal to the attention of Hon’ble Members.

“After the statements made to-day by my Honorable Colleague, Sir John Strachey, and my honorable friend, the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, I need not now refer in any detail to the principal measures which the Government of India, reviewing all the present circumstances and prospects of the Empire, has deemed necessary for giving to our financial position the additional strength it undoubtedly requires. But I desire to explain how we propose to employ the money now asked for, and also to add emphasis to the statements of my Hon’ble Colleague as to the fundamental idea which underlies the present financial policy of the Government. Guided by this idea, we are resolved to seek the support we require through an extension of the responsibilities and resources of the local Governments, rather than from any mere addition to the machinery or revenues of the central authority. We are convinced that the coherent development of this multiform Empire can only be secured by gradually enlarging those local foundations which sustain the widespread fabric of the State, and stimulating throughout all parts of its complex administrative structure the free play of a healthy spirit of self-reliance and mutual support.

“For this reason, the Government of India is determined not to deviate from the course on which it entered at the commencement of the present financial year. That course has been cordially encouraged by Her Majesty’s Government; and we have the best reason to believe that it has approved itself to all the local Governments whose intelligent co-operation ensures the successful prosecution of it. The statement made by Sir John Strachey will, I trust, have satisfied the Council that the additional revenue now required by the Government, and the increased burdens which must consequently be borne by the people, of India, are the inevitable consequences of famine, and of famine only. I will not abuse your sympathies by harrowing your feelings with any description of the ghastly scenes I have witnessed this year in Southern India; scenes which, horrible as they were, only partially revealed the mass of unseen, unuttered misery that lay behind them. I feel sure you will believe that no such sights were needed to impress me, and I am equally confident that no such descriptions are needed to impress this Council with a profound sense of the paramount obligation now resting on us all to spare no effort for preventing the recurrence, or mitigating the effects, of such calamities. But of one thing I am convinced. Our efforts must fail if they be merely the uneducated offspring of casual impulse, and indefinite sentiment. The primary condition of successful effort is the strictly systematic subordination of it in all directions, and in all details, to the verified results of experience, and the carefully ascertained conditions of what is practically possible. It is not by the indulgence of that morbid sensibility to the dramatic elements of horror which so unconsciously stimulates compassion, it is not even by exclamatory utterances of a generous impatience, or a genuine grief, under the painful contemplation of the sufferings of our fellow-creatures, that we can practically prevent or alleviate such national calamities as those through which Southern India has been passing during the last two years. We might as reasonably hope to solve the hideous problem of London pauperism by bestowing pence on street beggars, or pathetically depicting their raggedness in our illustrated journals for the encouragement of promiscuous almsgiving. I am profoundly persuaded that every rupee superfluously spent on famine relief only aggravates the evil effects of famine, and that in all such cases waste of money involves waste of life.

"The measures now before the Council have, for their principal object, the provision of that increase of the public income which experience has proved to be the first condition of any practical insurance against famine: and, therefore, it is only proper that the Council should know how we intend to employ the resources which its adoption of these measures will place at our disposal for that purpose.

"The tasks bequeathed to the Government of India by the calamitous circumstances of the last two years have now, I am thankful to say, more direct reference to the future than to the immediate present. They are not, on that account, less imperative or less seriously recognized: but their comparatively prospective character is a fact which I cannot record without a deep sense of gratitude; gratitude to Providence for the reviving fertility of districts recently stricken barren by a prolonged and quite unprecedented disturbance of the atmospheric conditions to which they are subject; gratitude to those valuable public servants in, and from, all parts of this Empire, to whose devoted and indefatigable exertions the people of Southern India is indebted for the restriction and abbreviation of a terrible calamity; and gratitude, no less sincere, to the generous charity of the British Nation; which has, I truly believe, materially contributed,—not, indeed, to the preservation of life (for to that object it was not applied, and for that object it could not have been legitimately invoked)—but to the mitigation of much of the suffering and distress which such a calamity must inevitably bequeath to its impoverished survivors.

"Now, turning to the contemplation of the future, our first duty must be, I fear, to recognise and face, with all its consequences, the sad but certain fact that, in the present social condition of India, famines cannot, for many years (I might almost say for many generations) to come, be entirely prevented. The population of this country is still almost wholly dependent upon agriculture. It is a population which, in some parts of India, under those securities for life which are the general consequence of British rule, has a tendency to increase more rapidly than the food it raises from the soil. It is a population whose consumption, in many places, trenches too closely on the crops already provided by its industry; and which, therefore, runs great risk of having no accumulated produce to depend upon, whenever the earth has failed "to bring forth her fruits in due season." A people permanently living under such conditions; a people, that is to say, whose entire labour provides only just food enough for its own annual sustenance, is, it must be confessed, a people removed only a few degrees from a state of barbarism. Until the accumulated fruits of industry exceed the current requirements of the population for its own subsistence, there can be no growth in the wealth of the community: and, until the national wealth, that is to say, the exchangeable surplus produce of the country, has been increased up to a certain standard, there can be no adequate security against famine. To the attainment of this object, therefore, all our efforts, in every department of the administration, must be constantly directed. But, at the same time, it must also be always borne in mind that, until this object has been attained, no exertions, and no expenditure, on the part of the State can practically do more than provide for the restriction and mitigation of periodical scarcity. It is not yet in the power of human science to foresee, still less to control, the uncertainty of the seasons; and this uncertainty, which is so constant and violent in India, must always afflict with exceptional severity any population that is habitually living from hand to mouth. For, in that case, when the hand fails to raise a crop, there is nothing left for it to carry to the mouth. Fortunately, however, the material appliances which already exist, and only need to be prudently developed, in order to provide us with an effectual insurance against the worst consequences of famine, are also those which, if rightly employed, will most rapidly promote that general increase of the national wealth on which alone we can reckon for the permanent prevention of famine.

“Now, of the countless suggestions made from time to time, and more especially during the present year, for rendering less bitterly ironical than it still seems, when read by the sinister light of recent events, that famous inscription on the huge granary built at Patna for “the perpetual prevention of famine in these provinces,” there are only three which merit serious consideration. These are, firstly, EMIGRATION; secondly, RAILWAYS; and, thirdly, IRRIGATION WORKS. Unfortunately for India, however, the first of these three material factors in the practical solution of problems similar to those we are now dealing with, is inapplicable, or only very imperfectly applicable, to the actual conditions of this country. The first condition requisite to render emigration available as a precaution against famine, is a normal excess of the population as compared with the food-produce of the country: the second condition is sufficient energy on the part of the surplus population to induce it to seek a higher standard of material comfort than that to which it is accustomed; and the third condition is a foreign field of labour in which this higher standard may be reached. Now, none of these conditions are sufficiently developed in India to justify reliance upon emigration as an efficient auxiliary in our struggles with famine. Of our whole population, only a small portion as yet exceeds its food-producing power. The possible increase of this proportion of the population will undoubtedly augment our future difficulties, if, in the meanwhile, no adequate correctives be applied to them. But in those parts of India which, during the last two years, have most suffered from scarcity, the population only averages at 250 inhabitants to every square mile; and, since those districts comprise large areas of uncultivated land, this average cannot be regarded as at all excessive. In the next place, there is no contesting the fact that, in spite of the inducements offered to emigration by this Government, in spite of the widespread organisation for the recruitment of it established by Colonial Governments, and in spite of the encouraging example furnished by that small number who, having tried the experiment of temporary emigration, return, after a few years' absence, in possession of savings which they could not otherwise have stored by the labour of a lifetime,—in spite of all these things the people of India will not emigrate.” The uncomplaining patience of the Indian raiyat has a profoundly pathetic claim upon our compassionate admiration. In no country of the western world could a national calamity so severe and prolonged as that which has now for more than twenty-four months afflicted one-half of this Empire, have lasted so long without provoking from the sufferings of an ignorant and starving population agrarian and social disturbances of the most formidable character. But for this very reason we cannot safely frame any plans for improving the condition of the Indian raiyat in exclusive reliance on his spirit of adventure. And, although the exportation to foreign countries of large numbers of the people, without reference to their feelings, and in opposition to their known inclination, is a policy which might possibly have been enforced by a Mogul Emperor, it is certainly not a policy which can be adopted by a British Government. It is a very significant fact that those of our native subjects who do occasionally emigrate belong to the least, rather than the most, densely populated parts of the country. Finally, it must be borne in mind that, if to-morrow all the native races of Hindústán were animated by a simultaneous impulse to emigrate, there is, at present, no field of foreign labour capable of absorbing a proportion of the enormous population of this continent sufficiently large to make any appreciable difference in the general condition of the remainder. Our Colonies take from India annually a few thousand labourers. Multiply that number by ten, or even twenty, and the percentage of Indian emigration would still bear but an insignificant relation to the number of the whole non-emigrant community. For all these reasons, although emigration unquestionably claims our fostering encouragement, I fear that, for many years to come, we must practically exclude this expedient from the list of those on which we mainly rely as a means of insuring the population of India against the calamities of periodical famine. The conclusion thus arrived at forcibly confines our immediate efforts to the most rapid development, by the cheapest methods, combined with the most appropriate and efficient application, of the only two remaining instruments for increasing the produce of the soil, facilitating its circulation, and thereby improving the general social condition, and augmenting the collective wealth, of the whole community. Those instruments are railroads and irrigation works.

“Now, the incalculable value to India of her present railways has been unmistakably demonstrated during the past year; and the Government is unquestionably bound to stimulate the extension of this class of works to the greatest extent, and with the greatest rapidity, consistent with the requirements of financial prudence. The capital expenditure on the guaranteed railways, during a period of 28 years, has amounted to not far from 95 millions sterling, with a result to be measured by about 6,000 miles of broad guage line. During the last nine years the outlay on State railways has amounted to about 18½ millions, producing 1,050 miles of broad and 1,200 miles of narrow guage line, more or less finished. I need not here re-open the once-vext question of broad versus narrow guage. For all practical purposes that question has long ago been settled. Had we now to consider the construction of long lines of rail solely, or chiefly, for military purposes, I doubt not that many arguments might be forcibly urged in favour of a broad guage system. But when the object in view is to stimulate the exchange of commodities, and provide for a goods traffic with special reference to local needs and local means, then, I think, it cannot possibly be doubted that any extension of our railway system must be carried out in strict conformity with that method which experience has proved to be the cheapest, and indeed the only one financially possible in the circumstances of a poor country with a languid commerce. The importance of strategic railroads to such an empire as this, is not, in my opinion, open to question. But it is not for the construction of strategic railroads that we are now seeking assistance from the local populations and Governments of India.

“In the course of future discussion upon the Bills we hope to introduce to-day, my Hon’ble Colleague in charge of the Public Works Department will, I trust, have an opportunity of making a departmental statement; and, I doubt not, he will then be able to lay before the Council much valuable and suggestive information as to the action of his Department in connection with relief operations. But, with all questions appertaining to the employment of public works for the prevention or relief of famine, I am only now concerned to deal from a financial point of view; and no further than may be necessary for the explanation of those financial conditions which must invariably govern the permanent famine policy of this administration.

“Now, it is an unquestionable fact that the railways, and the railways alone, were the salvation of the situation in North Bihár during the famine of 1874; and that they have again been the salvation of the situation in Madras during the famine of the present year. The sea, no doubt, would have thrown rice into the town of Madras; but, with the cattle dying of drought, it would have been impossible to move the grain up-country; nor, if every possible mile of navigable canal had been completed throughout the Madras Presidency, would it have greatly helped us to throw grain into those very districts where the famine has been at its worst; for the broken upland country of Bellary and Kurnool, and the Mysore plateau, are physically impracticable for big canals; and, had there been no railway within reach of these districts, the people, where they have now died by hundreds, must have assuredly succumbed by thousands.

"I am satisfied that the development of a net-work of subsidiary lines of railway, giving the means of transport through every district of British India, has become a matter of vital necessity for the attainment of the great object now before us. To accomplish this, in accordance with the financial and administrative policy already explained, we propose to call upon the various Provincial Governments to undertake at once the preparation of such a scheme of local railways, with plans for their gradual and systematic execution, carefully made out by the best informed local authorities. Our present object is to render available, within the shortest possible time, a maximum length of line specially constructed for a slow goods traffic, rather than to provide those more ample conveniences for passengers and goods which have been commonly deemed necessary for all Indian railways hitherto constructed. We have every reason to believe that, by restricting the works at the outset to the essential requirements of a slow goods traffic, we can, without any sacrifice of durability, or sound constructive principle, reduce the first capital outlay even below the amount which was found sufficient for the execution of the Hatrass and Muttra Railway in the North-Western Provinces; a line which furnishes us with a most instructive illustration of what may be done, under a local Government, in the way of thoroughly useful work executed at a small cost. We have also in the United States of North America an encouraging example of the rapidity and financial ease with which cheap railroads may be constructed over vast tracts of sparsely populated territory, and of the incalculable benefits conferred by them on every part of a continent even more spacious in extent and various in climate than our own.

"During my visit to Madras and Mysore, I had many opportunities of obtaining information about the distribution of grain into the distressed provinces. I cannot doubt that but for the main trunk lines of railway there must have been an appalling, and quite irremediable, failure in the supply of food to those provinces: and, for all purposes of famine relief, I am equally convinced that the proved utility of these great arterial lines will be immensely increased by the cheap internal railroads we now propose to commence, with the intention of completing them as rapidly as may be compatible with the extent of the financial resources at our disposal for that undertaking.

"The early conclusion of such an undertaking must necessarily depend upon its financial practicability; and for this reason all minor considerations must be subordinated to the most rigid economy in construction, and the most severe limitation of the works to what is indispensable for the efficient exercise of their special function. But, if these conditions be duly complied with, I have confidence that, at a comparatively early period, we shall, without any strain upon our financial resources, have extended to all parts and provinces of our Empire the most efficacious protection, not indeed from dearth (for that is impossible), but from those terrible effects of dearth which now generally terminate in famine.

"These, then, are the principles on which we are prepared to apply at once to the extension of our railway system, as a means of insurance against famine, an adequate proportion of the resources at our command for that purpose. We cannot, indeed, solely for the sake of developing local commerce, undertake to build railroads on the commodious and costly scale of our present main lines, which have been constructed with a view to their general utility in many other ways. But with the active co-operation of the local Governments, and by steadily adhering to, and prudently developing, the great principle of provincial responsibility which is the backbone of our financial policy, we are persuaded that the resources of the State will now be sufficient for the early and continuous construction of a wide net-work of cheap provincial lines well adapted to the special object for which they are required. It remains to explain to the Council the manner in which we propose to apply to the extension of irrigation works precisely the same principles and policy.

"Here I must observe that there has recently been a tendency to discuss, in a somewhat partisan spirit, the relative usefulness of irrigation works and railways as protections against famine. I deprecate all such controversial discussions. They are no less out of place than arguments as to the relative value of food and air, for the preservation of animal life.

"It is certain that throughout the greater part of India the produce of the soil may still be very considerably increased by artificial irrigation. But it is equally certain that in many parts of India, and for many kinds of Indian crops, irrigation could only be employed at a cost which would render it unremunerative. Canal irrigation cannot everywhere be supplied from permanent sources; and wherever it is not supplied from permanent sources, it frequently proves altogether abortive as a preventive against famine. Again, in the second year of the drought from which we have been suffering throughout Southern India, tank irrigation generally failed. Moreover, even were it physically possible to apply irrigation to all the cheap millet crops now grown upon the uplands of Madras, the expense of their cultivation by that means would render them quite unpurchasable by the classes who at present derive from them their chief means of subsistence. The difficulties and disasters of the recent famine have been greatest in Madras. But Madras is, taken as a whole, the best irrigated part of India. Out of a total area of 22,000,000 acres under cultivation, that Presidency has some 4 million acres artificially irrigated; and its entire irrigation system is supervised by professional officers who, in their own line, are unsurpassed. One part of the irrigation system of Madras is supplied by the permanent rivers: and of these, the number is limited. All the rest of it is derived from the local rivers and storage tanks which are scattered in profusion over the whole Presidency. Now, the experience of the present year has proved that the latter source of supply is only one degree less dependent on the normal rainfall than are the dry crops of the unirrigated districts. If, therefore, we are to insure Madras against future famines by largely increasing its present water-supply, it is exclusively upon the permanent rivers that we must reckon for our attainment of that object. Assume (and from all the enquiries I have yet been able to make this is the most I feel justified in assuming) that the waters of the permanent rivers might be so employed as to irrigate another half million of acres. What effect would the produce of half a million of acres have had towards preventing the famine in Madras? It would not represent one-third of what the railways alone have carried down from Northern India, and it is about equal to what was landed by sea during only two and a half months out of the twelve through which this famine has lasted. So far, then, as it was possible to render irrigation a protection against famine in a second year of drought, Madras has received, within a narrow margin of some 20 per cent., all the benefit which the nature of the case and the circumstances of the country permitted, and yet Madras has this year suffered from a worse famine than has afflicted any province of India during the present century. In view of such facts as these, we cannot safely lay down any fixed rule for universal application. The problem of irrigation works, when closely examined, reveals fresh difficulties at every stage. It is easy for those who have not thoroughly examined it, or others who have examined it only from a purely professional point of view, to tell us that by the expenditure of a few millions we might permanently insure this vast Empire against famine. But the Government of India, which is responsible for every rupee of public money raised or spent by it, has been taught by bitter experience that there may be many promising and attractive projects for irrigation which, when carried out at considerable expense, and under the most accredited supervision, bequeath to the Empire little or nothing but a hopeless financial burden. India has good reason to be proud of her school of hydraulic engineers. But it is the tendency of all professional ability to somewhat exaggerate the general value of the special material in which it works. The Athenian tanner believed that, for the purpose of fortifications, there was nothing like leather; and, so far as I can judge, some of our most experienced and eminent canal engineers are not entirely free from an unconscious predisposition to assume that, instead of irrigation existing for the sake of cultivators, cultivators exist for the sake of irrigation. Whether the value of increased produce will, in any particular case, be sufficient to justify the requisite outlay of capital on providing irrigation; whether the necessarily limited amount of capital available for works of improvement is best applied to irrigation works; or, again, whether the physical conditions of the locality will practically admit of irrigation at all, to these and many similar questions no general answer can be given. Each case must be decided in reference to its own merits, and on a careful review of many conflicting considerations.

"But, though I feel that, for all these reasons, we must be constantly on our guard against premature generalisations and impulsive action in such matters, I am none the less most fully persuaded that, next to the facilitation of transport, our greatest safeguard against future famine will be found in a well considered and widely developed system of irrigation works. The surplus produce of industry is the foundation of national wealth; and irrigation is the most certain means of improving and extending agricultural industry. It enables the cultivator to accumulate produce; and, if combined with navigation, it also enables him to transport produce.

"Every country which produces only just enough for its own consumption is a poor country. So is every country which cannot export its surplus-produce, and exchange it for other commodities. Therefore, admitting even that in many parts of India irrigation cannot appreciably augment the local food-supply, it by no means follows that irrigation cannot largely augment the wealth of the whole community: for, if this Empire be adequately provided with the means of transport, it is not so much by increasing the actual food-supply of the people as by helping to create other and different produce, not required for the consumption of the people, and possibly not even adapted for such consumption, that extensive irrigation will promote the social and financial prosperity of India. It is only by the gradual and continued improvement of their material condition that the people of this country can permanently escape the calamities they now suffer from the uncertainty of the seasons.

"To look to irrigation-works as a panacea for our misfortunes, would be to trust to an illusion; to hesitate to recognize them as among the most certain of our means of protection, would be to reject the irrefutable evidence of prolonged experience.

"A memorandum has been placed in my hands showing, from the latest returns of the actual operation of the irrigation-works in the North-Western Provinces, that the whole area now irrigated by them is about 1,500,000 acres; which, under pressure, might be extended to 1,600,000 acres, producing respectively 775,000 or 800,000 tons of grain, and providing food for 8 months for 6 million to 6½ million persons. The progress of these works will add half a million of acres; and this addition would yield one-quarter of a million tons of food, and feed for 8 months 2 millions of people. Thus, these works will secure the food, for the period named, of between 8 and 9 millions of persons.

"I need not comment on these figures; but, while such results may be shown as the outcome of irrigation works, what, let me ask, would be the position of a province in which the produce, being considerably in excess of the ordinary wants of the people, was not provided with the means of exporting its surplus stocks? Of one great staple product of the north of India—wheat—it may be affirmed, with certainty, that a trade has been developed, during the last four or five years, chiefly through the agency of railways, which has already reached a value of two millions sterling, and which could never have come into existence by any other means. Without depreciating the great value of water-communication which I recognize most fully, so far as it is practically attainable, I cannot lose sight of the fact that the extension of the Electric Telegraph, and of Steam Navigation, have rendered the operations of modern trade more than ever dependent on time, as an essential element in all combinations; and thus the speed which can only be got by railways enters more and more largely into the considerations to be weighed in designing means for giving the necessary extension and improvement to our inland communications.

"I conclude, then, that we shall be certainly right in carrying out irrigation works wherever the water-supply is both sufficient and constant; and wherever the material difficulties to be overcome do not involve an outlay that interposes insurmountable financial obstacles; so long, of course, as due attention be, at the same time, given to the means of communication. But we cannot, and do not, undertake to provide irrigation gratuitously to those for whose special benefit it is required. We cannot afford to apply to new irrigation works the financial policy which has hitherto rendered so costly, and so unremunerative, the works of that kind which are already constructed. Here, again, we can only proceed in strict accordance with the principle of provincial responsibility and self-support. As the only funds at the command of the Government for irrigation works are derived from the country itself, the cost of such works must fall to a great extent upon those who derive from them immediate benefit. I repeat that it is on the co-operation of the whole community we reckon for the means of securing the whole community against the worst consequences of periodical scarcity. But it is to the local Governments that we look for the execution of local works of a preventive character; and it is upon local resources that we must depend for the ultimate supply of the funds necessary to provide and maintain such works. I am aware that there are already some parts of India whose exclusively local interests are practically secured by the bounty of nature, or the industry of man, from the direct effects of famine. In the nature of things the population of those particular localities may, and probably do, derive some immediate advantage from the periods of scarcity which so fearfully afflict their fellowsubjects in other provinces. But it would be an insult to suppose that their fortunate exemption from the perils and sufferings common to the rest of the community can furnish any argument, they would stoop to urge, in favour of exempting them from their fair participation in the support of any general burden imposed for the protection of the whole community from such sufferings and perils. Whilst, therefore, I do not doubt that the chief cost of protective works ought to be borne by those who must need them, and will chiefly benefit by them, I must maintain that no province of the Empire, and no class of the community, can be legitimately relieved of the national obligation to contribute to the means required for the construction of such works.

“And here I would ask the Council to listen to the testimony of my hon’ble friend the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal; who, speaking of the measures he contemplated last spring for dealing with irrigation works in the province he so ably administers, observed that—

‘During the last five years the Government of India has spent nearly 20 crores of rupees in alleviating famines caused by deficient water-supply. When I say that the Government of India has spent this money, you will understand that this expenditure has fallen not upon the Viceroy and the Council, but upon the people; and that, if the necessity of expending their money had not been forced upon the Government, the taxation of the people would have been diminished to this extent. Now, the only way of averting famines arising from drought is to make the greatest use, which science and experience can suggest, of the supply of water which fortunately nature has given us in Bihâr. * * * This, of course, cannot be done without the expenditure of money, and the question is who, in fairness and justice, should find this money.

‘After very careful consideration I came to the conclusion that, as the whole of the province of Bengal suffered when there were such famines as have occurred of late years in Orissa and Bihâr, it was fair that a large proportion of the cost should be borne by a tax laid upon the public at large. But it also seemed to me fair, and I believe you will agree with me, if you will give the subject your unprejudiced consideration, that a share of the cost should fall on the people who directly benefit by the introduction of water to the neighbourhood of their fields, and are thus assured of a good crop at all seasons, instead of being exposed to the risk every few years of absolute failure. When I proposed this, I was told that the people did not want water; that they would sooner be left alone to bear the risk of famine, and was even told that the water of the Sone was destructive to fields. Shortly after this discussion took place, the periodical rains were suspended, and then we had practical proof as to whether or not the Sone water was considered injurious or prejudicial. The people clamoured for water, and to meet this demand we were forced to open our unfinished canals, by means of which we have irrigated, during the last few months, 200,000 acres of land, which would otherwise have remained waste for the year, but which are now covered with luxuriant crops. The produce of this land represents food-grain of the value of 55 lakhs of rupees, and of this, crops to the value of 40 lakhs certainly would have been entirely lost if it had not been for the supply of canal water; but it also represents the rent of the land, of which the landholder would have been otherwise deprived; and to this must be added the outlay which would fall on him if he had again to give relief to his tenantry in consequence of famine.’

“To sum up, then; The Government of India is convinced, upon a careful review of its financial position and prospects, that the heavy obligations imposed upon it by the calamitous circumstances of recent years, can only be discharged without serious risk to its financial stability, by a strict and patient adherence to the principle affirmed in the financial measures we introduced last year, and developed in those which are now before the Council. That principle involves the enlargement, with adequate precautions, of the financial, and consequently also of the administrative, powers and responsibilities of the local Governments. In the next place, we believe that, if this principle be fairly carried into effect, the new imposts, which the Council is now asked to sanction, will, when added to the resources already created, provide the State with sufficient means for the permanent maintenance of a national insurance against famine, without heavily increasing the pecuniary burdens of its subjects. For the attainment of this object, the material appliances we intend to promote, by means of additional revenue, are cheap railroads and extensive irrigation works. We are conscious of the reproach we should justly incur if, after such a declaration as I have now made, the prosecution of these necessary works were commenced, suspended, or relinquished, according to the increased or relaxed pressure of annual circumstance, or the intermittent activity of spasmodic effort. We, therefore, propose to entrust, in the first instance, to the local Governments the duty of framing a sufficient and carefully considered scheme of local railroad and irrigation works. We are prepared to provide them with the means whereby they may from year to year work systematically forwards and upwards to the completion of such a scheme. The funds locally raised for this purpose will be locally applied. But Provincial Governments will have to meet the cost of provincial famines out of provincial funds to the fullest extent those funds can bear. They will find that thriftless expenditure in one year may involve the risk of diminished allotments in subsequent years; and I cannot doubt that the unavoidable recognition of this fact will make them wisely eager to spend the requisite proportion of their annual income upon well-planned and carefully estimated railway and irrigation works; which will be their best insurance against the losses of famine, and the postponement of all administrative progress which famine generally entails. It will be the special duty of the Public Works Department of this Government to keep those objects constantly in view of the local Governments, and to assist them, no less constantly, in their endeavours to give a rational preference to really useful and remunerative works, over those more captivating, but less compensating, subjects of expenditure which, in all comparatively small communities, so powerfully appeal to provincial pride, professional proclivities, or popular pleasure.

“The specific projects now announced to this Council, I have not presumed to put forward as the enunciation of any new policy. On the contrary, I should have spoken with much more hesitation if I imagined myself to be treading upon ground not long since surveyed by experienced authorities; and the strongest recommendation I can claim for the views I have expressed is that they differ in no important particular from those of the eminent Statesmen who have preceded me in the office I now hold. But between the present and all previous occasions on which the Government of India has declared its policy and principles in reference to the prevention of famine, there is one essential difference which I am anxious to impress upon your attention. I can well imagine that many of those I am now addressing may be disposed to say to me—‘Your good intentions are possibly sincere; but the path to the nethermost pit is already paved with good intentions. Promise is a good dog, but Performance is a better; we have often heard the bow-wow of the first; we have yet to see the tail of the second. We have been told over and over again by the highest authorities that India is to be insured against famine in this way, or in that; but when famines come upon us, we find that the promised way is still wanting. The current claims upon the activities and resources of the Government of India are so numerous, so pressing, so important, official forces and imperial funds so necessarily limited, that when once the daily, hourly strain of a great famine has been removed from a wearied administration and impoverished treasury, its fearful warnings are soon forgotten; its disquieting ghosts are quickly exercised by the conventional declaration of some unexceptionable principle; its bitter memories decently interred beneath the dull hic jacet of a blue book; and there, for all practical purposes, is an end of the matter.'

"Well, then, I think I am entitled to point out to the Council that we are not now fairly open to this customary criticism. We do not speak without having acted: and we promise nothing which we have not, after long and anxious consideration, provided ourselves with the means of performing. I must have very imperfectly explained myself thus far, if I have failed to make it clearly understood that I am not now speaking of what we ought to do, or would do, to insure this country against the worst effects of future famine, had we only the means of doing it: but of what we can do, and will do, with the means already provided for in the measures now before the Council. I do not mean to say that the construction of such an extensive system of local railroads and irrigation works as we propose to undertake will not be the gradual task of many years. But I do mean to say that, in the manner, and on the principles, already explained, we are now providing for the prompt commencement, and uninterrupted continuation, of this great and necessary task. We are systematizing a policy the principles of which have been repeatedly approved and proclaimed by our predecessors. We are associating with it the interests, the powers, and the duties, of our local administrations. We are providing them with the means of permanently prosecuting and developing it, not without reference to our financial control, but exempt from the distressing uncertainty which has hitherto been inseparable from the practical execution of this policy, in consequence of the obligation which till now has rested on the Government of India, with the very limited funds at its disposal for the prosecution of public works, to choose, from year to year, between the conflicting claims upon its purse of the various and dissimilar localities of this spacious Empire. In that belief I wish to take the present opportunity of publicly expressing my gratitude to those local Governments with which we have been for many months in confidential correspondence on the subject of their financial powers and responsibilities; and who have not only accepted with alacrity, and adopted with great intelligence, the principles in accordance with which we desire to extend those powers and responsibilities, but have also given us the most encouraging evidence of their ability to improve the enlarged field of activity thus opened to their administrative independence. I also desire to express my gratitude for the unreserved approval with which the Secretary of State for India and the Queen's Government in England have honoured and supported the policy I am now explaining to the Council; for it is a policy on which all our plans, and all our hopes, for steady improvement in the financial, social, and administrative, condition of this Empire are necessarily dependent.

"But we have also another source of encouragement in the prosecution of this policy. If you look back over a wider and a longer tract of experience than that which is covered by the history of India; if you embrace in one view our own history with the past history of other countries in other climates, you will find that the principles on which we have lately acted, and on which I trust we shall continue to act, in dealing with seasons of calamitous drought, have been found no less applicable, no less efficient, in other countries similarly affected, than they have proved to be in this country, wherever they have been intelligently understood and loyally carried out. There is, I venture to think, no more striking illustration of this truth than the history of the scarcity that occurred in Central France during the year 1770-71. That great statesman, M. Turgot, was then Minister. His administrative ability was equalled by his philosophical power of thought; and, fighting with difficulties in many respects almost identical with those which we, ourselves, have lately had to deal with—difficulties partly material, but greatly aggravated by the prevalence of extremely erroneous economical conceptions—Turgot conceived, developed, and, in the face of great opposition, carried into effect, views no less identical with those which have guided our own action as to the essential importance of guarding the perfect freedom of inland trade in grain; of improving the internal communications of the country; and of providing relief-works of permanent utility, upon which to employ the suffering population. Here, to-day, in India, those views are as sound, and as applicable, as they were in the Limousin a century ago. If, then, from the past we look forward into the future, why, let me ask, may we not hope that, under improved conditions of administration, and with increased development of those material appliances which civilization creates for the provision of national wealth, India will eventually enjoy as complete an immunity from the worst results of scarcity, as that which now exists throughout those regions of France where but a century ago such a result might have seemed as difficult of attainment as it now appears to be in many of our own provinces?

"I have only dwelt thus far on that part of our policy which has reference to the material aids we still require to insure this Empire against the worst effects of famine. But I should omit a very important point, if I did not also allude to the administrative aspect of the question. In dealing with the crisis through which India has lately passed, it has required the most strenuous efforts, on the part of the Civil Government in all its branches, not only to secure the active operation of all available means for bringing food to the distressed districts, but also to effect the distribution of such food to the people, under proper precautions for the prevention of waste, fraud, and social demoralization. I will not disguise my conviction, that in some parts of the country this strain has been too much for the machinery that had to bear it; and indeed, I may add, that the measures undoubtedly necessary for strengthening, simplifying, and generally energizing, those parts of the local machinery of Indian administration which have proved too cumbrous, too weak, or too inert, for efficient work in any "great emergency, have been to me for many months the subject of constant, anxious, and detailed, consideration. It is, I venture to think, very desirable that not only the natural phenomena and social facts of the recent famine, but also the manner in which these have been dealt with in different provinces, under different administrative systems, and the practical results thereof, should be investigated, verified, and recorded, for future guidance. But, whatever be the result of any such enquiry, if to the two conditions of famine insurance on which I have already laid such stress, that is to say, railways and irrigation, you add a third condition, which is certainly not less important,—namely, a thoroughly efficient administrative system and machinery, in every part of the Empire, for the prompt and intelligent application of sound principles,—then, I believe, you will have reached the limits of what is practically possible, and defined the field of activity within which it is now the duty of this Government to fortify betimes the social interests committed to its charge against the recurrent disturbance of natural forces. The Government of India is an eminently conservative Government, and I trust that it will ever continue to be so; but to repeat an aphorism, the soundness of which is proved by the staleness of it, improvements really required by change of circumstances are the best foundation for a conservative policy, and in no way opposed to it. No administration is really conservative, unless its policy be vigilantly, though cautiously, remedial. Timely remedy from above is the only sure preventive of violent revolution from below. Destiny is a fair player, and never checkmates a nation, a government, or a class, without first crying check. It is the interest, as well as the duty, of those concerned to heed that warning cry, and shift their pieces accordingly. In politics, as in all things else, the survival of the fittest is an inexorable law: and those institutions which cannot, or will not, spontaneously adapt themselves to the organic growth of the circumstances to which their functions were originally fitted, are doomed, by the salutary order of the universe, to premature extinction. But into this important question of administrative reform I need not here enter any further. I merely desire to assure the Council and the Public that the Government of India is not indifferent to that part of the difficult, but imperative, task bequeathed to it by the prolific experience of the last two years.

"In framing the measures now laid before the Council, we have called to our assistance the experience and intelligence of many of the most trustworthy servants of the Crown in this country; and we have obtained for our plans the general approval of Her Majesty's Government. That the duty imposed on us in performing this task has been an anxious one, I need hardly say. Its successful accomplishment is only to be ensured by the cordial and sympathetic co-operation of all concerned. But on that co-operation I confidently reckon: Firstly, because it is the duty, as well as the interest, of every Englishman, whether in public or in private life, to facilitate the arduous task which England has undertaken on behalf of India and her own character; and secondly, because I know too well, and esteem too highly, the noble native races of this land to doubt for a moment their patriotic acquiescence in any reasonable sacrifice fairly demanded of them, on honest grounds, for the general benefit of their own countrymen. On behalf of the Government of India, I emphatically declare that we have not, we cannot have, at heart any stronger or higher interests than the permanent welfare of this loyal and patient people, and the permanent credit of its English rulers. These are the interests on behalf of which we now invite your aid, and quid saluum est si Roma perit?"

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble SIR J. STRACHEY then introduced the Bill. He said:—"My LORD,—In now introducing this Bill—and the remarks which I am about to make will be equally applicable to all the other Bills in this list, excepting the Salt Bill—I wish to say a few words only. The Government is anxious that our proposed measures should be placed before the public in the most complete form possible, and this object would not be gained unless the Bills, by which we are to carry out our measures, are at once introduced and published.

"I do not now ask that the Bills be referred to a Select Committee, nor is it proposed that any further action should be taken upon them for another month at least. We hope, during this time, to receive the greatest advantage which an honest Government can derive—the full examination and public criticism of our measures.

"As Your Excellency once said, we do not want candlelight, but daylight: and there is no intelligent expression of opinion which we shall not welcome under the difficult circumstances with which the Government has to deal."

ADDITIONAL RATES (N.-W. P.) BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR J. STRACHEY also moved for leave to introduce a Bill for the levy of Additional Rates on Land in the North-Western Provinces.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble SIR J. STRACHEY then introduced the Bill.

ADDITIONAL RATES (OUDH) BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR J. STRACHEY also moved for leave to introduce a Bill for the levy of Additional Rates on Land in Oudh.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble SIR J. STRACHEY then introduced the Bill.

ADDITIONAL RATES (PANJÁB) BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR J. STRACHEY also moved for leave to introduce a Bill for the levy of Additional Rates on Land in the Panjáb.

The Hon'ble SIR J. STRACHEY then introduced the Bill.

ADDITIONAL RATES (CENTRAL PROVINCES) BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR J. STRACHEY then moved for leave to introduce a Bill for the levy of Additional Rates on Land in the Central Provinces.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble SIR J. STRACHEY then introduced the Bill.

SALT BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. HOPE moved for leave to introduce a Bill to amend the law relating to Salt. He said that, the object was, by raising salt-duties in the Presidencies of Madras and Bombay, to bring them nearer to the higher duties paid in Bengal, and thus to make a step towards equalizing the salt-duties throughout India.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. HOPE then introduced the Bill. He said:—

"I will trespass as briefly as possible on the patience of the Council in order to explain its provisions. In the Madras and Bombay Presidencies, the salt revenue is levied in three different ways: there are import duties on salt brought from Foreign Territory, either by sea or land; there are excise duties on salt manufactured and sold by private persons, and there are the proceeds from the sale of salt manufactured on behalf of the Government, which comprise, in addition to the cost of manufacture, a profit intended to be equal to the duties.

"The Bill first raises the sea import duty throughout the two Presidencies from one rupee thirteen annas to two rupees eight annas per maund, by an amendment of the Indian Tariff Act of 1875. I may observe, in passing, that the Governor General in Council has power, by executive order, to reduce the duties prescribed in that Act, and that this power will be used now for the reductions in the Bengal Presidency, but that he cannot so increase them.

"Section 5 of the Bill provides that the duty on salt imported by land shall be equal to that on salt imported by sea, and sections 6 and 7 ensure that the excise duties shall also be equal to the import duties, while sections 8, 9 and 10 complete the new measure by making the price of salt sold by the Government equal to the sea customs duty plus the cost of manufacture.

"The final section of the Bill will enable the Government to re-arrange the graduation of the salt duty down the Orissa coast, so as to shade it off from the Bengal rate to the new Madras rate.

"With regard to sections 8, 9 and 10, relating to the price of what is called in the Madras Presidency monopoly salt, that is, salt sold on behalf of the Government, I must give a somewhat fuller explanation. The practice formerly was for the Legislature to fix the entire price in one sum. It was assumed that the cost of the salt to the Government was three annas per maund, and the price was therefore fixed at two rupees, or three annas in excess of the sea import duty. Persons interested in the sale of Cheshire salt, finding that that salt met with no market in the Madras Presidency, while the imports into the Bengal Presidency, where Government itself does not manufacture, amounted to from 250,000 to 300,000 tons annually, came to the conclusion that the cause lay in the difference of the systems by which the salt duties were levied in the two Presidencies. The Salt Chamber of Commerce at Northwich made representations through their President, Mr. Falk, to Her Majesty's Secretary of State and to the Government of India. The result was the appointment of a Commission who made an elaborate enquiry last year into the salt administration of the Madras Presidency, and submitted a full and valuable report to the Government of India. The question of cost was carefully investigated. It was ascertained that, taking the operations of ten years, the average cost of salt per maund on the east coast of the Madras Presidency was over $3\frac{1}{2}$ annas per maund, and on the west coast over $8\frac{3}{4}$ annas per maund. This high rate on the west coast was owing to the fact that very little salt was made there, and the Government of Madras imported their supplies from Bombay. Considerable variations were also found on the east coast in the different districts, the cost in the Ganjam district being lowest, viz., 2 annas 9·6 pies per maund, and that in the South Arcot district being highest, viz., 4 annas 7·7 pies per maund. These figures, however, include every conceivable item of charge, such for instance as Police and Preventive Establishments, proportion of the cost of the Madras Board of Revenue and Collectors of districts, pensionary liabilities, &c. Most of such items are borne by the Government under an excise system also, and in the comparison of the two systems they should therefore be eliminated. The general result of the investigation thus was to show that the assumption that the cost of the salt generally was only three annas was incorrect, the fact being that it exceeded three annas by from half an anna, on an average, on the east coast, to six annas on the west coast, and consequently, that Government, by selling its salt at only two rupees a maund, favoured it, in comparison with privately imported salt paying a duty of one rupee thirteen annas a maund, to the extent of these amounts. At the same time, it was clear that Liverpool salt could not hope to compete with homemade salt on the east coast of Madras, even when the two were, as they ought to be, equally taxed. In Bengal, the case is different. The greater moisture of the climate, rendering solar evaporation more difficult, and the weakness of the sea brine from the quantity of fresh water poured in through the Gangetic delta, make home-made salt so expensive that Liverpool salt brought out as ballast at nominal rates now supplies the greater part of the Lower Provinces of Bengal. To the evil arising from underestimating the cost of production the Government of India to some extent applied a remedy before the appointment of the Commission, by passing Act XI of 1875 in March of that year. Under that Act, power was given to the Local Government to fix the selling price of Government monopoly salt in any local area by adding to the duty of one rupee thirteen annas per maund, the actual cost of the salt. Accordingly, in that month, the price per maund of Government salt in the west coast districts of Malabar and South Canara was raised by two annas for home-made salt, and by five annas for imported salt. This has recently been followed up, on the recommendation of the Commission, by the abolition of the Government monopoly, as it is called, in those districts, and when the Government stocks have been sold off, the supply of salt will be left entirely to private manufacturers paying an excise duty, and to private importers paying an import duty, the two duties being equal. The present Bill, while it repeals Act XI of 1875, re-enacts its provisions, but puts them in operation throughout the Presidency. It prescribes that the selling price of Government salt shall be equal to the sea import duty on salt added to the cost of the salt to the Government. This cost may be determined by the Local Government for different local areas; but until it is so determined, it will be taken at the present sum of three annas per maund everywhere except in Malabar and South Canara, where it will be taken at five and eight annas per maund for home-made and imported salt, respectively. Under this system, it is impossible for private importers to allege that they are unfairly weighted in their competition with home-made salt.

"I have now performed the task which, with the view of relieving my friend Sir John Strachey, I gladly undertook. I feel, however, that I should perform that task in letter only, did I not add my own cordial concurrence in the measure, and my conviction of the wisdom and the foresight shewn in an equalization of the Salt duties throughout India? I trust that I shall not be held to qualify this concurrence in any way when I add, that in thus supporting legislation which adds considerably to the burdens of a Presidency which I in some senses represent, while simultaneous executive action carries large relief to Bengal, which, as His Honor the Lieutenant Governor has just truly said, is already one of the lightest taxed Provinces in all India, I rely confidently on the hope which Sir John Strachey's remarks afford, that the imposition of fresh taxation on the agricultural classes of the Bombay Presidency will be found to be unnecessary or undesirable."

The Hon'ble Mr. HOPE then applied to the President to suspend the Rules for the Conduct of Business in order to allow of the Bill being passed at once, and said that the reason for this request was, that if any interval were allowed to elapse between the time when the intention of the Government to raise the salt-duty was known and the time of carrying into effect that intention, it would be made use of by traders in salt to purchase from Government, or to pass out from private works, or to import, as much salt as possible. To the extent that this was done, the Government would lose the increase of revenue which they expected from the raising of the duties. So much risk was there of this taking place that, although the Government would have been glad for statistical purposes to delay bringing the measure into force until the 1st January, thus leaving an interval of only four days from to-day, of which one day was Sunday, they came to the conclusion, after taking the best advice to be had on the subject, that even this would be dangerous, for it was understood that there were traders in Bombay capable of buying up the whole existing stocks of salt there, and who would be very likely to do so, if time were given them, seeing the enormous profit to be made out of the transaction.

The President declared the Rules suspended.

The Hon'ble Mr. HOPE then moved that the Bill be taken into consideration.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. HOPE then moved that the Bill be passed.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

PRESIDENCY DISTRICT JUDGES (MADRAS) BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. STOKES moved that the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to enable the District Judges of the Presidency of Fort Saint George to suspend and remove certain ministerial officers, and for other purposes, be taken into consideration. He said that the primary object of this Bill, as introduced, was to enable the District Judges of the Madras Presidency to suspend and remove the ministerial officers of Subordinate Courts. In introducing the Bill, he had pointed out that a similar power was wanting in the Lower and the North-Western Provinces of the Presidency of Bengal. The matter was referred by the Home Department to the two Local Governments concerned. Both agreed that the requisite addition should be made to the Bengal Civil Courts Act. The Select Committee to which the Bill was referred had accordingly made this addition. No other change had been made in the Bill.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. STOKES then moved that the Bill as amended be passed.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

INDIAN NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. STOKES also moved that the Hon'ble Mr. Morgan be added to the Select Committee on the Bill to define and amend the law relating to Promissory Notes, Bills of Exchange and Cheques.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

OPIUM ACT, 1876, AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. HOPE moved that, in the order made at the last meeting in respect of the publication of the Bill to amend "the Opium Act, 1876," the following words shall be cancelled, namely:—

"and in the local Gazettes in English and in such other languages as the Local Governments direct."

He said that, he should explain that it was considered that as the amendments which the Bill would make in the existing law were so trifling, and as they were of a nature not to impose any fresh burden on the subject, it was unnecessary to incur the long delay which the publication of the Bill in all the Gazettes, both in English and in the Vernaculars, would entail.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. HOPE then presented the report of the Select Committee on the Bill.

The Hon'ble MR. HOPE asked leave to postpone the motion that the report be taken into consideration and the motion that the Bill be passed.

Leave was granted

The Council adjourned to Wednesday, the 2nd January 1878.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE, AGRICULTURE, AND COMMERCE.

REPORTS ON THE STATE OF THE SEASON AND PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS
FOR THE WEEK ENDING THE 1ST JANUARY 1878.

GENERAL REMARKS.—In Madras the only rainfall reported is in Tinnevely, and showers in Madura and Tanjore: prospects are generally fair. The total number on relief works is 201,589, and on gratuitous relief 267,483, less by 734 and 13,949 than last week. No rain has fallen in Mysore: the standing crops are good in the west, poor in the eastern districts; the number on works for the week ending the 22nd ultimo was 50,643, and on gratuitous relief 13,223, being 7,823 and 2,271 less than in the previous week. In Bombay showers are reported from parts of Sind, which are expected to improve the prospects of the rabi in that province; elsewhere no rain has fallen. No rain has fallen in the Central Provinces or Berar, where the weather is now clear and prospects good. In Central India there has been no rain except a shower at Sutna. In Rajputana showers are reported from Sirohi and Meywar; prospects are generally favourable. In Bengal rain has fallen in several of the Central and Eastern districts, in parts of the Bhágalpur division, and in Behar: it will be beneficial to the growing crops, but may do some damage to rice not yet stored and to some of the rabi crops which are ripe. Rain has also fallen in Assam; prospects are favourable. In Burmah there has been no rain; the harvest is progressing with an excellent outturn. In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh rain is reported from Benares, Meerut, Partabgarh, Fyzabad, and Kumaun; rabi prospects are generally good, but more rain is still required in some districts. In the Punjab general rain has fallen, except at Delhi; prospects are very favourable, and no more rain is required in the northern districts.

Nāsik	No change.
Konkan (Jan. 2nd).
Tanna	Rabi crops good; fever continues.
Colaba (Dec. 31st)	...	Weather good at Alibag, mornings cold; cholera continues at Malad; sowing of rabi crops finished.
Deccan (Jan. 2nd).
Poona	Weather cold and favourable; crops in many places very bad; cholera in Poona only.
Ahmednagar ...	Nil
Sholapur	No change.
Salara	No change.
Southern Mahratta Country (Jan. 2nd).
Belgaum	No change.
Dharwar	No change.

Presidency or Province and District.	Rainfall for week preceding.	State of agricultural prospects.
Bombay—continued.
Kanara	Weather fair; cholera deaths 17.
Kaládgi	Rabi good.
Kattywar and Gaskwar's Territory (Jan. 2nd).
Rájkot	Weather cold; fever prevalent; grass scarce.
Wadhán	Weather cool; public health good; crops as before.
		General Remarks. —Showers in parts of Sind may improve rabi prospects there; cold weather throughout the Presidency.
Bengal—(Jan. 3rd).
Chittagoug ...	0·26	Foggy mornings; days fair but warm; the late amun crop is still being harvested; the probable outturn is about 12 annas; in parts in the north insects have eaten off the crop.
Noakholly ...	Nil	Weather seasonable; the reaping of the amun crop continues; the prospects are fair; public health is good.
Chittagoug Hill Tracts...	Nil	Weather seasonable; very cold throughout the week; the prospects of mustard and tobacco are good; the outturn of the paddy crop of the plough cultivators has been very poor.
Hill Tipperah ...	Nil	Weather cold and dry; the reaping of the late rice crop is nearly completed; the winter crops go on well.
Backergunge ...	Nil	Weather seasonable; eight annas of the amun crops have been reaped; the prospects are fair.
Furreedpore ...	Nil	Weather seasonable; rain is wanted for the winter crops; at present, however, an average crop is expected.
Dacca ...	0·81	Weather warm for the season, and heavy fogs in the morning; the rice harvest is over, and the result is everywhere favourable.
Mymensingh ...	Nil	Weather seasonable; mornings are foggy; state and prospects of the crops are good.
Tipperah ...	0·90	Weather fine, but not so cold as usual at this time of year; state and prospects of the crops are very good.
24-Pergunnahs ...	2·80	Weather warmer than last week; the reaping of the amun crop continues; fever and cholera are still prevalent.
Jessore ...	Nil	Weather more warm than is seasonable; the prospects of the winter crops are satisfactory; fever is abating a little.
Nudda ...	Nil	Weather warmer than usual in December; the cold weather crops are progressing favourably; cholera is abating in Kooshien, but fever of a bad type has appeared; cholera and fever are reported in Bongoug and Meherpore.
Moorshedabad ...	Nil	Weather unusually close for the season; there is no change to report; rain is needed for the rabi crops; cholera is still prevalent; much fever is about.
Pubna ...	Nil	Weather seasonable; the state and prospects of the rabi are favourable; the reaping of maskkalai and moong has commenced; fever and cholera are not so prevalent as they were lately.
Rajshahye ...	Nil	Weather warm in the day time and cold at night; heavy dews; the cutting of the amun rice crop is going on, and the prospects of the rabi crops are favourable.
Rogra ...	Nil	Weather dry and cold; the reaping of amun rice still continues; the rabi crops are promising well; a little rain would do well; fever is still prevalent in the west; cholera has entirely disappeared.
Dinapore ...	0·16	Weather mild and dry; the outturn of the kaimunti harvest now in progress is estimated at 12 annas.
Rungpore ...	0·7	The cutting of dhan continues; other crops are progressing well; mustard is being gathered in some places; cholera is abating.
Cooch Behar ...	Nil	Weather seasonably cool; no change to report in the state and prospects of the crops; the harvesting of amun rice is not yet over; the cold weather crops are progressing favourably; mustard is in flower, and the tobacco plants are still being transplanted; cases of fever are increasing in number in the Mekhaliganj sub-division, otherwise the public health is generally good.
Jalpáiguri ...	Nil	Weather warmer than usual at this time of year; the gathering of the kaimunti dhan is almost finished; land is being prepared for the dhadoi all over the district; the prospects of tobacco, mustard, and other winter crops are satisfactory.
Darjeeling ...	0·25	Weather alternately bright and cloudy; almost all the kaimunti crop has been gathered in; the outturn is very fair; til and kalai crops are progressing favourably, and the sowing of other crops has been commenced.
Midnapore ...	3·43	Weather bright and rather warm for the season; state and prospects of the crops are fair.
Howrah ...	Nil	The rice harvest is progressing; the few crops sown here in the cold weather are doing well; health is improving.
Houghly ...	1·40	Weather rather warm for the season; the harvesting of late rice is going on; it is a good crop; the rabi crops are being weeded; fever is on the increase; many cases of cholera have been reported from thana Bolaghur.
Burdwan ...	0·14	The amun crop is nearly harvested; the rabi crops are doing well; fever is prevalent; cholera is reported in the Culna sub-division.
Bankoora ...	Nil	Weather cold and at times cloudy; the state and prospects of the crops are the same as reported last week.

Presidency or Province and District.	Rainfall for week preceding.	State of agricultural prospects.
Bengal—continued.
Beerbhoom ...	Nil	Weather seasonable; the harvest of late rice is nearly completed; the rabi crops are doing well.
Sonthal Pergunnahs ...	Nil	Weather not cold for the time of year; no change in the state and prospects of the crops since last report.
Bhāgalpur ...	0·38	Weather clear and cold; the aghani crop is mostly cut and is giving an abundant outturn, which is being exported as fast as threshed out; the rabi prospects are excellent.
Monghyr ...	0·31	Weather warmer than previous week; rain is wanted for the rabi crops.
Purneah ...	0·2	Weather hot for the time of year; some more rain would be beneficial to the wheat; the crop of mustard is good; tobacco is very good.
Maldah ...	Nil	Weather fair, but unseasonably warm; state and prospects of the crops are satisfactory; cholera has much abated, but fever of a bad type is very prevalent in many parts of the district.
Durbhanga ...	0·66	Weather sometimes cloudy and rather hot for the season; the harvesting of rice is nearly complete; the rabi crops are looking well, but in some places they require rain; owing to the failure of the rice crop in some places, and the large exportation now going on, the price of rice has risen to an unusual height.
Mozufferpore ...	0·95	Weather mild and cloudy, with heavy fogs in the morning; the rabi crops are doing fairly.
Sarun ...	Nil	Weather cool and bright, with light clouds at times; the mornings are generally foggy; west wind is prevailing; the prospects of the rabi crops are still good, but rain is urgently required; prices are stationary; public health is good.
Chumpanun ...	0·25	Weather seasonable; no change to report; rain is still wanted for the rabi crops; the price of food-grains has slightly fallen in consequence of importations from the neighbouring districts.
Patna ...	0·72	Weather fine and cold; the reaping of the rice crop is in progress; the rabi crops are looking well, but a little rain is wanted; health is good.
Gya ...	Nil	Weather warmer than usual at this season; no appearance of coming rain; maximum thermometer in the shade 83°2'; estimates of the actual outturn of dhan have been called for; the outturn is known to be far below the average, and this and the exportation still going on are facts which make a little rain for the rabi all the more anxiously looked for; it is very much wanted.
Shahabad ...	0·12	Weather still cloudy, with east wind prevailing; the rabi under Sone irrigation is excellent, but where no irrigation (either from the Sone or from wells) is available, it is reported to be drying up for want of rain.
Hazáribágh ...	Nil	Weather fair; no change to report in the state and prospects of the crops; the present prospects of the rates are favourable.
Lohardugga ...	Nil	There has been no rain throughout the district during the past week, and the prospects of the rabi crops are indifferent in consequence.
Manbhoom ...	Nil	Weather pleasant, but the wind is unusually high, and the absence of the usual Christmas showers may result, as it seemed to do last year, in a too early fall of rain further on, and in an unfavourable distribution of the fall between June and October; nothing new to report; generally there has been a good harvest in the south, and a poor one in the north, of the district; rain is wanted in one pergunnah, where wheat and gram have been grown.
Singhbhoom ...	Nil	Weather seasonable; nothing to report about the paddy crop; the cold weather crops are doing well, and would be better if the usual Christmas rain would fall; there is a good deal of fever reported from Dhalbhoom.
Balasore ...	0·5	Weather rather warm for the season; the winter crops are doing well, and some are being harvested; the outturn of the saradh crop has been an average one; a few cases of small-pox and fever have been reported from the interior.
Cuttack ...	Nil	Weather fine, rather warm for the season; saradh and rabi crops are being reaped, and a good outturn is expected.
Pooree ...	Nil	Weather warm for the season; sky clear; the harvesting of the laghu crop has been completed, the outturn is estimated at three-eighths of an average crop; the saradh crop is being harvested; the miscellaneous winter crops, i. e. , moong , arkhur , kalai , and mustard, promise fair; sugarcane is being cut; datura rice continues to be sown; the state of the mandia crops in the salt tracts south of the Chilka is not very good owing to want of rain; no more cholera.
General Remarks. —Rain is reported to have fallen in many parts of the Province; it will, it is hoped, be beneficial to the growing crops, but will be somewhat detrimental to the rice not yet stored, and to some of the rabi crops, which are already ripe and being gathered; cholera seems to have generally abated, but fever is still very prevalent in some districts.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE, AGRICULTURE, AND COMMERCE.

NOTIFICATIONS.—COMMERCE AND TRADE.

Calcutta, the 9th January 1878.

No. 1 of 1878.—The following Notice to Mariners is published for general information :—

NOTICE TO MARINERS.

HINDOSTAN—WEST COAST—BOMBAY HARBOUR.

Position of Middle Ground.

Notice is hereby given that the Middle Ground battery, Bombay harbour, as at present delineated on the Admiralty Chart No. 2621, is upwards of 12 degrees out in its relative bearing from the Dolphin beacon light, being nearly two cables to the northward of its correct position.

The centre of the Middle Ground should bear from the Dolphin light N. 66° E. 1450 yards, instead of, as now shown on the Chart, N. 54° E.

The soundings along the foreshore, extending from abreast Colaba point to Mody bay and to a distance of half a mile from that shore, appear to have been incorrectly reduced on the above Chart, as a further reduction of from 3 to 5 feet is necessary to represent the actual depth in that portion of the harbour.

[Bearings are Magnetic. Variation 0° 55' Easterly in 1878.]

By Direction of the Government of India,

A. DUNDAS TAYLOR, Comdr. (Late I.N.),

Superintendent, Marine Survey of India.

MARINE SURVEY DEPARTMENT;

CALCUTTA,

The 5th January 1878.

By Order,

G. H. M. BATTEN,

Offg. Secy. to the Govt. of India.

If this Notice is received on boardship, the substance of it should be inserted on the Chart affected by it; but it does not affect the Directions in the Admiralty West Coast of Hindostan Pilot, page 136, where the marks given for clearing the Middle Ground are correct.

The 11th January 1878.

No. 34.—With reference to Notification No. 41 (Surveys) published in the Gazette of India of the 22nd December 1877, His Excellency the Governor General in Council is pleased to notify that the rule therein laid down, prohibiting officers of Her Majesty's Indian Marine or serving under the Marine Department from undertaking private surveys or other private business, except with the express permission of the Government of India, shall be applicable to all officers holding Port appointments.

The prohibition will come into force after the lapse of a period of six months from the date of this notice.

SURVEYS.

The 11th January 1878.

No. 12.—His Excellency the Governor General in Council is pleased to appoint Colonel J. T. Walker, C.B., R.E., Superintendent of the Great Trigonometrical Survey of India, to be Surveyor-General of India, vice Major-General H. L. Thuillier, C.S.I., R.A., retired.

In notifying the retirement of Major-General Thuillier from the office which he has held for nearly seventeen years, and from the department in which he has served upwards of forty years, the Governor General in Council deems it right to place on record the high sense which the Government of India entertain of Major-General Thuillier's services and of the zeal and ability which he has brought to bear upon the discharge of his duties during an unusually long official career.

No. 13.—Major-General H. L. Thuillier, C.S.I., R.A., and Colonel J. T. Walker, C.B., R.E., respectively made over and received charge of the office of Surveyor-General of India on the forenoon of the 1st instant.

G. H. M. BATTEN,

Offg. Secy. to the Govt. of India.

Is hereby given that the Government building for Ice-machine together with the Bungalow and Out-offices, erected for the use of the Engineer in charge of the Machinery and of a Non-Commissioned Officer, with a large compound and Ice-machinery capable of turning out (40) forty maunds of Ice in (24) twenty-four hours, turning lathe, well and pump, and numerous other items, all in working order, will be sold by public auction on the 4th February 1878, at an upset price of Rs. 10,000 for Ice-machine with its apparatus, and Rs. 20,000 for the Buildings and Out-offices.

The sale will take place at Executive Engineer's Office, Military Works Division, Lucknow Cantonment, at 2 p.m., and the purchaser will be required to pay 5 per cent. on the fall of the hammer, and the balance before taking possession of the above property.

The purchaser will have all the property at his risk after the sale is completed.

In case of failure in paying up the balance, the above property will be re-sold, and the loss thereby sustained will be recovered from the purchaser, who will have no claim to the increased sum if obtained by this re-sale.

The buildings are situated on the south side of the Railway line running to Benares, near the General's Bungalow and the Railway Over-bridge.

The purchaser will hold the land on the conditions specified in paragraph 1984 of the Bengal Military Regulations. He will likewise have to comply with all the rules now in force or that may hereafter be introduced in Cantonments.

On completion of the sale, the purchaser will be required to sign a declaration to this effect in the presence of the Cantonment Magistrate.

Some ether expected to arrive shortly from England for use with the Machine will also be offered for sale at the same time and place on conditions to be stated at time of sale.

The Hymns of the Rig-Veda, in the Samhita and Pada Text, Deva-Nagri Character, by Professor F. Max Müller, M. A., in two Volumes. Price, Rs. 24; packing and postage, Rs. 1-12.

* * The Rig-Veda, the oldest book of Indian literature, has very properly been made one of the principal class-books for those who study Sanskrit in the schools and colleges in India, and though at present a scholar-like knowledge of the Vedic hymns is in the examinations required of the more advanced students only, yet, as soon as editions, translations, grammars, and dictionaries shall have rendered the study of these ancient documents more accessible, I doubt not that the time will come when no one in India will call himself a Sanskrit scholar who cannot construe the hymns of the ancient Rishis of his country.—Extract from Preface.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Third Publication.]

The following Act of the Governor-General of India in Council received the assent of His Excellency the Governor-General on the 28th December 1877, and is hereby promulgated for general information :—

ACT No. XIX OF 1877.

An Act to enable certain District Judges to suspend and remove certain ministerial officers, and for other purposes.

WHEREAS it is expedient to empower the District Judges of the Lower and the North-Western Provinces of the Presidency of Fort William, and the District Judges of the Presidency of Fort Saint George to suspend and remove ministerial officers of the Courts of Subordinate Judges, Munsifs and District Munsifs; and whereas it is also expedient to provide in the Presidency of Fort Saint George for the transfer of ministerial officers from one Court to another; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

1. After the second paragraph of section 36 of Amendment of Act the Bengal Civil Courts Act, No. VI of 1871. 1871, the following paragraph shall be inserted (that is to say) :—

“The District Judge, within whose jurisdiction such Court is situate, may, by order, suspend or remove any such ministerial officer.”

2. For section 23 of the Madras Civil Courts Act, 1873, the following shall be substituted (that is to say) :—

“23. The ministerial officers of the Courts of the Subordinate Judges and District Munsifs shall be appointed by such Subordinate Judges and District Munsifs, respectively, subject to the approval or confirmation of the District Judge within whose jurisdiction such Courts are situate, and may be suspended or removed from office either by the said District Judge or (subject to his approval or confirmation) by such Subordinate Judges and District Munsifs respectively.”

Addition after section 24 of Act III of 1873.

3. After section 24 of the same Act, the following section shall be inserted :—

“24 A. The Local Government may, at the instance of the District Judge, transfer from any Court, except the High Court, to any other Court, except the High Court, all or any of the ministerial officers of the Court of such Judge, or of any Subordinate Judge or District Munsif under his control.

“The District Judge may transfer all or any of the ministerial officers of any Court under his control to any other such Court.”

SCHEDULE.

An Act to amend the law relating to Opium.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the law relating to opium; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Preamble.

1. This Act may be called "The Opium Act, 1878":

Short title.

It shall extend to such local areas as the Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, from time to time direct;

Local extent.

And it shall come into force in each of such areas on such day as the Governor General in Council in like manner directs in this behalf.

Commencement.

2. The enactments mentioned in the schedule hereto annexed shall be repealed to the extent specified in the third column of the said schedule:

Repeal of enactments.

And in Acts No. XI of 1849, No. XXI of 1856 and No. X of 1871, and in Bengal Act No. II of 1876, the words "intoxicating drugs" (wherever they occur) shall not include opium.

Amendment of Acts.

The reference made to Bombay Regulations XXI of 1827 and XX of 1830 in Act No. VII of 1836 shall be read as if made to the corresponding sections of this Act.

3. In this Act, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context—

Interpretation-clause.

"Opium" includes also poppy-heads, preparations or admixtures of opium, and intoxicating drugs prepared from the poppy:

"Magistrate" means, in the Presidency-town

"Magistrate."

a Presidency Magistrate, or elsewhere a Magistrate of the first class or (when specially empowered by the Local Government to try cases under the Act) a Magistrate of the second class:

"Import" means to bring into the territory administered by any Local Government from sea, or from foreign territory, or from a territory administered by any other Local Government:

"Import."

"Export" means to take out of the territory administered by any Local Government to sea, or to any foreign territory, or to any territory administered by another Local Government:

"Transport" means to remove from one place to another within the territories administered by the same Local Government.

"Transport."

4. Except as permitted by this Act, or by any other enactment relating to opium for the time being in force, or by rules framed under this Act or under any such enactment, no one shall—

- (a) cultivate the poppy;
- (b) manufacture opium;
- (c) possess opium;
- (d) transport opium;
- (e) import or export opium; or
- (f) sell opium.

5. The Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor

Power to make rules to permit such matters. General in Council, may from time to time by notification in the local Gazette make rules consistent with this Act, to permit absolutely or subject to the payment of duty or to any other conditions and to regulate within the whole or any specified part of the territories administered by such Government, all or any of the following matters:—

- (a) the cultivation of the poppy;
- (b) the manufacture of opium;
- (c) the possession of opium;
- (d) the transport of opium;
- (e) the importation or exportation of opium; and

(f) the sale of opium, and the form of duties leviable on the sale of opium by retail:

Provided that no duty shall be levied under any such rule on any opium imported and on which a duty is imposed by or under the law relating to sea customs for the time being in force or under section six.

6. The Governor General in Council may from time to time, by notification in the Gazette of India, impose such duty as he thinks fit on opium or on any kind of opium imported by land into British India or into any specified part thereof, and may alter or abolish any duty so imposed.

7. The Governor General in Council may, by order notified in the Gazette of India,

(a) authorize any Local Government to establish warehouses for opium legally imported into, or intended to be exported from, the territories administered by such Local Government, and

- (b) cancel any such order.

So long as such order remains in force, the Local Government may, by notification published in the official Gazette,

(c) declare any place to be a warehouse for all or any opium legally imported, whether before or after the payment of any duty leviable thereon, into the territories administered by such Government, or into any specified part thereof, or intended to be exported thence, and

(d) cancel any such declaration.

An order under clause (b) shall cancel all previous declarations under clause (c) of this section relating to places in the territories to which such order refers.

So long as such declaration remains in force, the owner of all such opium shall be bound to deposit it in such warehouse.

8. The Local Government, with the previous Power to make rules relating to warehouses.

sanction of the Governor General in Council, may, from time to time by notification in the local Gazette, make rules consistent with this Act to regulate the safe custody of opium warehoused under section seven; the levy of fees for such warehousing; the removal of such opium for sale or exportation; and the manner in which it shall be disposed of, if any duty or fees leviable on it be not paid within twelve months from the date of warehousing the same.

9. Any person who, in contravention of this

Penalty for illegal cultivation of poppy, &c.

Act, or of rules made and notified under section five or section eight,

(a) cultivates the poppy, or

(b) manufactures opium, or

(c) possesses opium, or

(d) transports opium, or

(e) imports or exports opium, or

(f) sells opium, or

(g) omits to warehouse opium or removes or does any act in respect of warehoused opium,

and any person who otherwise contravenes any such rule, shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be punished for each such offence with imprisonment for a term which may extend to one year, or with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, or with both;

and, where a fine is imposed, the convicting Magistrate shall direct the offender to be imprisoned in default of payment of the fine for a term which may extend to six months, and such imprisonment shall be in excess of any other imprisonment to which he may have been sentenced.

10. In prosecutions under section nine, it shall be presumed, until the contrary is proved, that all opium for which the accused person is unable to account satisfactorily is opium in respect of which he has committed an offence under this Act.

11. In any case in which an offence under section nine has been committed—

Confiscation of opium.

(a) the poppy so cultivated;

(b) the opium in respect of which any offence under the same section has been committed;

(c) where, in the case of an offence under clause (d) or (e) of the same section, the offender is transporting, importing or exporting any opium exceeding the quantity (if any) which he is permitted to transport, import or export, as the case may be, the whole of the opium which he is transporting, importing or exporting;

(d) where, in the case of an offence under clause (f) of the same section, the offender has in his possession any opium other than the opium in respect of which the offence has been committed, the whole of such other opium, shall be liable to confiscation.

The vessels, packages and coverings in which any opium liable to confiscation under this section is found, and the other contents (if any) of the vessel or package in which such opium may be concealed, and the animals and conveyances used in carrying it, shall likewise be liable to confiscation.

12. When the offender is convicted, or when

Order of confiscation the person charged with an offence in respect of any opium is acquitted, but the Magistrate decides that the opium is liable to confiscation, such confiscation may be ordered by the Magistrate.

Whenever confiscation is authorised by this Act, the officer ordering it may give the owner of the thing liable to be confiscated an option to pay, in lieu of confiscation, such fine as the officer thinks fit.

When an offence against this Act has been committed, but the offender is not known or cannot be found, or when opium not in the possession of any person cannot be satisfactorily accounted for, the case shall be enquired into and determined by the Collector of the District or Deputy Commissioner, or by any other officer authorized by the Local Government in this behalf, either personally or in right of his office, who may order such confiscation: Provided that no such order shall be made until the expiration of one month from the date of seizing the things intended to be confiscated or without hearing the persons (if any) claiming any right thereto and the evidence (if any) which they produce in support of their claims.

13. The Local Government may, with the previous

Power to make rules, regarding disposal of things confiscated sanction of the Governor General in Council, from time to time, by notification in the local Gazette, make rules consistent with this Act to regulate—

(a) the disposal of all things confiscated under this Act; and

(b) the rewards to be paid to officers and informers out of the proceeds of fines and confiscations under this Act.

14. Any officer of any of the departments of Power to enter, arrest and seize, on information that opium is unlawfully kept in any enclosed place.

Excise, Police, Customs, Salt, Opium or Revenue, superior in rank to a peon or constable, who may in right of his office be authorized by the Local Government in this behalf, and who has reason to believe, from personal knowledge or from information given by any person and taken down in writing, that opium liable to confiscation under this Act is manufactured, kept or concealed in any building, vessel or enclosed place, may, between sunrise and sunset,

(a) enter into any such building, vessel or place;

(b) in case of resistance, break open any door and remove any other obstacle to such entry;

(c) seize such opium and all materials used in the manufacture thereof, and any other thing which he has reason to believe to be liable to confiscation under section eleven or any other law for the time being in force relating to opium, and

(d) detain and search, and if he think proper arrest, any person whom he has reason to believe to be guilty of any offence relating to such opium under this or any other law for the time being in force.

Power to seize opium in open places. 15. Any officer of any of the said departments may

(a) seize, in any open place or in transit, any opium or other thing which he has reason to believe to be liable to confiscation under section eleven or any other law for the time being in force relating to opium,

(b) detain and search any person whom he has reason to believe to be guilty of any offence against this or any other such law, and, if such person has opium in his possession, arrest him and any other persons in his company.

16. All searches under section fourteen or section fifteen shall be made in accordance with the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

17. The officers of the several departments mentioned in section fourteen shall, upon notice given or request made, be legally bound to assist each other in carrying out the provisions of this Act.

18. Any officer of any of the said departments who, without reasonable ground of suspicion, enters or searches, or causes to be entered or searched, any building, vessel or place, or vexatiously and unnecessarily seizes the property of any person on the pretence of seizing or searching for any opium or other thing liable to confiscation under this Act, or vexatiously and unnecessarily detains, searches or arrests any person, shall for every such offence be punished with fine not exceeding five hundred rupees.

19. The Collector of the District, Deputy Commissioner or other officer authorized by the Local Government in this behalf, either personally or in right of his office, or a Magistrate, may issue his warrant for the arrest of any person whom he has reason to believe to have committed an offence relating to opium, or for the search, whether by day or night, of any building or vessel or place in which he has reason to believe opium liable to confiscation to be kept or concealed.

All warrants issued under this section shall be executed in accordance with the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

20. Every person arrested, and thing seized, under section fourteen or section fifteen, shall be forwarded without delay to the officer in charge of the nearest Police-station; and every person arrested and thing seized under section nineteen shall be forwarded without delay to the officer by whom the warrant was issued.

Every officer to whom any person or thing is forwarded under this section shall, with all convenient despatch, take such measures as may be necessary for the disposal according to law of such person or thing.

21. Whenever any officer makes any arrest or seizure under this Act, he shall within forty-eight hours next after such arrest or seizure make a full report of all the particulars of such arrest or seizure to his immediate official superior.

Report of arrests and seizures.

22. In the case of alleged illegal cultivation of the poppy, the crop shall not be removed, but shall, pending the disposal of the case, be attached by an officer superior in rank to a peon or constable, who may in right of his office be authorized by the Local Government in this behalf; and such officer shall require the cultivator to give bail in a reasonable amount (to be fixed by such officer) for his appearance before the Magistrate by whom the case is to be disposed of, and such cultivator shall not be arrested unless within a reasonable time he fails to give such bail:

Provided that, wherever Act No. XIII of 1857 (An Act to consolidate and amend the law relating to the cultivation of the Poppy and the manufacture of Opium in the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal), or any part thereof, is in force, nothing in this section shall apply to such cultivation.

23. Any arrear of any fee or duty imposed under this Act or any rule made hereunder, and any arrear due from any farmer of opium-revenue, may be recovered from the person primarily liable to pay the same to the Government or from his surety (if any) as if it were an arrear of land-revenue.

24. When any amount is due to a farmer of opium-revenue from his licensee, in respect of a license, such farmer may make an application to the Collector of the District, Deputy Commissioner or other officer authorized by the Local Government in this behalf, praying such officer to recover such amount on behalf of the applicant; and on receiving such application, such Collector, Deputy Commissioner or other officer may in his discretion recover such amount as if it were an arrear of land-revenue, and shall pay any amount so recovered to the applicant:

Provided that the execution of any process issued by such Collector, Deputy Collector or other officer for the recovery of such amount, shall be stayed if the licensee institutes a suit in the Civil Court to try the demand of the farmer and furnishes security to the satisfaction of such officer for the payment of the amount which such Court may adjudge to be due from him to such farmer:

Provided also that nothing contained in this section or done thereunder shall affect the right of any farmer of opium-revenue to recover by suit in the Civil Court or otherwise any amount due to him from such licensee.

25. When any person in compliance with any rule made hereunder gives a bond for the performance of any duty or act, such duty or act shall be deemed to be a public duty or an act in which the public are interested, as the case may be, within the meaning of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, section 74, and upon breach of the condition of such bond by him, the whole sum named therein as the amount to be paid in case of such breach may be recovered from him as if it were an arrear of land-revenue.

Recovery of arrears of fees, duties, &c.

Recovery of penalties due under bond.

Bills introduced into the Council of the Governor General for making
Laws and Regulations, or published under Rule 22.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Third Publication.]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor-General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 27th December 1877 :—

No. 23 of 1877.

A Bill for the licensing of trades and dealings in the Panjáb, the North-Western Provinces and Oudh.

Preamble. WHEREAS, in order to provide means for defraying the public expenditure from time to time incurred and to be incurred for the relief and prevention of famine in British India, it is necessary to effect a permanent increase of the revenue available for provincial purposes; and it is therefore expedient that persons carrying on trades and dealings in the territories and provinces respectively administered by the Lieutenant-Governor of the Panjáb, the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces and the Chief Commissioner of Oudh, should take out licenses and pay for the same; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title.

1. This Act may be called "The Northern India License Act, 1878."

Local extent. It extends to the territories under the administration of the Lieutenant-Governor of the Panjáb, the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces and the Chief Commissioner of Oudh, respectively; but nothing herein contained applies to persons earning their livelihood solely by agriculture.

This Act shall come into force in any of the said territories on such date as the Governor General in Council by notification in the Gazette of India directs in that behalf.

2. When this Act comes into force in the territories under the administration of the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces, Act No. VIII of 1877 (for the licensing of certain trades and dealings in the North-Western Provinces) shall be repealed.

3. In this Act "Collector" means the chief officer in charge of the revenue-administration of a district.

4. Every person who, on or after the first day of April 1878, falls, in any of the said territories, under any of the heads specified in the schedule hereto annexed, and carries on (whether on behalf of himself or any other person) his trade or dealing, shall take out a license under this Act, and shall pay for the same the annual fee mentioned in such schedule as payable by persons of the class and grade to which he belongs.

5. Every license under this Act shall be granted by the Collector of the District in which the person requiring such license carries on his trade or dealing: provided that, if such person carries on such trade or dealing in more than one district, the license shall be granted by the Collector of the district in which his principal place of business is situate.

Every such license shall be signed by the Collector granting it, or by such officer as he may appoint in this behalf.

Particulars to be specified in the license.

6. Every such license shall specify—

- (a) the date of the grant thereof;
 - (b) the name, father's name, caste and trade or dealing of the licensee;
 - (c) the class and grade to which he belongs;
 - (d) the fee paid for the license;
 - (e) the place or places where the licensee intends to carry on his trade or dealing for the ensuing year; and
 - (f) the term for which the license shall remain in force,
- and shall be received in evidence as prima facie proof of all matters contained therein.

7. Every such license shall have effect and continue in force from the day of the date thereof till the first day of January next after the date of the grant thereof.

8. Every person to whom any such license has been granted, and who desires to continue to carry on his trade or dealing after the expiration of such license, shall take out a fresh license for that purpose for the following year, to expire on the day appointed in the last preceding section, and shall renew the same so long as he desires to continue to carry on such trade or dealing.

List of Licensees.

9. As soon as may be after the first day of April 1878 and the first day of January in every subsequent year, the Collector shall prepare a list of the persons to be licensed under this Act in his district. Such list shall state—

- (a) the trade or dealing of each of the persons therein named;
- (b) the class and grade under which he is charged; and
- (c) the fee to be paid for his license.

Such list shall be in the language of the district, shall be filed in the office of the Collector, and shall be open to public inspection at all reasonable times without any payment.

10. The Collector shall, from time to time, determine under which of the classes and grades mentioned in the said schedule every person to whom a license may be granted by him as aforesaid shall be charged, and shall amend the said list accordingly.

The list or such part or parts thereof as the Collector thinks fit shall be published in the principal mohallas or ganjes of all towns, and in the chaupál, or other public place, in all villages concerned, together with a notification that if any person mentioned in such list continues his trade or dealing, payment of the amount specified in the list as payable by him must be made in the year 1878 within thirty days of such publication in that year and within thirty days next after the first day of January in each succeeding year.

11. The Collector may, by a notice in writing, require the occupier of any house to forward to him a statement in writing signed by such occupier of the names of all persons residing in such house at the date of the notice and of their respective callings.

12. Any person mentioned in the list referred to in sections nine and ten and objecting to the class or grade under which he is charged may, within thirty days after such publication, or within such further time as the Collector may in each case think fit, apply by petition to the Collector in order to establish his right to have his name transferred to another class or grade, or altogether removed from the list.

13. The Collector shall fix a day for the hearing of the petition, and on the day so fixed, or on such subsequent day as he may from time to time direct, shall hear the same and pass such order thereon as he thinks fit:

Provided that if, in his judgment, the petitioner is able to shew that the fee which has been charged exceeds two per cent. upon his annual net earnings, such excess shall, for the purpose of section twelve, be deemed a valid objection.

Provided also that the Collector shall not, in the course of any proceedings under this section, call for any evidence except at the instance of the petitioner, or in order to ascertain the correctness of facts alleged by him.

14. Any person dissatisfied with such order may within fifteen days from the date thereof present a petition of appeal to the Commissioner of Revenue of the Division, whose decision upon such appeal shall be final.

Every petition presented under this section shall be accompanied by a copy of the petition to the Collector, a copy of his order thereon, and all other documents (if any) connected with the case.

15. The Collector may in his discretion remit the whole or any part of the fee payable under this Act by any person who has carried on his trade or dealing for a portion of the year only.

16. A person or firm coming under more than one of the designations in the said schedule shall be chargeable only under one of the said designations at the discretion of the Collector; and in the case of a firm, payment by any one of the partners shall, for the purposes of this Act, be considered payment by the firm.

17. If, after expiry of the period mentioned in the notification published under section ten, for payment of the amount specified therein, any person (whether he is or is not mentioned in the said list) carries on his trade or dealing without having taken out a license as required by this Act, he shall be liable, by order of the Collector, to pay a fine not exceeding thrice the amount payable by him in respect of such license, exclusive of the amount so payable; and on receipt of such payment the Collector shall grant him a license.

All sums due under this section and all fees payable under this Act shall be recoverable as if they were arrears of land-revenue.

18. Every person holding a license under this Act shall produce and show such license when required so to do by an officer generally or specially empowered in writing by the Collector to make such requisition.

License to be produced on demand.

But no person shall be proceeded against for neglect or refusal to produce such license except at the instance of the Collector.

Prosecution to be at instance of Collector.

19. Courts of Wards and Receivers and managers appointed by any Court in British India, shall be chargeable under this Act in respect of any trade or dealing of which the income is officially in their possession or under their control.

Receivers and managers chargeable.

20. When any trustee, guardian, curator, committee or agent is charged under this Act in such capacity, or when any Court of Wards or Receiver or manager appointed by any Court is charged under this Act, every person and Court so charged may, from time to time, out of the money coming to his or its possession as such trustee, guardian, curator, committee or agent, or as such Court of Wards, Receiver or manager, retain so much as is sufficient to pay the fee charged.

Every such person or Court is hereby indemnified for every retention and payment made in pursuance of this Act.

Municipalities.

21. The Collector of the District may require any Municipal Committee to furnish, within a period to be specified under the orders of the Local Government, returns showing the names and numbers of persons chargeable under this Act resident within the limits of such Municipality, together with the class and grade to which they respectively belong and the fees payable by them respectively.

If the Municipal Committee fails within the period prescribed to make such returns, or if it make such returns but the Collector of the District has reason to doubt their accuracy, he may at any time cause a return showing the names, numbers, classes and grades aforesaid to be prepared in such manner as may be prescribed by the Local Government.

22. When the return mentioned in section 21 has been furnished or prepared, notice shall be served on the Municipality, calling on it to pay to the Collector of the District, within a period to be specified in the notice, a sum calculated on such return in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

Any Municipality may appropriate any part of its revenues to the payment of the sum leviable from it under this section, or raise such further sums in addition to its existing revenue as may be needful for such payment: provided that such further sums be raised in accordance with the Act under which such Municipality is constituted.

Miscellaneous.

23. All fees and penalties paid or recovered under this Act shall be carried to the credit of the Local Government.

The amount so credited shall be applied; in such manner as the Governor General in Council thinks fit, for the purpose of defraying expenditure incurred or to be incurred for the relief and prevention of famine in the territories administered by such Local Government, or, if the Governor General in Council so directs, in any other part of British India.

24. All or any of the powers and duties conferred and imposed by this Act on a Collector may, subject to the orders of the Collector of the District, be exercised and performed by an Assistant Collector or such other officer as the Local Government from time to time appoints in this behalf.

Powers of Collector under Act may be exercised by other officers.

25. Every person shall be legally bound to furnish information to any officer exercising any of the powers of a Collector under this Act when required by him to do so.

Obligation to furnish information to Collector.

26. The Local Government may, from time to time, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council,—

Power to exempt and make rules.

(a) exempt any portion of the territories administered by such Government, or any persons or class of persons in such territories, from the operation of this Act;

(b) exempt from the operation of this Act any persons whose respective nett annual earnings are less than such sum as the Local Government may, from time to time, direct in this behalf;

(c) make rules consistent with this Act, (1) for regulating the time and manner of collecting the fees charged under this Act, (2) for providing in any case or class of cases for serving notices on persons charged under this Act, (3) for determining the mode in which persons belonging to any class shall be distributed into grades, and (4) generally for the guidance of officers in matters connected with the enforcement of this Act.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

In the Financial Statement for 1877-78, attention was drawn to the necessity imposed upon the Government of India of bringing the public Revenues and Expenditure into a condition of proper equilibrium. The events that have occurred since that time have shown that the urgency of the case has become greater with each succeeding month of the prolonged crisis through which the country has been passing.

After the Famine of 1874 in Northern Bengal, the Government of Lord Northbrook declared that such calamities could no longer be treated as abnormal or exceptional, and that sound financial principles required that the grave obligations entailed by Famine upon the Government should be explicitly recognised and provided for among the ordinary charges of the State.

The Secretary of State agreed with Lord Northbrook's Government, that the periodical occurrence of Famine ought to enter into the calculation of the Government of India when making provision for its ordinary wants from year to year, and that such a surplus should be provided in each year as would make a sensible impression on the debt incurred in times of Famine. Her Majesty's Government have recently reaffirmed this principle.

To enable the Government to discharge the obligations placed upon it to meet these requirements, additional taxation has been deemed necessary. To provide for a portion of this in a manner suited to the condition of the country and the special circumstances of the case, the present measure is proposed.

[Third Publication.]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor-General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 27th December 1877 :—

No. 24 of 1877.

A Bill for the levy of Additional Rates on Land in the North-Western Provinces.

WHEREAS, in order to defray the expenditure incurred and to be incurred for the relief and prevention of famine, it is necessary to make a permanent increase to the annual revenues available for provincial purposes, and it is therefore expedient to provide, in the territories administered by the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces, for the levy on land of additional rates to be applied to local purposes; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

1. This Act may be called "The North-Western Provinces Local Rates Enhancement Act, 1878," and it shall come into force on such date as the Governor General in Council by notification in the Gazette of India directs.

2. On and from such date Act No. VII of 1877 (to amend the law relating to assignments from the General Provincial Fund established under the North-Western Provinces Local Rates Act, 1871) shall be repealed.

3. In section three of the North-Western Provinces Local Rates Act, 1871, after the proviso the following shall be inserted, that is to say—

"Every estate situate in a district of which the land-revenue is liable to periodical revision, shall be liable, in addition to any rates levied under the foregoing portion of this section, to the payment of such further rate, not exceeding one per cent. on its annual value, as the Lieutenant-Governor from time to time imposes.

"Such further rate shall be paid by the landlord independently of, and in addition to, any land-revenue assessed on the estate."

4. To section four of the same Act the following clause shall be added, that is to say :—

"The Lieutenant-Governor may from time to time impose upon any such estate, in addition to any rate imposed under the first clause of this section, a further rate of such amount not exceeding half an anna for each acre as aforesaid as he thinks fit."

5. In sections five, seven, and eight of the same Act, after the word "rate" wherever it occurs, the words "or further rate" shall be inserted.

6. For section ten of the same Act, the following section shall be substituted :

"10 (a). From such fund the Lieutenant-Governor shall in each year appropriate such amount, not exceeding the proceeds of the further rates assessed in such year under sections three and four, as the Governor General in Council may direct, for the purpose of defraying expenditure incurred or to be incurred for the relief and prevention of famine in the said territories.

"Provided that the whole or any portion of such amount may, if the Governor General in Council so directs, be expended for the relief and prevention of famine in any other part of British India.

"(b). The Lieutenant-Governor may, from time to time, assign from such fund such amount as he thinks fit, to be applied in payment of charges incurred or to be incurred on account of such canals and railways as he, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may declare to be works of general provincial utility.

"Provided that the amounts so assigned in any year shall not exceed one-tenth of the proceeds of the rates assessed in such year under the first clause of section three and the first clause of section four.

"(c). Subject to the appropriation directed by clause (a), the Lieutenant-Governor shall from time to time allot from such fund such amounts as he thinks fit to be applied in each district for expenditure on all or any of the following purposes:—

"(1.) The construction, repair, and maintenance of roads and other means of communication;

"(2.) The maintenance of the Rural Police and District-post;

"(3.) The construction and repair of school-houses, the maintenance and inspection of schools, the training of teachers, and the establishment of scholarships;

"(4.) The construction and repair of hospitals, dispensaries, lunatic asylums, markets, wells and tanks; the payment of all charges connected with the purposes for which such buildings or works have been constructed, and any other local works likely to promote the public health, comfort or convenience.

"Provided that the amounts so allotted in any year for any district shall not be less than nine-tenths of the proceeds of the rates assessed under the first clause of section three and the first clause of section four in such district in such year."

7. In section eleven of the same Act, for the word "assignments" the word "allotments" shall be substituted.

In section twelve of the same Act, for the word "assignment" in each of the places where it occurs, the word "allotment" shall be substituted, and for the word "reassigned" the word "re-allotted" shall be substituted.

And in section thirteen of the same Act, for the word "assignment" the word "allotment" shall be substituted.

And in section fourteen of the same Act, for the word "amount" in each of the places where it occurs, the word "allotment" shall be substituted.

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor-General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 27th December 1877:—

No. 25 of 1877.

A Bill for the levy of Additional Rates on Land in Oudh.

WHEREAS, in order to defray the expenditure incurred and to be incurred for the relief and prevention of famine, it is necessary to make a permanent increase to the annual revenues available for Provincial purposes; and it is therefore expedient to provide, in the territories administered by the Chief Commissioner of Oudh, for the levy on land of additional rates to be applied to local purposes; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. This Act may be called "The Oudh Local Rates Enhancement Act, 1878;" and it shall come into force on such date as the Governor General in Council by notification in the Gazette of India directs.

2. In section three of the Oudh Local Rates Act XVII of 1871, section 3, amended. for the word "one" the word "two" shall be substituted.

3. For section ten of the said Act the following shall be substituted:—
Now section substituted for section 10 of the same Act.

"10 (a). From such fund the Chief Commissioner shall in each year appropriate such amount, not exceeding four-ninths of the proceeds of the rate assessed in such year under this Act, as the Governor General in Council may direct, for the purpose of defraying expenditure incurred or to be incurred for the relief and prevention of famine in the said territories:

"Provided that the whole or any portion of such amount may, if the Governor General in Council so directs, be expended for the relief and prevention of famine in any other part of British India.

"(b.) Subject to such appropriation, the Chief Commissioner shall from time to time allot from the said fund such amounts as he thinks fit to be applied in each district for expenditure on all or any of the following purposes:—

"(1.) The construction, repair, and maintenance of roads and other means of communication;

"(2.) The construction and repair of school-houses, the maintenance and inspection of schools, the training of teachers, and the establishment of scholarships;

"(3.) The construction and repair of hospitals, dispensaries, lunatic asylums, markets, wells and tanks; the payment of all charges connected with the purposes for which such buildings or works have been constructed, and any other local works and undertakings of public utility, likely to promote the public health, comfort or convenience.

"Provided that the amounts so allotted in any year for any district shall not be less than five-ninths of the proceeds of the rate assessed in such district in such year."

4. In sections eleven and twelve of the same Act, for the word "assignment," in each of the places in which it occurs, the word "allotment" shall be substituted, and for the word "re-assigned" the word "re-allotted" shall be substituted.

5. In section thirteen of the same Act, for the words "mentioned in" the words "allotted under" shall be substituted.

Secy. to the Govt. of India.

[Third Publication.]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor-General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 27th December 1877:—

No. 26 of 1877.

A Bill for the levy of Additional Rates on Land in the Panjáb.

* WHEREAS, in order to defray the expenditure incurred and to be incurred for the relief and prevention of famine, it is necessary to make a permanent increase to the annual revenues available for provincial purposes, and it is therefore expedient to provide, in the territories administered by the Lieutenant-Governor of the Panjáb, for the levy on land of additional rates to be applied to local purposes; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. This Act may be called "The Panjáb Local Rates Enhancement Act, 1878;"

And it shall come into force on such date as the Governor General in Council by notification in the Gazette of India directs.

2. On and from such date the following portions of the Panjáb Local Rates Act, 1871, shall be repealed, that is to say—

(a). in section three, the words and figures following, namely, "shall be computed as from the first day of April 1871 and:"

(b). in section four, the illustration.

3. In section three of the said Act, for the word "six" the word "eight" shall be substituted.

4. For section six of the said Act the following shall be substituted:—

"6. (a). From the sums so credited, the Lieutenant-Governor shall in each year appropriate such amount as the Governor General in Council may direct for the purpose of defraying a due proportion of the expenditure incurred or to be incurred for the relief and prevention of famine in the said territories:

"Provided that the whole or any portion of such amount may, if the Governor General in Council so directs, be expended for the relief and prevention of famine in any other part of British India.

"(b). Subject to such appropriation, the Lieutenant-Governor shall from time to time allot from the said sums such amount as he thinks fit to be applied in each district for expenditure on all or any of the following purposes:—

“(1.) The construction, repair, and maintenance of roads and other means of communication;

“(2.) The construction and repair of school-houses, the maintenance and inspection of schools, the training of teachers, and the establishment of scholarships;

“(3.) The construction and repair of hospitals, dispensaries, lunatic asylums, wells, and tanks; the payment of all charges connected with the purposes for which such buildings or works have been constructed, the planting and preservation of trees, and any other local works likely to promote the public health, comfort, or convenience.

“Provided that the amounts so allotted in any year for any district shall not in the aggregate be less than three-fourths of the proceeds of the rate assessed in such district in such year.”

5. In sections seven, eight and nine of the same

Sections 7, 8, and 9 of same Act amended. Act, for the words “assignment” and “assignments” wherever they occur, the words “allotment” and “allotments” shall be respectively substituted; and in section eight of the same Act, for the word “re-assigned” the word “re-allotted” shall be substituted.

6. In section ten of the said Act, for the words “mentioned in” the words “allotted under” shall be substituted.

Section 10 of the same amended.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

In the Financial Statement for 1877-78, attention was drawn to the necessity imposed upon the Government of India of bringing the public Revenues and Expenditure into a condition of proper equilibrium. The events that have occurred since that time have shown that the urgency of the case has become greater with each succeeding month of the prolonged crisis through which the country has been passing.

After the Famine of 1874 in Northern Bengal, the Government of Lord Northbrook declared that such calamities could no longer be treated as abnormal or exceptional, and that sound financial principles required that the grave obligations entailed by Famine upon the Government should be explicitly recognised and provided for among the ordinary charges of the State.

The Secretary of State agreed with Lord Northbrook's Government that the periodical occurrence of Famine ought to enter into the calculation of the Government of India when making provision for its ordinary wants from year to year, and that such a surplus should be provided in each year as would make a sensible impression on the debt incurred in times of Famine. Her Majesty's Government have recently re-affirmed this principle.

To enable the Government to discharge the obligations placed upon it to meet these requirements, additional taxation has been deemed necessary. To provide for a portion of this in a manner suited to the condition of the country and the special circumstances of the case, the present measure is proposed.

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor-General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 27th December 1877:—

No. 27 of 1877.

A Bill for the levy of Additional Rates on land in the Central Provinces.

WHEREAS, in order to defray the expenditure incurred and to be incurred for the relief and prevention of famine, it is necessary to make a permanent increase to the annual revenues available for provincial purposes; and it is therefore expedient to provide, in the territories administered by the Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces, for the levy of additional rates on land to be applied to local purposes; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. This Act may be called “The Central Provinces Additional Rates Act, 1878.”

It extends only to the territories administered by the Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces;

And it shall come into force on such date as the Governor General in Council by notification in the Gazette of India directs.

2. Every estate shall be liable, in addition to the rates and cesses payable under any settlement for the time being in force, to the payment of such further rate not exceeding one per cent. on its annual value, as the Chief Commissioner, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, from time to time imposes.

“Annual value” means

(1). in cases in which the settlement of the land-revenue is liable to periodical revision, double the amount of the land-revenue for the time being assessed on an estate;

(2). in cases in which such settlement is not liable to such revision, or in which the land-revenue has been, wholly or in part, released, compounded for, redeemed or assigned, double the amount which, if the settlement were liable to such revision, or an assessment at full rates were to be made, would be assessable as land-revenue on the estate.

3. All sums due on account of any rate imposed under this Act shall be recoverable as if they were arrears of land-revenue due on the land on account of which the rate is payable.

4. The proceeds of all rates levied under this Act shall be carried to the credit of a general provincial fund.

5. From such fund the Chief Commissioner shall from time to time appropriate such amount as the Governor General in Council may direct, for the purpose of defraying a due proportion of the expenditure incurred or to be incurred in the said territories for the relief and prevention of famine:

Provided that the whole or any portion of such amount may, if the Governor General in Council so directs, be expended on the same objects in any part of British India.

Subject to such appropriation, any portion of the fund may be applied by the Chief Commissioner to such local works likely to promote the public health, comfort or convenience as he thinks fit.

6. The Chief Commissioner, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may by notification in the Local Gazette from time to time—

(a) determine by what instalments and at what times such rate shall be payable, and by whom it shall be assessed, collected and paid;

(b) make rules consistent with this Act for the guidance of officers in matters connected with its enforcement;

(c) exempt any portion of the territories under his government from the operation of this Act, or exempt any estate from liability to pay the whole or any part of any rate under this Act;

(d) direct fresh measurements of estates liable to pay rates under this Act, and vary the assessments accordingly.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

In the Financial Statement for 1877-78, attention was drawn to the necessity imposed upon the Government of India of bringing the public Revenues and Expenditure into a condition of proper equilibrium. The events that have occurred since that time have shown that the urgency of the case has become greater with each succeeding month of the prolonged crisis through which the country has been passing.

After the Famine of 1874 in Northern Bengal, the Government of Lord Northbrook declared that such calamities could no longer be treated as abnormal or exceptional, and that sound financial principles required that the grave obligations entailed by Famine upon the Government should be explicitly recognised and provided for among the ordinary charges of the State.

The Secretary of State agreed with Lord Northbrook's Government, that the periodical occurrence of Famine ought to enter into the calculation of the Government of India when making provision for its ordinary wants from year to year, and that such a surplus should be provided in each year as would make a sensible impression on the debt incurred in times of Famine. Her Majesty's Government have recently re-affirmed this principle.

To enable the Government to discharge the obligations placed upon it to meet these requirements, additional taxation has been deemed necessary. To provide for a portion of this in a manner suited to the condition of the country and the special circumstances of the case, the present measure is proposed.

WEEKLY CONDITION REPORT OF THE DISTRESSED DISTRICTS OF THE

PROVINCE OF MYSORE.

(No. 47.)

Special Famine Report for the Week ending 29th December 1877.Statement No. 47, regarding Famine Relief operations in the Province of Mysore for the Week ending the 29th December 1877.

The weather continued fine and clear during the week, and, on the whole, this has somewhat benefited the crops on the ground. The ballar and tur, the leaves and pods of which were destroyed by caterpillars, have put out new flowers, and are struggling to deserve well of the country. A fairly good account of the crops in Eastern Kolar has been received, but in Tûmkûr the ragi as it is thrashed out is disappointing the expectations of the cultivators. In Hassan the kulti is being cut; but though the area of this crop is large, the produce is small. The quantity of land sown with Vaisak paddy is unusually great, and is still being extended, and the prospects of this important crop are excellent.

2. Prices are a little easier than in the preceding week, but there is not much change. The imports by rail continue large, amounting to 1,520 tons, or nearly 300 more than in the preceding week. The exports from Bangalore as recorded by the Octroi officials have fallen to 768 tons; but no great reliance can be placed on these figures.

3. The number of Civil Relief Works is being steadily reduced, and many which did not attract a class of people who appeared to be in need of relief have been struck out of this list, though they are still carried on with ordinary labour and rates of pay at the cost of the District Funds. In Tûmkûr only one road remains under the Civil Officers, and two in Chitaldrug. Several less important works in Hassan, Kadur, and Shimoga were opened tentatively, but do not appear to be needed, and are now being closed. A lower scale of wages has been recently sanctioned for Civil Relief Works, and this of itself will probably reduce the applicants.

4. On the D. P. W. Works there has been a decrease of over 2,200, the numbers being 43,010 against 45,286. The following is a list of the more important Works:—

			Present week.	Previous week.
State Railway	18,727	20,107
Bangalore Water Works	1,748	2,480
Bangalore-Devanahalli Road	1,752	1,571
Mallappa Chetti's Tank	1,487	1,440
Bhadram Tank	1,961	1,793
Bangalore-Tûmkûr Road	2,661	2,596
Tûmkûr Shimoga Road	2,925	2,908
Tûmkûr-Bellary Road	2,464	2,253
Tûmkûr-Maddagiri Road	2,726	2,591
Chitaldrug-Chellakere Road	582	502
Mysore Water Works	1,640	2,272
Ane Channel	604	622
Tinnahalli Tank	795	938
TOTAL...			40,072	42,163

Except in the Bangalore District and in Tûmkûr, where work parties have been taken over from Civil Officers, the labour is steadily and most satisfactorily decreasing. This is especially noticeable in the Mysore Water Works, the Devanur Channel, and the Timanhalli Tank. Very high wages are being given in the Cauvery valley for harvesting the rice crop. Coffee planters are also offering larger wages than usual, and labourers are going to the regular Public Works on the Malnad Roads.

5. The numbers in Relief Camps continue to show a gratifying reduction, and have fallen now to 8,725, as shewn in the annexed statement :

DISTRICT.	DAILY AVERAGE NUMBER OF PERSONS RELIEVED IN CAMPS.				COST PER HEAD.
	Past Week.	Present Week.	Increase.	Decrease.	Past Week.			Present Week.
Bangalore	2,165	1,585	...	580	0	15	0	0	14	2
Kolar	520	533	13	...	0	13	1	0	15	11
Tûmkûr	2,251	2,171	...	80	1	6	9	1	8	11
Mysore	595	492	...	103	1	0	5	1	1	5
Hassan	1,977	940	...	137	0	14	6	1	1	0
Kadur	400	345	...	64	0	11	7	0	14	3
Shimoga	58	24	...	34	1	10	6	1	8	0
Chitaldrug	1,424	1,159	...	265	0	15	8	1	0	3
Bangalore Municipality	1,804	1,195	...	609	0	12	10	1	0	6
Mysore Municipality	315	281	...	34	1	0	9	1	1	7
TOTAL	10,618	8,725	13	1,906

More than half of these are inmates of Hospitals. It is evident that the necessity for these institutions has now almost passed away. During the week 1,342 fresh people have been admitted, 4,627 have been allowed to go to their homes, and 495 have been drafted to works. The Relief Camps are being steadily, but cautiously, closed in all directions, and before long there will probably be only one at the Head-Quarters of the District, and in some Districts not even this.

6. The number of persons receiving Relief in grain at their villages was returned as 6,218, but, even yet, the reports have not been sent in complete from all quarters. This form of Relief is now no longer required, and is being brought to a close.

ABSTRACT OF THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE COUNCIL OF THE GOVERNOR
GENERAL OF INDIA, ASSEMBLED FOR THE PURPOSE OF MAKING
LAWS AND REGULATIONS UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF THE ACT OF PARLIAMENT 24 & 25 VIC., CAP. 67.

The Council met at Government House on Wednesday, the 9th January 1878.

PRESENT :

His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General of India, G.M.S.I.,
presiding.
His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, C.S.I.
His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, K.C.B.
The Hon'ble Sir E. C. Bayley, K.C.S.I.
The Hon'ble Sir A. J. Arbuthnot, K.C.S.I.
Colonel the Hon'ble Sir Andrew Clarke, R.E., K.C.M.G., C.B.
The Hon'ble Sir J. Strachey, K.C.S.I.
Lieutenant-General the Hon'ble Sir E. B. Johnson, K.C.B.
The Hon'ble Whitley Stokes, C.S.I.

The Hon'ble Mumtāz-ud-Da'la Nawāb Sir Muhammad Faiz Ali Khān Bahādur, K.C.S.I.
The Hon'ble G. C. Paul.
The Hon'ble E. C. Morgan.

NEW MEMBER.

The Hon'ble THE Rājā OF SIRMUR took his seat as an Additional Member.

OPIUM ACT, 1876, AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. HOPE moved that the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Opium Act, 1876, be taken into consideration. He had given a very full explanation of the objects of this Bill on the occasion when leave was given to him to introduce it. The Select Committee had thought it best to go a step further than was intended at the time of the introduction of the Bill and to embody the entire Act of 1876, and in doing so they had found it necessary to make a variety of amendments merely of the nature of redrafting. He did not think that the transformation which the Act had undergone in that process had seriously affected its scope or intention. The Committee had rather improved the provision for facilitating grants of farms of opium-revenue and for the recovery of dues from farmers and their licensees. They had also provided that, if in any case a dispute arose between a farmer and his licensee, the execution of any process issued by the Collector or other officer for the recovery of arrears should be stayed if the licensee instituted a suit in the Civil Court to try the demand of the farmer. He did not think he need trouble the Council with any further remarks.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Mr. HOPE also moved that the Bill as amended be passed.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

HUSAINABAD ENDOWMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble Mr. STOKES moved for leave to introduce a Bill to make better provision for the management of the Husainábád endowment at Lucknow. He said that, in order to put the Council in possession of the circumstances which led to legislation in the present case, he would have to begin with events which occurred no less than forty years ago, when Oudh was still under its Native Rulers, and the British Government was represented at Lucknow by a Resident.

In the year 1838, the third King of Oudh, Muhammad Ali Shah, built at Lucknow a mosque called Husainábád Mubárák, for the purpose of the celebration therein of certain religious ceremonies, and for the ultimate interment of himself and his mother.

In November 1839, Muhammad Ali Shah deposited the sum of twelve lákhs of Lucknow sicca rupees in the treasury of the late East India Company at the Residency at Lucknow; and, by a contemporaneous deed of gift, he declared that the annual interest on this sum at the rate of four per cent. per annum, together with the rent of certain shops and the income of certain religious offerings, should be applied to the payment of the pensions of certain persons therein mentioned and their descendants, and to defraying the expenses of the mosque and the repairs of a road therein mentioned; and by the same deed the King appointed two of his servants, and after them their descendants, generation after generation, to be Superintendents (mul'walis) of the mosque, and another Muhammadan gentleman, and his descendants after him, to be Agent of the pensioners, and the expenses of the mosque were to be paid in perpetuity from the treasury of the East India Company to the two Superintendents and their descendants after them, and the pensions were to be paid through the Agent. The deed further provided that, in the event of failure of heirs of the Superintendents or Agent, the British Resident for the time being at Lucknow should, with the concurrence of three-fourths of the pensioners, appoint one of their number to the vacant post. The deed also contained the following provisions:—

“As the pensioners enumerated in this deed are objects of our peculiar consideration and favour, it is necessary that the Resident for the time being, owing to the union and friendship subsisting between the two Governments, treat them with kindness, and, considering them deserving of the support of the British Government, always afford them his aid and assistance.

“The undermentioned items of income are hereby remitted and shall be devoted to the expenses of the Husainábád Mubárák and its dependencies, and all the property in it is given by us as a gift. It shall not be optional with the sovereigns of Oudh, at any time, on any account whatsoever, to interfere in any way with it, and let the Resident for the time being, at the request of the mul'walis or Superintendents, in this particular matter, give his countenance and support that this good work may continue in existence for ever.”

The items of income so referred to were the rents of certain shops attached to the mosque and the income from religious offerings thereto.

On the 5th December 1839, Colonel Caulfield, the British Resident at Lucknow, addressed a letter to Muhammad Ali Shah in which he acknowledged the receipt of the deed of gift, and stated that His Majesty might rest satisfied that every attention would be paid by the Resident to the wishes therein expressed, that his relatives would ever meet with the utmost attention, and that their interests would always be attended to by the Resident so far as his official duty permitted.

Some time after the date of the deed of gift, Muhammad Ali Shah added to the endowment so created Government promissory notes amounting to the sum of sicca rupees 2,417,500, but he did not expressly declare any trusts of such further endowment. These notes were believed to have been in September 1841 converted into Government promissory notes for Company's rupees, and to have been then endorsed in favour of the Superintendents and the Agent; and at some time between that date and the month of February 1856, certain surplus-funds of the endowment were invested in Government promissory notes, some in the names of the Superintendents and Agent, and some in the names of the Superintendents only.

After the Mutiny of 1857 and the re-occupation of Lucknow, the mosque was found to have been stripped off all its valuable property, and the promissory notes of which the endowment then consisted were missing; and it appeared on enquiry that the Agent had joined the mutineers and been killed during an attack on the city, and that the Superintendents had sold certain of the promissory notes.

The Government of India thereupon removed the existing Superintendents from their office, and called upon the existing pensioners to appoint under the deed of trust two other Superintendents and an Agent.

The Nawábs Moshin-úd-Daola and Mumtáz-úd-Daola were accordingly appointed Superintendents, and Sakamatulla Khán was appointed Agent, and such appointments were confirmed by the then Chief Commissioner of Oudh in the year 1860.

In the meanwhile most of the missing promissory notes were recovered, and of some of the others duplicates were granted by Government.

The Superintendents and Agent appointed as last aforesaid, subsequently obtained from the Civil Court at Lucknow a declaration of their title to the arrears of interest which had accrued due on the promissory notes then constituting the said endowment; and in the month of June 1864, the promissory notes and arrears were assigned to the Superintendents and Agent free from all restrictions.

Nawáb Moshin-úd-Daola had recently died, but the deed of trust conferred no power to appoint any other person to be a Superintendent in his stead.

It was doubtful whether the aforesaid appointment of Superintendents and Agent was a regular and valid appointment, and whether there existed any person who could exercise the power of appointment conferred on the Resident by the deed of gift.

If the Council had followed him (MR. STOKES) in this necessarily tedious story, it would, he was sure, agree with him that, owing to the changes which had happened since the death of Muhammad Ali Shah, it was expedient to provide for the management of the endowment; and that it was also desirable to settle a scheme for the payment of the pensions referred to in the trust-deed, and for the application of the surplus-income of the endowment in defraying the expenses of the trust and in support of the mosque, road and other objects contemplated by Muhammad Ali Shah.

Should the Council allow him to introduce this Bill, he would at their next meeting describe the provisions which it contained. He would only say at present that the Bill had been approved, not only by the Local Government, but also by the persons concerned.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

SEA CUSTOMS BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. HOPE moved that the Hon'ble Sir A. J. Arbuthnot be added to the Select Committee on the Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to the levy of Sea Customs-duties.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

SUNDRY BILLS.

His Excellency THE PRESIDENT said,—“Before adjourning the Council, I wish to take this opportunity of informing Hon'ble Members, that I have requested my Hon'ble friend Sir John Strachey, on the occasion of our next meeting, to explain to the Council the course we propose to follow with reference to the taxation Bills which he obtained leave to introduce on the 27th of last month, and I understand from him that he will be then in a position to do so. I may mention, also, that as my Hon'ble colleague Sir Andrew Clarke is obliged to leave Calcutta for a short period on public business, he will also take advantage of the same occasion to make a statement on the policy of the Government in the administration of the Department over which he himself presides."

His Honour THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR said that, with reference to what His Excellency the President had just said, he might perhaps be permitted to express a hope that no unnecessary delay would occur in passing these Bills into law. Local legislation depended very much on the shape which these Bills would take, and naturally until their shape was finally settled, there was great doubt and unsettlement in men's minds as to the exact extent to which their interests would be affected by fresh taxation, and he thought this doubt and unsettlement were mischievous to the public mind, and embarrassing to the Government, and it would be well, therefore, for the public to know exactly the form which taxation would take. His Hon'ble friend's measures had been well received, and the necessity for further taxation had been loyally recognised, and therefore His Honour believed there was no real reason why these measures should not be pushed through the Council as speedily as might be. It would assist the Local Government very much if these Bills were passed, not only by getting rid of the doubt to which he had referred, but as the cold season was drawing to an end, it was desirable that district-officers should take measures for the assessment of the license-tax and the performance of the work under their immediate eye. If the passing of these measures was deferred, we should have the hot weather setting in; district-officers would no longer be in camp, and the work would fall a good deal into the hands of Native subordinates. He also hoped his Hon'ble friend would take the opportunity of explaining definitely the scheme the Government of India had under consideration in respect to the expenditure of funds raised for famine-relief. As he understood his Hon'ble friend, the money which was to be raised by the Local Governments and paid to the Government of India would, to some extent, take the place of loans which would otherwise have to be raised for extraordinary works, and would be expended on works of a remunerative character in the Provinces finding the money, loans being reduced to the extent to which it would be unnecessary to have recourse to them, in consequence of the increased revenue from fresh taxes. Some doubt was experienced on this point in His Honour's Council, and he was hardly in a position to explain exactly what the views of the Government were.

His Excellency THE PRESIDENT felt quite sure that the views of His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor, and the grounds on which those views had been expressed, would be duly borne in mind by his Hon'ble friend Sir John Strachey when he made his statement at the next meeting of the Council, and that he would take that opportunity of explaining the views of the Government of India in regard to those matters.

The Council adjourned to Wednesday, the 16th January 1878.

REPORTS ON THE STATE OF THE SEASON AND PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS
FOR THE WEEK ENDING THE 8TH JANUARY 1878.

GENERAL REMARKS.—The only rain reported from Madras is slight showers in Trichinopoly, Madura, Tinnevely, Coimbatore, Chingleput and Madras: general prospects are fair. The number on works is 168,673, and on gratuitous relief 233,342, a decrease of 32,916 and 84,141 on the figures for last week. No rain has fallen in Mysore, and there is no change in the condition of the crops; the number on relief works for the week ending the 29th ultimo was 48,436, and on gratuitous relief 14,943, being 2,207 less and 1,720 more than in the previous week. In Bombay rain is reported from Hyderabad in Sind, but from no other district; in Sind the river continues unprecedentedly high, and damage is apprehended in consequence in the Kurrachee district; elsewhere the prospects of the crops are good. In the Central Provinces slight rain is reported from the Upper Godávari, Biláspur, Jubbulpore and Seoni districts, and in some other districts it is cloudy: prospects are favourable. There has been no rain in Berar; the reaping of the kharif is nearly completed, and the rabi is in good condition. No rain has fallen in Central India or Rajputana, where prospects are favourable. In Bengal there was general rain on the 31st ultimo and 1st instant (in Behar on the 29th and 30th ultimo) in most parts of the province except Orissa, Jalpáiguri and Cooch Behar, which has greatly improved the prospects of the rabi; more is wanted in Champaran, Cooch Behar and Pooree; the harvest of the late rice is almost completed. No rain is reported from Assam, where prospects are good. In Burma no rain has fallen: the outturn of the harvest now progressing is excellent. In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh the only rainfall was a shower in Partágarh: frost is said to have damaged the pulses in some places, but prospects are generally good. In the Punjab slight rain has fallen in Rchtak, none elsewhere; the prospects of the crops are everywhere favourable.

Rogra ...	0.62	Weather very cold; amun with a good average yield is still being cut; the price of food-grains is gradually rising, owing to exportation now going on; rabi crops are doing well, and will probably turn out well.
Dinagapore ...	Nil	Weather very cold and clear; the rice harvest is still in progress; mustard is in seed.
Rungpore ...	Some rain fell on night of 30th ultimo and the following morning.	On the evening of the 30th ultimo it became cloudy and warm, on the following evening the clouds cleared up, and during the 31st a dry westerly wind blew, since then the weather has become very cold; the paddy crop is almost harvested; the rice outturn seems to be little more than an average one, as, though the lowland crop was very good, the outturn from the highland rice is only moderate; cholera still prevails in certain parts of the Gaibanda sub-division, and cases have been reported from the Kurigram sub-division.
Cooch Behar ...	Nil	Weather very cold and sometimes cloudy; an unpleasant west wind blew on the afternoon of the first instant; the prospects of tobacco and other cold weather crops continue good; a shower of rain would now prove very beneficial; the harvesting of haimanti dhan has not yet been finished; people are suffering from fever in many places.
Jalpaiguri ...	Nil	Weather seasonably cool; the harvesting of winter rice is almost complete; good outturn is expected everywhere, excepting in Boda, where it is likely to come up to about two-thirds of the average yield; tobacco, mustard, wheat, and barley are doing well; land is being prepared for bhadoi paddy.

Presidency or Province and District.	Rainfall for week preceding.	State of agricultural prospects.
Bengal—continued.
Darjeeling ...	Nil	Weather very misty, bitterly cold and threatening snow; there are few crops on the ground now; the winter crop of rice has nearly all been harvested; the minor crops of buck-wheat, kalai , and mustard are progressing favourably.
Midnapore ...	Very heavy rain on the 31st ultimo.	Since 31st ultimo the weather has become cooler; prospects of the crops are average; health is improving.
Howrah ...	1·65 Heavy rain on the 31st ultimo.	Since 31st ultimo the weather has been much colder; the rain did the few cold weather crops good, and no injury is reported to the rice which is being harvested.
Hooghly ...	Rain on the night of the 31st ultimo.	Weather very cold; the late rice harvest is almost over; the rains have done good to sugarcane, but some injury to rice, mustard, and potato in the ground; there has been a slight change for the better in the state of public health.
Burdwan ...	Nil	The reaping of the aman crop is nearly over; fever is still prevalent; cholera is reported in the sub-division of Culna.
Bankura ...	0·32 Rain heavy in places, fell on the 31st ultimo and 1st instant with thunder and lightning.	Since 31st weather very cold, previous to it warm; the rain is reported to have done the growing crops good; although the winter rice crop is coming into the market, there has been no fall in the price; in fact higher prices are anticipated.
Beerbhoom ...	0·41	The weather is more seasonably cold than it has been hitherto; the cold weather crops are doing capitally; the harvesting of the late rice crop is now practically over.
Southal Pergunnahs ...	1·64 A good shower on the 31st ultimo in Deoghur, Godda, and sadar sub-divisions.	Rain has done good; the cold has since become great, and one or two mornings there was frost; the rabi seems everywhere to have improved with the rain.
Bhágalspur ...	Rainfall general; fall at Banka was heavier than at head-quarters.	Strong westerly wind prevailing; weather extremely cold; rabi crops have benefited by the rainfall; paddy harvest is nearly complete; export of grain continues as before, and prices range high.
Monghyr ...	Nil	Weather very cold, with west wind; the rabi crops have benefited much by the recent rain.
Purneah ...	Nil	Weather clear and cold, with west wind; the prospects of the crops continue fair.
Maldah ...	0·39	Rain on the 30th ultimo, afterwards weather bright and very cold; state and prospects of the crops continue to be quite satisfactory; there has been only one death from cholera during the week; and fever, though still very prevalent, has been rather less fatal.
Durbhunga ...	Nil	No change in the state and prospects of the crops since last report.
Mozufferpore	Weather very cold, with foggy mornings; the rabi crops have been much benefited by the rain which fell on the 29th and 30th ultimo, and the prospects are now very fair; the prices of rice and wheat have slightly fallen, but maize and gram have become dearer.
Saran ...	0·83 There was a good down-pour on the night of the 29th ultimo which lasted about half an hour.	Weather seasonable and cold; the mornings are generally foggy; west wind prevailing; all the rabi crops are still doing fairly; in some places wheat, barley, &c., are in ear; prices have risen; public health is good.
Chumparun ...	Nil	Weather very cold, with dense fogs in the mornings; the late rain has been of great benefit to the rabi crops; more is required.
Patna	Weather seasonably cold; the harvesting of the rice crop is fast progressing; the prospects of the rabi crops have much brightened after the rainfall; health is good.
Gya ...	0·67	Weather cold; rain on the 30th and 31st ultimo was followed by a couple of days of high wind; maximum thermometer in the shade 86°2"; the prospects of the rabi crops have been greatly improved by the timely rain; no more rain is required at present; from Nowáda it is reported that the kharif outturn in that sub-division is quite up to the average.

Presidency or Province and District.	Rainfall for week preceding.	State of agricultural prospects.
Bengal—concluded.
Shahabad ...	In Sasseram rain fell throughout the sub-division on the 30th ultimo; slight rain fell in the Buxar sub-division; general rain fell in Bhabooah on the 29th and 30th.	Weather cold and fine; rain has revived the unirrigated rabi , and was very beneficial to the crops; prices are stationary; general health is good.
Hazáribágh ...	0·61	Hoar-frost on the ground in the early morning; wind high and bitterly cold; the prospects of the rabi crops have been much improved by the rain which fell throughout the district on the 30th and 31st ultimo; the rain has also enabled ploughing for the bhadi to be commenced.
Lohardugga ...	0·81 There was hard rain at Ranchi on the night of the 29th ultimo, and rain has been reported from all parts of the head-quarters division, except the extreme south and west; and 1·08 has fallen in Palamow.	Rain was required for the rabi crops; public health is good.
Manbhoom ...	0·18	Weather very cold, the thermometer falling to 40° at night; in the sadar sub-division there is nothing new to report, but the sub-divisional officer of Gobindpore reports that the late bud season is driving a number of people away as emigrants to Assam; he anticipates scarcity, but his fears need confirmation; the Deputy Commissioner, who has gone on tour to the sub-division, will see to this matter.
Singhbhoom ...	0·65	Weather seasonable; nothing new to report; the late fall of rain will be very beneficial; fever, as usual at this time of year, is prevalent everywhere.

The 18th January 1878.

No. 395.—The Governor General in Council directs that the following Resolution be substituted for Resolution No. 2725, dated 25th November 1876, published at pages 630—632 of Part I of the Gazette of India of the 25th idem :—

RESOLUTION—By the Government of India, FINANCIAL DEPARTMENT.

In the exercise of the powers conferred by the Indian Coinage Act, 1870, and the Indian Paper Currency Act, 1871, and of all other powers enabling him in this behalf, the Governor General in Council is pleased to make the following rules :—

1. Certificates from the Assay Master under Section 24 of the said Indian Coinage Act, 1870, for the net produce of silver bullion or coin delivered into the mint on and after Monday, the 27th November 1876, shall be payable twenty-one days after the date thereof, if issued by the Assay Master at Calcutta, at the Bank of Bengal, and if issued by the Assay Master at Bombay, at the Bank of Bombay.

2. The holders of certificates granted under Section 14 of the said Indian Paper Currency Act, 1871, shall be entitled to receive the amount of notes or of notes and cash stated therein on demand at the Office of Issue.

3. Persons wishing to obtain, under the Indian Paper Currency Act, 1871 promissory notes of the Government of India in exchange for silver bullion or foreign silver coin, may tender the same to the Mint Master on behalf, in Calcutta, of the Head Commissioner, and in Bombay, of the Commissioner of the Department of Issue, in the Form M hereto annexed.

4. The Mint Master shall give a receipt, in Form N hereto annexed, for all bullion or coin so tendered, and immediately forward copy thereof to the Head Commissioner or Commissioner (as the case may be) of the Department of Issue.

5. The Assay Master shall prepare, in Form O hereto annexed, and counter-sign a certificate of the value of such bullion or coin calculated at the rate prescribed in Section 11(b) of the said Indian Paper Currency Act. The Head Commissioner or Commissioner (as the case may be) of issue, or any Gazetted Officer subordinate to him to whom he may delegate such authority, shall then sign the certificate and deliver it to the person making the tender.

6. No bullion or coin tendered under these Rules shall be withdrawn by the tenderer, unless he is dissatisfied with the assay.

7. The Head Commissioner or Commissioner (as the case may be) shall pay to the Mint Master out of the coin reserve of the Department of Issue one rupee per mille on the standard value of the bullion or coin for which certificates in the said Form O may be issued.

8. Bullion or coin tendered under these rules shall not be coined, except on the written application of the Head Commissioner or Commissioner (as the case may be) of issue, or any Gazetted Officer subordinate to him to whom he may delegate such authority.

9. When the Mint Master receives any such application, he shall communicate the fact to the Assay Master, who shall thereupon issue a certificate under Section 24 of the said Indian Coinage Act, 1870, in favor of the Head Commissioner or Commissioner, as the case may be, of the Department of Issue, for the net produce of the bullion or coin at the rate of ninety-eight rupees per eighteen thousand grains of standard fineness.

NOTICE

Is hereby given that the Government building for Ice-machine together with the Bungalow and Out-offices, erected for the use of the Engineer in charge of the Machinery and of a Non-Commissioned Officer, with a large compound and Ice-machinery capable of turning out (40) forty maunds of Ice in (24) twenty-four hours, turning lathe, well and pump, and numerous other items, all in working order, will be sold by public auction on the 4th February 1878, at an upset price of Rs. 10,000 for Ice-machine with its apparatus, and Rs. 20,000 for the Buildings and Out-offices.

The sale will take place at Executive Engineer's Office, Military Works Division, Lucknow Cantonment, at 2 P.M., and the purchaser will be required to pay 5 per cent. on the fall of the hammer, and the balance before taking possession of the above property.

The purchaser will have all the property at his risk after the sale is completed.

In case of failure in paying up the balance, the above property will be re-sold, and the loss thereby sustained will be recovered from the purchaser, who will have no claim to the increased sum if obtained by this re-sale.

The buildings are situated on the south side of the Railway line running to Benares, near the General's Bungalow and the Railway Over-bridge.

The purchaser will hold the land on the conditions specified in paragraph 1984 of the Bengal Military Regulations. He will likewise have to comply with all the rules now in force or that may hereafter be introduced in Cantonments.

On completion of the sale, the purchaser will be required to sign a declaration to this effect in the presence of the Cantonment Magistrate.

Some other expected to arrive shortly from England for use with the Machine will also be offered for sale at the same time and place on conditions to be stated at time of sale.

THE INDIAN LAW REPORTS.

PUBLISHED UNDER AUTHORITY.

The "Indian Law Reports," published under the authority of the Governor General in Council, will appear in monthly parts, published as soon as possible after the first of each month at Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, and Allahabad, and will comprise four series,—one for the Calcutta High Court, a second for the Madras High Court, a third for the Bombay High Court, and a fourth for the Allahabad High Court. The cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from each High Court will be reported in the Series for that High Court. Cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from Provinces in India not subject to any High Court will be reported in the Calcutta Series. The Parts of each Series can be had separately, or all four Parts can be had stitched into one wrapper at the option of subscribers and purchasers. It will be observed from the following statement of the terms of subscription and sale, that a considerable reduction is allowed to persons taking the complete set:

SCHEDULE.

An Act to amend the law relating to Opium.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the law relating to opium ; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Preamble.

1. This Act may be called "The Opium Act, 1878" :
Short title.

It shall extend to such local areas as the Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, from time to time direct;

And it shall come into force in each of such areas on such day as the Governor General in Council in like manner directs in this behalf.

2. The enactments mentioned in the schedule hereto annexed shall be repealed to the extent specified in the third column of the said schedule:

And in Acts No. XI of 1849, No. XXI of 1856 and No. X of 1871, and in Bengal Act No. II of 1876, the words "intoxicating drugs" (wherever they occur) shall not include opium.

The reference made to Bombay Regulations XXI of 1827 and XX of 1830 in Act No. VII of 1836 shall be read as if made to the corresponding sections of this Act.

3. In this Act, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context—

"Opium" includes also poppy-heads, preparations or admixtures of opium, and intoxicating drugs prepared from the poppy:

"Magistrate" means, in the Presidency-towns, a Presidency Magistrate, and elsewhere a Magistrate of the first class or (when specially empowered by the Local Government to try cases under this Act) a Magistrate of the second class:

"Import" means to bring into the territories administered by any Local Government from sea, or from foreign territory, or from a territory administered by any other Local Government:

"Export" means to take out of the territories administered by any Local Government to sea, or to any foreign territory, or to any territory administered by another Local Government:

"Transport" means to remove from one place to another within the territories administered by the same Local Government.

4. Except as permitted by this Act, or by any other enactment relating to opium for the time being in force, or by rules framed under this Act or under any such enactment, no one shall—

- (a) cultivate the poppy;
- (b) manufacture opium;
- (c) possess opium;
- (d) transport opium;
- (e) import or export opium; or
- (f) sell opium.

5. The Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may, from time to time by notification in the local Gazette, make rules consistent with this Act, to permit absolutely or subject to the payment of duty or to any other conditions and to regulate within the whole or any specified part of the territories administered by such Government, all or any of the following matters:—

- (a) the cultivation of the poppy;
- (b) the manufacture of opium;
- (c) the possession of opium;
- (d) the transport of opium;
- (e) the importation or exportation of opium; and
- (f) the sale of opium, and the farm of duties leviable on the sale of opium by retail:

Provided that no duty shall be levied under any such rule on any opium imported and on which a duty is imposed by or under the law relating to sea customs for the time being in force or under section six.

6. The Governor General in Council may from time to time, by notification in the Gazette of India, impose such duty as he thinks fit on opium or on any kind of opium imported by land into British India or into any specified part thereof, and may alter or abolish any duty so imposed.

7. The Governor General in Council may, by order notified in the Gazette of India,

(a) authorize any Local Government to establish warehouses for opium legally imported into, or intended to be exported from, the territories administered by such Local Government, and

(b) cancel any such order.

So long as such order remains in force, the Local Government may, by notification published in the official Gazette,

(c) declare any place to be a warehouse for all or any opium legally imported, whether before or after the payment of any duty leviable thereon, into the territories administered by such Government, or into any specified part thereof, or intended to be exported thence, and

(d) cancel any such declaration.

An order under clause (b) shall cancel all previous declarations under clause (c) of this section relating to places in the territories to which such order refers.

So long as such declaration remains in force, the owner of all such opium shall be bound to deposit it in such warehouse.

8. The Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may, from time to time by notification in the local Gazette, make rules consistent with this Act to regulate the safe custody of opium warehoused under section seven; the levy of fees for such warehousing; the removal of such opium for sale or exportation; and the manner in which it shall be disposed of, if any duty or fees leviable on it be not paid within twelve months from the date of warehousing the same.

9. Any person who, in contravention of this Act, or of rules made and notified under section five or section eight,

Penalty for illegal cultivation of poppy, &c.

- (a) cultivates the poppy, or
- (b) manufactures opium, or
- (c) possesses opium, or
- (d) transports opium, or
- (e) imports or exports opium, or
- (f) sells opium, or
- (g) omits to warehouse opium or removes or does any act in respect of warehoused opium,

and any person who otherwise contravenes any such rule, shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be punished for each such offence with imprisonment for a term which may extend to one year, or with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, or with both;

and, where a fine is imposed, the convicting Magistrate shall direct the offender to be imprisoned in default of payment of the fine for a term which may extend to six months, and such imprisonment shall be in excess of any other imprisonment to which he may have been sentenced.

10. In prosecutions under section nine, it shall be presumed, until the contrary is proved, that all opium for which the accused person is unable to account satisfactorily is opium in respect of which he has committed an offence under this Act.

Presumption in prosecutions under section nine.

11. In any case in which an offence under section nine has been committed—

Confiscation of opium

- (a) the poppy so cultivated;
- (b) the opium in respect of which any offence under the same section has been committed;
- (c) where, in the case of an offence under clause (d) or (e) of the same section, the offender is transporting, importing or exporting any opium exceeding the quantity (if any) which he is permitted to transport, import or export, as the case may be, the whole of the opium which he is transporting, importing or exporting;

(d) where, in the case of an offence under clause (f) of the same section, the offender has in his possession any opium other than the opium in respect of which the offence has been committed, the whole of such other opium,

shall be liable to confiscation.

The vessels, packages and coverings in which any opium liable to confiscation under this section is found, and the other contents (if any) of the vessel or package in which such opium may be concealed, and the animals and conveyances used in carrying it, shall likewise be liable to confiscation.

12. When the offender is convicted, or when the person charged with an offence in respect of any opium is acquitted, but the Magistrate decides that the opium is liable to confiscation, such confiscation may be ordered by the Magistrate.

Whenever confiscation is authorised by this Act, the officer ordering it may give the owner of the thing liable to be confiscated an option to pay, in lieu of confiscation, such fine as the officer thinks fit.

When an offence against this Act has been committed, but the offender is not known or cannot be found, or when opium not in the possession of any person cannot be satisfactorily accounted for, the case shall be enquired into and determined by the Collector of the District or Deputy Commissioner, or by any other officer authorized by the Local Government in this behalf, either personally or in right of his office, who may order such confiscation: Provided that no such order shall be made until the expiration of one month from the date of seizing the things intended to be confiscated or without hearing the persons (if any) claiming any right thereto and the evidence (if any) which they produce in support of their claims.

13. The Local Government may, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, from time to time, by notification in the local Gazette, make rules consistent with this Act to regulate—

(a) the disposal of all things confiscated under this Act; and

(b) the rewards to be paid to officers and informers out of the proceeds of fines and confiscations under this Act.

14. Any officer of any of the departments of Excise, Police, Customs, Salt, Opium or Revenue, superior in rank to a peon or constable, who may in right of his office be authorized by the Local Government in this behalf, and who has reason to believe, from personal knowledge or from information given by any person and taken down in writing, that opium liable to confiscation under this Act is manufactured, kept or concealed in any building, vessel or enclosed place, may, between sunrise and sunset,

- (a) enter into any such building, vessel or place;
- (b) in case of resistance, break open any door and remove any other obstacle to such entry;

(c) seize such opium and all materials used in the manufacture thereof, and any other thing which he has reason to believe to be liable to confiscation under section eleven or any other law for the time being in force relating to opium, and

(d) detain and search, and if he think proper arrest, any person whom he has reason to believe to be guilty of any offence relating to such opium under this or any other law for the time being in force.

Power to seize opium in open places.

15. Any officer of any of the said departments may

(a) seize, in any open place or in transit, any opium or other thing which he has reason to believe to be liable to confiscation under section eleven or any other law for the time being in force relating to opium,

(b) detain and search any person whom he has reason to believe to be guilty of any offence against this or any other such law, and, if such person has opium in his possession, arrest him and any other persons in his company.

16. All searches under section fourteen or section fifteen shall be made in accordance with the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

17. The officers of the several departments mentioned in section fourteen shall, upon notice given or request made, be legally bound to assist each other in carrying out the provisions of this Act.

18. Any officer of any of the said departments who, without reasonable ground of suspicion, enters or searches, or causes to be entered or searched, any building, vessel or place, or vexatiously and unnecessarily seizes the property of any person on the pretence of seizing or searching for any opium or other thing liable to confiscation under this Act, or vexatiously and unnecessarily detains, searches or arrests any person, shall for every such offence be punished with fine not exceeding five hundred rupees.

19. The Collector of the District, Deputy Commissioner or other officer authorized by the Local Government in this behalf, either personally or in right of his office, or a Magistrate, may issue his warrant for the arrest of any person whom he has reason to believe to have committed an offence relating to opium, or for the search, whether by day or night, of any building or vessel or place in which he has reason to believe opium liable to confiscation to be kept or concealed.

All warrants issued under this section shall be executed in accordance with the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

20. Every person arrested, and thing seized, under section fourteen or section fifteen, shall be forwarded without delay to the officer in charge of the nearest Police-station; and every person arrested and thing seized under section nineteen shall be forwarded without delay to the officer by whom the warrant was issued.

Every officer to whom any person or thing is forwarded under this section shall, with all convenient despatch, take such measures as may be necessary for the disposal according to law of such person or thing.

21. Whenever any officer makes any arrest or seizure under this Act, he shall within forty-eight hours next after such arrest or seizure make a full report of all the particulars of such arrest or seizure to his immediate official superior.

22. In the case of alleged illegal cultivation of the poppy, the crop shall not be removed, but shall, pending the disposal of the case, be attached by an officer superior in rank to a peon or constable, who may in right of his office be authorized by the Local Government in this behalf; and such officer shall require the cultivator to give bail in a reasonable amount (to be fixed by such officer) for his appearance before the Magistrate by whom the case is to be disposed of, and such cultivator shall not be arrested unless within a reasonable time he fails to give such bail:

Provided that, wherever Act No. XIII of 1857 (An Act to consolidate and amend the law relating to the cultivation of the Poppy and the manufacture of Opium in the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal), or any part thereof, is in force, nothing in this section shall apply to such cultivation.

23. Any arrear of any fee or duty imposed under this Act or any rule made hereunder, and any arrear due from any farmer of opium-revenue,

may be recovered from the person primarily liable to pay the same to the Government or from his surety (if any) as if it were an arrear of land-revenue.

24. When any amount is due to a farmer of opium-revenue from his licensee, in respect of a license, such farmer may make an application to the Collector of the District, Deputy Commissioner or other officer authorized by the Local Government in this behalf, praying such officer to recover such amount on behalf of the applicant; and on receiving such application, such Collector, Deputy Commissioner or other officer may in his discretion recover such amount as if it were an arrear of land-revenue, and shall pay any amount so recovered to the applicant:

Provided that the execution of any process issued by such Collector, Deputy Collector or other officer for the recovery of such amount, shall be stayed if the licensee institutes a suit in the Civil Court to try the demand of the farmer and furnishes security to the satisfaction of such officer for the payment of the amount which such Court may adjudge to be due from him to such farmer:

Provided also that nothing contained in this section or done thereunder shall affect the right of any farmer of opium-revenue to recover by suit in the Civil Court or otherwise any amount due to him from such licensee.

25. When any person in compliance with any rule made hereunder gives a bond for the performance of any duty or act, such duty or act shall be deemed to be a public duty or an act in which the public are interested, as the case may be, within the meaning of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, section 74, and upon breach of the condition of such bond by him, the whole sum named therein as the amount to be paid in case of such breach may be recovered from him as if it were an arrear of land-revenue.

PART V.

Bills introduced into the Council of the Governor General for making
Laws and Regulations, or published under Rule 22.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[First Publication.]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 16th January 1878, and was referred to a Select Committee:—

No. 1 of 1878.

A Bill to make better provision for the management of the Husainábád endowment at Lucknow.

WHEREAS in the year 1838 the third King of Oudh, Muhammad Ali Shah, built at Lucknow a Mosque called Husainábád Mubarak for the purpose of the celebration therein of certain religious ceremonies and for the ultimate interment of himself and his mother;

And whereas, on or about the twenty-third day of November 1839, the said Muhammad Ali Shah deposited the sum of twelve lakhs of Lucknow sicca rupees in the treasury of the late East India Company at the Residency at Lucknow;

And whereas by a deed of gift dated the fifteenth of the month of Ramazán in the year 1255 of the Hijra, corresponding with the said twenty-third day of November 1839, the said Muhammad Ali Shah declared that the annual interest on the said sum of twelve lakhs of rupees at the rate of four per centum per annum, together with the rent of certain shops therein referred to and the income of certain religious offerings, should be applied to the payment of the pensions of certain persons therein mentioned and their descendants (hereinafter called the pensioners) and to defraying the expenses of the said Mosque and the repairs of a road therein mentioned; and by the same deed the said Muhammad Ali Shah appointed two of his servants named Rafik-ud-Daola Sayyad Imám Ali Khán Bahádur and Azimullá Khán Bahádur, and after them their descendants, generation after generation, to be Superintendents (mut'walis) of the said Mosque, and Sharf-úd-Daola Muzaffar-ul-Mulk Muhammad Ibráhím Khán Bahádur Mustakím Jang, and his descendants after him to be Agent of the said pensioners only, and the expenses of the said Mosque were to be paid in perpetuity from the said treasury to the said two Superintendents and their descendants after them, and the said pensions were to be paid through the said Agent; and the said deed further provided that, in the event of failure of heirs of the said Superintendents or Agent, the British Resident for the time being at Lucknow should, with the concurrence of three-fourths of the said pensioners, appoint one of their number to the vacant post. And the deed now in recital also contained the following provisions:—

"As the pensioners enumerated in this deed are objects of our peculiar consideration and favour, it is necessary that the Resident for the time being, owing to the union and friendship subsisting between the two Governments, treat them with kindness, and considering them deserving of the support of the British Government, always afford them his aid and assistance.

"The undermentioned items of income are hereby remitted and shall be devoted to the expenses of the Husainábád Mubarak and its dependencies, and all the property in it is given by us as a gift. It shall not be optional with the sovereigns of Oudh, at any time, on any account whatsoever, to interfere in any way with it, and let the Resident for the time being, at the request of the mut'walis, or superintendents, in this particular matter, give his countenance and support that this good work may continue in existence for ever;"

And whereas the items of income so referred to were the rents of certain shops attached to the said Mosque and the income from religious offerings thereto ;

And whereas on the fifth day of December 1839, Colonel Caulfield, the British Resident at Lucknow, addressed a letter to the said Muhammad Ali Shah in which he acknowledged the receipt of the said deed of gift, and stated that His Majesty might rest satisfied that every attention would be paid by the Resident to the wishes therein expressed, that his relatives would ever meet with the utmost attention, and that their interests would always be attended to by the Resident so far as his official duty permitted ;

And whereas some time after the said twenty-third day of November 1839, the said Muhammad Ali Shah added to the endowment so created Government promissory notes amounting to the sum of two millions four hundred and seventeen thousand five hundred sicca rupees, but he did not expressly declare any trusts of such further endowment ;

And whereas the said notes are believed to have been in September 1841, converted into Government promissory notes for Company's rupees, and to have been then endorsed in favour of the said Superintendents and the Agent ;

And whereas at some time between the same date and the month of February 1856, certain surplus-funds of the said endowment were invested in Government promissory notes, some in the names of the said Superintendents and Agent, and some in the names of the said Superintendents only ;

And whereas, after the mutiny of 1857 and the re-occupation of Lucknow, the said Mosque was found to have been stripped of all its valuable property and the promissory notes of which the said endowment then consisted were missing, and it appeared on enquiry that the said Agent had joined the mutineers and been killed during an attack on the said city, and that the said Superintendents had sold certain of the same promissory notes ;

And whereas the Government of India thereupon removed the existing Superintendents from their office, and called upon the existing pensioners to appoint under the hereinbefore-recited provisions of the fourth article of the said deed of trust two other Superintendents and an Agent ;

And whereas the Nawábs Mohsin-úd-Daola and Mumtáz-úd-Daola were accordingly appointed Superintendents and Sakamutulla Khán was appointed Agent, and such appointments were confirmed by the then Chief Commissioner of Oudh in the year 1860 ;

And whereas in the meanwhile most of the promissory notes so missing as aforesaid were recovered and of some of the others duplicates were granted by Government ;

And whereas the Superintendents and Agent appointed as last aforesaid, subsequently obtained from the Civil Court at Lucknow a declaration of their title to the arrears of interest which had accrued due on the promissory notes then constituting the said endowment ;

And whereas in the month of June 1864, the said promissory notes and arrears were assigned to the said Superintendents and Agents free from all restrictions ;

And whereas the said Nawáb Mohsin-úd-Daola has recently died, but the said deed of trust confers no power to appoint any other person to be a Superintendent in his stead ;

And whereas it is doubtful whether the aforesaid appointment of Superintendents and Agent was a regular and valid appointment, and whether there exists any person who can exercise the power of appointment conferred on the Resident by the said deed of gift ;

And whereas, owing to the changes which have happened since the death of the said Muhammad Ali Shah, it is expedient to provide for the management of the said endowment in manner hereinafter appearing ;

And whereas it is also desirable to empower the High Court of Judicature at Allahabad to settle a scheme for the payment of the pensions referred to in the said trust-deed, and for the application of the surplus-income of the said endowment in defraying the expenses of the trust and in support of the Mosque, road and other objects contemplated by the said Muhammad Ali Shah ;

And whereas it is also expedient to indemnify all persons for anything done before the passing of this Act, which might lawfully have been done if the said appointments of the said Nawábs and Sakamutulla Khán had been valid ;

It is hereby enacted as follows :—

1. The said pensioners and such of the descendants of the said Muhammad Ali Shah as may for the time being reside at Lucknow may from time to time nominate so many persons as they or a majority of them think fit to be trustees of the said endowment ; and the Local Government may from time to time appoint from amongst the persons so nominated such persons, as it thinks fit, to be such trustees : provided that the said Nawáb Mumtáz-úd-Daola shall be one of the said persons to be first nominated and appointed as aforesaid, and that the number of the said trustees shall be not less than three and not more than five, as the Local Government may from time to time direct.

2. If any of the said trustees dies, or is desirous of being discharged, or refuses or becomes incapable to act, then and so often the Local Government may appoint any other person to be a trustee in the stead of the trustee so dying or desiring to be discharged, or refusing or becoming incapable to act.

When any of the said trustees is guilty of any misconduct which in the opinion of the Local Government disqualifies him to be a trustee, the Local Government may with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council appoint any other person to be a trustee in his stead.

3. After the first appointment of trustees under this Act, the whole property of the endowment shall always be vested in the whole body of trustees for the time being.

4. The trustees shall have the entire management of the property and affairs of the endowment, and shall be responsible for the due conduct of such affairs.

5. The trustees shall elect one of their own body to be their Chairman and to convene and preside at their meetings. If at any such meeting he is not present within an hour from the time appointed for holding the meeting, the trustees present shall choose one of themselves to preside for that occasion.

6. Every trustee shall have one vote, and no more. All questions arising at meetings of the trustees shall be decided according to the votes of the majority of those present; and if their numbers are equally divided, the Chairman shall have a second or casting vote.

7. Business may be transacted at any meeting at which more than half the existing number of trustees is present, if such meeting has been regularly convened.

If within an hour from the time appointed for the meeting, a quorum is not present, the meeting shall stand adjourned to the same day in the next week, and if at such adjourned meeting a quorum is not present, it shall be adjourned sine die.

8. With the previous sanction of the Local Government the trustees may from time to time appoint some person, not being one of their own body, to act as their Secretary, to keep their accounts, conduct their correspondence and perform other ministerial duties; and may pay him such suitable salary as they may fix and may suspend or dismiss any person so appointed.

9. The appointment of trustees under this Act shall be effected by a notification in the local official Gazette, and the appointee shall become a trustee on the date fixed in the notification, or if no date is fixed, from the day after its appearance in such Gazette.

10. The validity of any such appointment so notified shall not be questioned in any Court of justice.

11. The Local Government may from time to time call for such accounts and other information respecting the said endowment as it thinks fit; and any person disobeying such requisition, or furnishing false information respecting such endowment, shall be deemed to have committed an offence under section 175, section 176 or section 177 (as the case may be) of the Indian Penal Code.

12. The Secretary of State for India in Council may, from time to time, institute a suit or suits in the High Court of Judicature at Allahabad for the settlement of a scheme consistent with this Act for the said endowment:

for the modification of such scheme:

or for the purpose of compelling the restitution of any property belonging to the said endowment.

The procedure in any such suit shall be governed by the rules for the time being in force in the said High Court in the exercise of its extraordinary original civil jurisdiction, and the decree in such suit shall have the same effect and be executed in the same manner as if the property comprised therein were situate within the local limits of such jurisdiction.

An appeal shall lie from any decree made under this section, subject to the rules for the time being in force as to appeals from decrees made by a Judge of the said High Court in the exercise of extraordinary original civil jurisdiction.

13. The plaint in such suit and the memorandum of appeal (if any) shall not be chargeable with any Court-fee.

14. All officers and other persons are hereby indemnified for anything done before the passing of this Act, which might lawfully have been done if the hereinbefore-recited appointments of the said Nawábs and Sakamutulla Khán had been valid; and no suit or other proceeding shall be maintained against any such officer or other person in respect of anything so done.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

This Bill has become necessary in order to provide for the due administration of the Husainábád endowment at Lucknow. The preamble recites in detail the history of that endowment. It was originally created by Muhammad Ali Shah, third King of Oudh, on or about the 23rd November 1839, on which date the King deposited twelve lakhs of Lucknow sicca rupees in the treasury of the Lucknow Residency, and by deed of the same date declared the trusts upon which that sum was deposited. Those trusts were that the annual interest, together with the rent of certain shops referred to in the deed and the income of certain religious offerings, should be applied (1) to the payment of certain pensions to persons mentioned in the deed and their descendants; (2) to defraying the expenses of a Mosque called Husainábád Mubárák, and (3) to the repair of a road mentioned in the deed. The deed appointed certain servants of the King, and their descendants in perpetuity, to be Superintendents (mufawalis) of the Mosque and Agent of the pensioners respectively, the management of the Mosque and road and of the pensions being kept distinct. In case of failure of descendants of these persons, the Resident at Lucknow, with the concurrence of three-fourths of the pensioners, was empowered to appoint one of their number to the vacant office.

The Resident at Lucknow accepted the charge committed to him by the King; and the King afterwards increased the endowment by Government promissory notes amounting to sicca rupees 24,17,500, but without declaring any fresh trusts. The preamble then traces the fund so created, which was lost during the mutiny of 1857, but most of it was afterwards recovered. The Agent had also joined the mutineers and had been killed; and after the mutiny fresh Superintendents and a new Agent were appointed by the pensioners, and these persons obtained possession of the fund in June 1864. One of the Superintendents has, however, since become incapable of acting, and it has therefore become necessary to provide for the appointment of a new Superintendent. But doubts have arisen as to the power to appoint, and as to the validity of the appointment made after the mutiny. The Bill provides for this matter, as well as for the settlement of a scheme by the High Court of Allahabad, the provisions of the deed being very vague; and for indemnifying persons for acts done by virtue of the appointments abovementioned.

Section 1 provides for the appointment of trustees, from time to time, by the Local Government upon the nomination of the pensioners and such of the descendants of Muhammad Ali Shah as may for the time being reside at Lucknow; such trustees to be not less than three in number and not more than five, of whom the present Superintendent, Mumtáz-ud-Daola, is to be one.

Sections 2 and 3 provide for the appointment of trustees in the place of deceased, retiring or incapable trustees, and for the vesting of the property of the endowment in the trustees for the time being.

Section 4 commits the management of the endowment entirely to the trustees.

Sections 5, 6 and 7 provide for the transaction of business by the trustees at their meetings; and section 8 authorizes the appointment of some person, not of their own body, as paid Secretary to the trustees.

By section 11 the Local Government may call for such accounts and information respecting the endowment as it thinks fit.

Section 12 empowers the Secretary of State in Council to sue in the Allahabad High Court for the settlement of a scheme for the endowment, or to compel the restitution of any property belonging to the endowment. An appeal is allowed as in cases decided by that Court in its extraordinary civil jurisdiction, and the plaint in any suit under section 12 is (section 13) exempted from Court-fees.

Section 14 indemnifies all persons for anything done before the passing of the proposed Act which would have been valid if the appointments abovementioned had been valid, and saves such persons from suits or proceedings in respect of such acts.

PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT.

HIS EXCELLENCY THE VICEROY'S RECENT TOUR IN THE FAMINE DISTRICTS OF WESTERN AND SOUTHERN INDIA, AND THE MEASURES TAKEN TO CONTROL RELIEF ADMINISTRATION THERE.

No. 34, dated 20th August 1877.

From—The Government of India,

To—The Secretary of State for India.

We have the honour to report that, in view of the renewed failure of the south-west mon-the Viceroy, it has been thought advisable that His Excellency, accompanied by Sir Alexander Arbuthnot, should visit Poona, Bangalore and Madras for the purpose of conferring with the Local Governments and the Chief Commissioner of Mysore on the condition and prospects of the three Provinces, and on the measures necessary to enable them to deal effectively with the situation. We trust that this determination will meet with Your Lordship's approval.

No. 74, dated 31st October 1877.

From—The Secretary of State for India,

To—The Government of India.

The despatch of Your Excellency's Government, dated 20th August, No. 34 of 1877, announcing that Your Excellency, accompanied by Sir Alexander Arbuthnot, proposed to visit Poona, Bangalore and Madras, for the purpose of conferring with the Local Governments and the Chief Commissioner of Mysore on the condition and prospects of those territories, under the circumstances of a renewed failure of the south-west monsoon in many quarters, has been considered by me in Council.

2. The reports which, since the date of the letter under reply, have been received by telegraph, fully establish the wisdom of the resolution to which Your Excellency came.

3. I avail myself of this opportunity to express my general concurrence in the views stated in the minute of Your Excellency, dated the 12th August, which forms one of the enclosures to the despatch under reply.

No. 33, dated 5th September 1877.

From—The Viceroy and Governor General of India,

To—The Secretary of State for India.

In a letter dated the 20th August, Your Lordship was informed that I was about to leave Simla, accompanied by Sir Alexander Arbuthnot and the officers named in the margin, on a journey to Poona, Madras and Bangalore, for the purpose of conferring with the Local Governments and the Chief Commissioner of Mysore on the measures rendered necessary by the failure of the early rains (summer monsoon), and the alarming character of the prospects described in a minute by myself, which accompanied that letter.

2. I now desire to lay before Your Lordship a short account of what I have heard and seen, and of some of the more important references in famine matters, which have come before the Government of India during the past fortnight. In a separate letter of to-day's date will be found an account of my conference with the Governor of Madras upon the lines of famine policy laid down by the Government of India, and of certain special administrative arrangements adopted by His Excellency in Council, for giving to that policy the fullest and most prompt effect. The following remarks on the condition of the crops and the prospects of the season, as they have appeared to me in the course of my journey from Simla to Madras, must be taken subject to correction by the light of more recent information. Our latest intelligence on these points is embodied in a telegram despatched to Your Lordship to-day; and a copy of that telegram will be found in the last paragraph of this letter.

3. Leaving Simla on the 16th August, I met, at Amballa, the Commissioner of that division of the Panjab, who gave a very bad account of the prospects of the autumn crop. Over great tracts of the dry loose soil of the Cis-Sutlej country there had been no appreciable rainfall since early in July; a great part (the proportion could not be exactly stated) of the land prepared for autumn crops had not been sown, and much of what had been sown had withered. But there were still some weeks to the time for sowing the spring crops, which yield the great food-harvests; and, should rain fall within that period, these crops would be sown over a larger area than usual. Water in the irrigation wells was not failing; though the hot dry winds scorched the crops, and made irrigation less efficacious than in ordinary years. The appearance of the land round Amballa was, for the season of year, extremely dry and arid.

4. On the morning of the 18th, I met the Collectors of Agra and Allyghur in the North-West Provinces. Prospects in the Agra District were then as bad as in any part of the North-West Provinces, and they were said to be less hopeful than in the Amballa Division. In the Allyghur District there is more well irrigation, and more canal irrigation; so that a considerable autumn food-crop will be secured. In both districts, there seemed to be already some fear about fodder for the cattle. In Allyghur, with its many canal channels, this difficulty will probably be not so great. But in the Agra District, if rain holds off, there must be great loss of cattle. The river Jumna there flows between high banks, unclad by verdure, and differs in this respect from the Ganges, which annually floods a broad belt of low ground beside its bed.

5. At the Agra junction station, I was met by His Highness the Maharaja of Jeypore with some of his chief officials. The Maharaja is most laudably anxious about the prospects of his territory; and he placed in my hands a memorandum describing some of the measures he proposed to take for the prevention, or relief, of anticipated distress. The position in Jeypore was, in brief, that crops had failed to a large extent, that the grass was withering, and that already dearth was beginning to be felt.

6. Simultaneously with this memorandum, a letter was received from Mr. Lyall, the Governor-General's Agent, stating that the whole of Rajputana, north-west of the Aravelli mountains, was threatened with serious scarcity; that the crops were widely damaged, grass withering, and pasturage already insufficient. In a subsequent letter Mr. Lyall stated that he had reason to believe there were large stocks of grain on hand, and that the people were hopeful. Opportunity was taken, when answering these papers, to explain at some length to the Agent the famine policy which should be inculcated on the Maharaja of Jeypore, as well as on the Governments of other Native States similarly situated. As the Maharaja's memorandum, and my Secretary's reply to it, form enclosure No. 1 to this letter, I need not here describe either the measures proposed by His Highness or those which I have commended to his adoption.

7. At Allahabad, the local officers reported that, though some of the autumn crops had suffered much from drought, yet prospects in the Allahabad and Benares Divisions were not nearly so gloomy as in the northern Commissionerships. It was said that in all parts of the Panjab and the North-West Provinces grain stocks in the hands of dealers, zemindars, and substantial ryots, were unusually large, and that prices had not yet grown so dear as might have been expected.

8. On the 19th August, I met at Jubbulpore the Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces, who was able to give a good account of the agricultural prospect throughout those Provinces. He drew my attention to the very large and still-increasing stocks of grain and seeds awaiting despatch from Nagpore, Jubbulpore, and other stations on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway; most of the grain, he explained, was consigned to the famine districts. He reported, also, that certain cases of corruption, in the matter of allotting wagons, had been brought home to station-masters on the two railways near Jubbulpore. The offenders had been, or would be, punished on conviction by the courts. Both these points—the grain block and the alleged misconduct of station masters—were discussed with the proper authorities at Poona, under circumstances which will be mentioned in a subsequent paragraph.

9. In the Khandesh and Nasik Districts, the country looked green, though the crops were backward. Much anxiety had been expressed about the condition of these two districts; and the local officials assured me that unless rain fell within ten days, most of the crops then looking so well would wither. Happily, from three to five inches of rain has since fallen in Khandesh; Nasik has also had good rain; and Sir Richard Temple's last report (30th August) says that "almost all anxiety regarding the Khandesh Collectorate" is removed.

10. I reached Poona on the night of the 19th August; and, during five days' stay there, I had full opportunity of conferring with the Governor of Bombay, and with the chief Government and Railway officials of that Presidency. Here I also met the Collectors of Poona and Sholapore, as well as the Commissioner of the Southern Division. The prospects of the crops in the Bombay Presidency are now, save only in the Kaladgi District, much better than they were during the time of my stay at Poona; and therefore I need not trouble Your Lordship with an account of the impressions I received in this respect. I visited a relief camp containing 3,000 inmates, a few miles out of Poona. This camp had been recently opened, and several hundreds of its inmates were in process of transfer to relief works. The camp was well ordered; and the instructions under which it is managed will prevent its growing into an abuse. I have every reason to believe that, notwithstanding the very high prices now ruling in the Deccan and Canarese Districts, famine and distress are being met in the Bombay Presidency as successfully and economically as the means and circumstances permit. Save in the Kaladgi District, the crops to be reaped during the next five weeks will give a sensible relief to the people, and must reduce prices. It is worthy of note that, in the districts of Kaladgi, Dharwar, Belgaum, and Sholapore, the price of the commonest food-grain rules dearer than in any district of the Madras Presidency. The latest weekly report received from the Bombay Government forms enclosure No. 2 to this letter. It shows that, as yet, the improved prospects have not caused reduction in the numbers on relief. There was an increase in numbers during the week, and there were at the end of August 278,731 on relief work, and 125,960 on gratuitous relief.

11. One very important subject, which was much discussed at Poona, both with the Governor, and at a conference of all his Railway officials, was the carrying power of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway, by which food-grain is sent, not only into the Bombay Deccan, but also into the Nizam's Dominions, and into the Ceded Districts of the Madras Presidency. Briefly stated, the case stands thus. The sources of grain supply drawn from by the Great Indian Peninsula Railway are the city of Bombay, in which Sir Richard Temple reports the stocks to be very large; the Nagpore and Berar country; the Nerbudda valley districts; and the East Indian Railway, which despatches grain waggons through the Jubbulpore junction. This grain is consigned to Khandesh and Nasik, the districts above the ghats; to Bombay city; to the Bombay Deccan stations for the supply of Poona, Sholapore, Kaladgi, Sattara, and the Southern Mahratta feudatories; to the Hyderabad country; and, lastly, to the Madras Railway, for the Ceded Districts. The quantities of grain which the Great Indian Peninsula Railway ought to deliver daily are:—

To the Khandesh section	300 tons.
To the Bombay Deccan stations	800 to 1,000 tons.
To the Hyderabad branch line	300 tons.
To the Madras Railway at Raichore	300 tons.

The Great Indian Peninsula Railway authorities have, after much pressure, delivered these quantities, on the average, at each section, except at the Raichore end, where they have recently delivered an average of barely 600 tons a day. Now, the Madras Government absolutely require the 900 tons a day to be delivered at Raichore; otherwise, they cannot arrange for throwing into the interior the quantity of grain actually needed. The Bombay Government and the Railway officers agreed that, by starving all other railway traffic, and by practically stopping the export* trade, it would be possible, with the present rolling-stock, to maintain on an average the grain deliveries demanded. Suggestions were made for additional crossing stations, for longer sidings, and for other traffic facilities: but, in the end, it was quite clear that the carrying power of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway was at present limited by its engine power, and that, adequately to meet the present emergency, additional engines were needed. Sir Richard Temple, at the conference, represented strongly that, without additional engines, the Railway would be quite unable to serve the export trade, which would certainly demand accommodation in the cold season; and that, if produce could not be carried to the port of Bombay, shipping would go away empty, heavy-mercantile losses must occur, the trade of Bombay would be injured, and the rate of exchange might suffer. If the engine power on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway could be largely increased by January next, then the railway could serve both the famine and the export trade. It seemed clear that no sufficient relief could be given by borrowing engines from other lines. The Dhond and Munmar Railway, which, by shortening the railway route from Northern to Southern India, will relieve the pressure of famine traffic to the extent of thirty-six engine power, could hardly open soon enough to meet the urgency of the case. And, accordingly, I telegraphed to Your Lordship for the earliest possible despatch to Bombay of one hundred engines to work on the Bombay Peninsula line. The letter No. 117, Railway, dated 25th August, sent by my honorable colleagues from Simla, explains at length the reasons on which we recommend that these engines shall be purchased on account of the State, and treated as a State reserve; and that they be hired only to the Great Indian Peninsula Railway. The telegrams from Simla and from Poona ask that these engines may be sent out as they are ready, and that extra payment be made for early deliveries. The alleged corruption among station-masters was discussed at our conference; it appeared that the evil had not been so general as I had been led to suppose. The establishment of a syndicate of traders at every large station to watch and regulate the allotment of waggons is said to be acting as a safeguard against corruption. Such syndicates were recently formed in the Central and North-West Provinces, under the orders of the Government of India; and their usefulness will doubtless increase.

* By the latest Custom House return about 600 tons of seeds and grain were leaving Bombay daily by sea.

12. Since leaving Poona, I have learned by telegraph that the deliveries of grain to the Madras Railway at Raichore are still below the stipulated 900 tons. The Bombay Government explain that the higher prices ruling in the Bombay Deccan induce dealers to consign grain thither, rather than to Madras. Market quotations undoubtedly shew that prices in the Deccan and Hyderabad country are dearer than in the Bellary District; and, while this continues, there is soundness in Sir Richard Temple's deduction that Bellary food-stocks must be larger than the Deccan stocks. The recent very favorable rain in Khandesh and Guzerat has been followed by a heavy fall in wheat quotations in Bombay; and the improvement in crop prospects caused by showers in parts of the Deccan may partially bring down prices there. But, for the present, all we can do is to give preference, up to a certain limit, at Nagpore and Jubbulpore stations, to grain consigned for the Madras Railway. This we have requested the Bombay Government to do. But meanwhile, until relief comes, either from fresh harvests, or by the arrival of additional engine power, the working of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway, and its due delivery of the required quantities of grain in the famine country, cause anxiety, and require careful watching. The Government of India, and Your Lordship, may confidently rely on Sir Richard Temple's efforts to secure a good result; and I may add that the officers of the Great Indian Peninsula Company are actively exerting themselves in co-operation with the Governor.

13. On the 25th August, I was met, on my way to Bellary, by the Resident at Hyderabad, who confirmed personally what he had, a few days previously, reported by telegram and letter regarding the distressed condition of four districts in the south of the Nizam's Dominions. Copies of the Resident's communications, respecting the Hyderabad country and Berar, form enclosure No. 3 to this letter. Those papers shew that the autumn food-crop has absolutely failed in the districts of Raichore, Lingsagur, Goolburga, and Shorapore with a population of 800,000; that the price of the commonest grain is 7 lbs. per rupee; that 70,000 people are now supported by the Nizam on relief works, or gratuitously; that the pressure must last till February; while, if the October rains fail, it may endure until August 1878; that the Nizam's expenditure on famine relief, and his loss of revenue, already amount to nearly fifty lakhs of rupees; that, if the worst comes, the total cost of the famine may reach three millions sterling; that the Nizam's treasury is empty; and that the Minister will probably apply to the British Government for a loan wherewith to defray his famine expenditure. The proposal for a loan will be considered by the Financial Department when it is actually made. If good rain comes during September and October, the situation in Hyderabad will greatly improve; and until fuller information is received, we may hesitate to accept the estimate that the famine can, under any circumstances, cost three millions sterling. But, even if the coming monsoon be more favorable than the past, still the distress in the Nizam's Dominions materially aggravates the difficulties of Kurnool, Bellary, and Sholapore.

14. The Resident had previously reported that the distress was impending in the Akola District of Berar. Copy of his report and its enclosure, with the orders passed thereon, forms enclosure No. 3 to this letter. Happily, good rain has fallen in Berar since the Resident's report was written; and Sir Richard Meade was able to assure me, at our meeting on the 29th August, that fears of scarcity in Berar were for the present removed. The caution I have given against beginning relief works too early, and against opening scattered petty relief works at the commencement of a scarcity, will, I trust, be observed, if threatenings of drought should again appear.

15. I reached Bellary on the 25th August, and the next day visited the large relief camp in that district, which then contained about 4,000 inmates. Among them, especially in the hospital sheds, was a considerable proportion of children and old people, who had been much reduced by want and its attendant diseases. Among the small children were some in a very pitiable condition; they had manifestly suffered from hunger; and it was said that, in some cases, parents had intentionally abstracted the meal supplied to the children. Nearly half of the inmates were apparently in good condition, and ought to have been at work. The weekly death-rate was very high, over 500 per mille per annum; but then it is to be remembered that into these camps are collected the sickly, the very old, the very young, and in fact the people who in ordinary years furnish the mortality of the whole community. In immediate executive charge of the camp was a Bengali Assistant Surgeon, who seemed to be doing his part of the work admirably.

16. I was impressed by the fact that the Bellary District had in the ground a certain amount of early crop which, if fertilised by rain during the fortnight following our visit, would yield a substantial addition to the food-supply of the country. The reports shew that the breadth of this early crop in the southern and western taluks of Bellary is larger, and its condition more flourishing, than in the parts we visited. Telegrams received since we left Bellary report that good rain has fallen there. Fortunately the prospect of Bellary for next year does not depend on the crop now in the ground; the great food (millet) crop of Bellary, and also its cotton crop, are sown in September and October; the millet ripens in January, and the cotton is plucked in March. If the rainfall of September and October is good, Bellary (and the rest of the Ceded Districts) will be again prosperous by the end of February.

17. Leaving Bellary on the 28th, I reached Madras on the following day. That evening I visited the relief gangs on the short junction canal near Government-house. The labourers were in very good physical condition; on this, as on other relief works in the Madras Presidency, task-work is practically not exacted. The hutting and conservancy system was good, but the labourers were supplied with food considerably in excess of their customary diet in ordinary years. Before passing from the subject of the relief arrangements at Madras, it may be mentioned that, in company with the Governor, I inspected the Palaveram Relief Camp with its 8,000 inmates, the Monegar Choultry Relief Camp with 3,400, and the Red Hills Camp with 6,000 inmates. At each of these relief camps, and especially at the first two, the arrangements were good, the camps were clean, the people were orderly, the hospitals were well kept; but, at the very least, half the inmates were strong enough and well enough to have been employed on relief works, instead of living in almost enforced idleness on, what is to them, a high diet. In this respect, the Madras relief camps appear to me to fall far short of what economically-managed relief camps should be. The weekly mortality in the camps is high, as at Bellary, and this mortality is principally among new comers, persons who are found dead or dying outside the camps being reckoned into the death-rate of the camp. These deaths betoken insufficient relief in the tracts from which the people come wandering into Madras. From the South Arcot district wanderers have recently begun to flock into Madras in considerable numbers; and to that district the Madras Government is now despatching Mr. Puckle, a Member of the Revenue Board, to enquire into the matter.

18. One subject which engaged my attention while at Madras was that of soliciting private subscriptions in aid of Relief Funds. A telegram had been sent to the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal on 12th August, in which the Government of India in brief terms deprecated any such appeal on the part of Government; and it appeared from some correspondence between the Lord Mayor of London and the Local Relief Committee at Madras that misunderstanding existed as to the real views of the Government on the subject.

19. A copy of the letter, which, in continuation of the telegram of 12th August, I caused to be addressed to the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in elucidation of these views, forms enclosure No. 4 of this letter. It is briefly to the effect that, while the Madras Government have undertaken to save life by all available means in their power, and while their own organisation is strained to the very uttermost in the attempt to carry out this object, it is not desirable that any Committee for the distribution of private charity should attempt to carry out the same objects, on the same lines, and through the same agency, as the Government. In other words, it is undesirable that a Relief Committee should interfere with the ordinary relief organisation of Government. Further, it is not proper or expedient that the Government should ask for private subscriptions to supplement its own expenditure on famine, especially as it is clear that such subscriptions can make no appreciable difference in an expenditure which exceeds half a million sterling a month; and because general taxation, falling chiefly on the very classes who might be expected to subscribe, must in the end be required to provide for this expenditure.

20. It must here be observed that, although the meeting held at Madras for the purpose of appealing to private charity in aid of famine relief was presided over by the Governor of that Presidency, and attended by all the members of the local Government, yet this meeting took place without the knowledge of the Government of India, or any intimation by the Governor to the Viceroy of the motives and objects of it. These the Government of India was left to gather from the newspaper reports of the proceedings on that occasion, according to which, it had been stated or implied by the majority of those who addressed the meeting, that the Government of Madras could no longer hope to feed the increasing number of its famine-stricken population; that, in its efforts to do so, it was inadequately supported by the Government of India; and that thus necessity had arisen for appealing to private charity in aid of those efforts. It was impossible to know how far these views and statements were approved by the high authorities of the Madras Government in whose presence they had been forcibly expressed. But the Government of India was bound to repudiate all concurrence in them, when called upon by other local Governments to declare its own opinion on the subject of private charity in connection with famine relief.

21. This was done by the Government of India in the telegram above referred to; but in that telegram the Government distinctly stated that, if private charity could be applied to other methods of relief, and could be made to reach other classes than those which came within the reach of State Agency, and if this could be attained by a volunteer organisation apart from that of Government, then there could be no objection to unofficial meetings for the furtherance of such objects. In our opinion, however, the interests of the public, no less than the duties of the State, required that these objects should be strictly defined, and intelligibly announced, in connection with some previously ascertained and well-considered means of securing their attainment, before the authority of Government could be legitimately or conveniently associated with the collection of private charity for the relief of national distress. This view has now been reiterated; and it has been again explained that, while it is not desirable, in the circumstances above mentioned, for the Government itself to take any part in the collection or distribution of subscriptions, every encouragement should be given to the spontaneous flow of private charity. It has also been pointed out that, our objection to inviting subscriptions from those who will hereafter have to be taxed for the same object does not apply to subscriptions from England; and finally, as the Madras Committee, of which the Duke of Buckingham is the Chairman, has expressed its intention of directing the money subscribed to objects other than those which come within the scope of Government Agency, His Grace has (enclosure No. 5) been invited to formulate definitely and in detail what those objects are to be, and the agency through which they are to be attained.

22. Much discussion has taken place during the past week on the working and the requirements of the Madras Railway. Seventeen additional engines and one hundred wagons have during August been borrowed from other lines and sent to Madras; one hundred more wagons will shortly arrive from the Baroda line. The Madras Railway is receiving from England six to eight new powerful engines per month; 200 metre gauge wagons are on their way (some have actually arrived) from State lines for work on the South Indian Railway. The double line from Madras to Arcunum has been opened for traffic. The despatches of grain from the Madras Terminus are reaching 1,800 tons a day; while the despatches inland from Negapatam and Beypore are keeping up to the mark. I anticipate that the several Madras Railways will, if grain be consigned in sufficient quantities, despatch inland the full quantity required daily, namely—

	Tons.
From Madras Terminus by the Madras Railway ...	1 800
" Beypore ...	400
" Raichore ...	900
By the South Indian Railway ...	800
" canal and road from Madras ...	800
TOTAL ...	4,500

Under these circumstances the Government of India have, for the present, refrained from compelling other guaranteed lines, by forced Government requisition, to lend more rolling-stock than they can willingly spare to the Madras Railway; and we are the more anxious not to make requisitions if it can possibly be helped, because the other railways have loyally obeyed our request for loans of rolling-stock as far as they possibly could; and because we do not know what urgent need may spring up for grain transport in other parts of the Empire which are threatened with scarcity.

23. Though the Madras Railways, by working full power, can thus almost meet the necessities of the case, yet it is by no means certain that they can continue to do so, or that they will be prepared for new demands which may arise if the north-east monsoon fails. Some of their engine and wagon stock is very old, and may become unserviceable before the crisis is over; the Northern Railways may, if difficulty comes in Upper India, have to reclaim the engines they have lent. In order, therefore, to provide against possible difficulties, we have telegraphed to Your Lordship supporting the Madras Government in their indent of the 17th August for 20 more engines, 600 wagons and 40 brake-vans; and we have asked for 20 more engines in addition to the Madras indent. You have informed us by telegraph that 500 of these waggons, will reach India within ten weeks' time. We hope that this additional stock, together with 30 new heavy engines now arriving, will enable the Madras Railways to meet all emergencies. We have asked that the 40 new engines should, for reasons explained in my colleagues' railway letter, quoted in paragraph 10 of the present letter, form part of the State reserve of engines.

24. It has been mentioned that the railways will carry the required amount of grain, if only it is consigned by the trade. And upon the question whether private trade will send into the famine country all the grain that is required, the safety of the people depends. It cannot be said that the trade sends all the country can take; for the dear prices ruling in so many districts would show that more grain would be readily bought if sent. But this much is certain; private trade is still consigning to the famine country much more grain than the railways can carry into the interior. In previous letters we have reported that more than 100,000 tons of grain are awaiting despatch at, or near, the railway stations in the Central Provinces. The Bengal exportable surplus, if the crop now in the ground turns out well, will not fall short of 350,000 tons. Already 100,000 tons of freight, chiefly steamer freight, has been taken up for despatch of grain from Calcutta to Madras ports during the present month. The actual despatches of rice from Bengal to Madras were 53,225 tons, or an average of 3,800 tons daily, during the fortnight ending on the 29th August. The despatches from Burmah to Madras were only 400 tons during the same period; so that there would seem to be truth in the opinion, generally expressed by merchants, that the Burmah rice ports have no more grain to send till next crop comes to market in December. From Saigon it was reported that 150,000 tons were ready for export, but that most of this would go to China, where also there is a large famine demand. But a telegram from the Governor of the Straits Settlements, dated the 1st September, has told us that the Siamese Government has prohibited the export of rice from Bangkok until the 30th September, on account of the threatened dearth in those territories. At the same time, the Persian Government has prohibited grain exportation from Bushire. It would seem therefore that, for the present, India cannot expect food-supplies from further Asia, but must send the surplus of the north to supply the deficiency of the south. For the present, and so far as we can foresee, any grain imported by Government would occupy railway wagons to the exclusion of private despatches, and would paralyze trade to an indefinite extent.

25. On my way to Madras, I received a report from the Lieutenant-Governor on the prospect of the autumn crops in the North-West Provinces and Oudh. His account was, in brief, that the early (July and August) rains had failed over large tracts of the North-West Provinces; that over the Agra, Meerut and Jhansi Divisions, and over a great part of Rohilkund and Oudh, the unirrigated autumn crops either had not been sown, or had withered, and that the irrigated crops had been much scorched by the hot, dry westerly winds. The redeeming features of the situation were that the autumn crop in the Allahabad and Benares Divisions, though in jeopardy, would still be saved if rain came; that the food stocks in the country were very large; and that there was still ample time for the rain to come and secure good spring crops, which yield the larger food-harvests of the year. It was explained that Sir George Conper had given directions to Commissioners to open relief works of certain classes, as soon as they deemed such a course necessary. The Lieutenant-Governor's report will be found in enclosure No. 6, together with the orders passed by the Government of India on the subject. It will be seen that, while commending the North-West Provinces Government for its foresight and the caution given against alarmist views, I have desired a reconsideration of the orders permitting the commencement of petty relief works in many parts of the country; and directed that, if relief employment is to be a charge against the general treasury, such employment should be given on fully supervised large works of permanent usefulness. It was mentioned that the Government of the North-West Provinces possessed, ready to its hand, complete projects for several such works, on which, if need be, relief employment could at once be given.

26. From the Resident at Baroda I learnt that a serious failure of the autumn food-crop was impending, and that prices were already rising to famine rates (twelve pounds per rupee). An interesting and suggestive letter was received from Sir Madhava Rao, the Baroda Minister, on the same subject. The Minister's recommendations were, in effect, that relief works should be opened simultaneously, and a uniform famine policy adopted all over the Baroda country, over British Guzerat, and over the Kattywar Chiefships. It was urged that trade in grain should be everywhere exempted from transit dues, and that nowhere should grain exports be prohibited. The Minister went further, and recommended that Government should purchase and import grain from other parts of the world. In my Secretary's reply, the Resident was furnished with a copy of the orders sent by Sir Richard Temple to the officers of British Guzerat, directing that projects for well-considered public works should be at once prepared, but forbidding the opening of relief works so long as the people could support themselves. The Resident was reminded that the ryots of Guzerat were exceptionally prosperous; that last season they had excellent harvests and high prices, and he was cautioned against opening petty relief works or beginning gratuitous relief at all for the present. The attention of Political officers attached to the neighbouring States was called to the desirability of all the Chiefs adopting the British principle of admitting free passage of grain from, as well as to, tracts threatened with scarcity. At the same time, the Minister was thanked for his suggestions; he was told of the steps taken by the Government of India to make known the state of prices in Southern India throughout adjoining provinces and countries; and it was explained that the Government would not engage in the business of importing grain. The advice given to Native Chiefs regarding free trade in grain has already borne some fruit; for Major-General Sir Henry Daly telegraphs from Indore, that His Highness Maharaja Holkar has agreed to withdraw the prohibition against grain exports from his territory, and that at least one other Chief of Central India has followed the Maharaja's example.

27. I propose to start to-night for Bangalore in order to confer with the Chief Commissioner on the state of affairs in Mysore, the actual condition of which, as well as the future prospects of that State, are subjects of very grave anxiety to me. Since the date of the last weekly telegram, the prospects have not improved, and day by day the burden of the telegrams has been that no rain has fallen. Last evening, however, brought better news, good rain being reported to have fallen on the 2nd instant. Prices of food-grains show no material alteration. The last report received from Mysore shows the number on relief works slightly diminished, and the number on gratuitous relief considerably increased. The following are the totals: on relief works 49,000 persons, on gratuitous relief 213,000. These figures, no less than the reports previously received, indicate very clearly that the famine organization in Mysore is unable efficiently to cope with the distress; and the radical error of the system may be gathered from the fact that out of a total of 264,000 persons receiving relief, less than 23,000 are on works professionally supervised. The latest Mysore weekly report forms enclosure No. 7 to this despatch.

28. As a first step towards introducing improved organization, I have deputed two selected officers from the North-West Provinces—Mr. C. A. Elliott, Commissioner of Meerut, and Major Scott Moncrieff, R.E.,—to assist the Chief Commissioner, and I have also deputed five military officers to assist in controlling relief operations. A detailed scheme for providing public works, and for reorganizing gratuitous relief, will be framed after discussion with the local administrative officers at Bangalore.

29. The Chief Commissioner of Mysore has made an application to the Government of India for a loan of fifty lakhs to meet the famine expenditure. The expenses of the famine have hitherto been defrayed by proceeds of the invested funds amounting to 46,16,000 rupees. This source of supply will be exhausted by the end of the current month, and the budget shews no balance to fall back upon. The Government of India have agreed to grant the loan, as thereby, the Mysore State would be compelled to borrow in the open market—a policy which the Government is not prepared to accept in the case of any Native State; and the loan will be granted, on terms to be fixed hereafter, in the following instalments:—

In October	20 lakhs.
„ November	15 „
„ December	10 „
„ January or February	5 „

30. Until the beginning of September, the condition of affairs in some of the Central India States, especially Gwalior and the Bundelkund country, was getting worse and worse. Already there was a demand for relief labour in Gwalior; emigration was beginning, and strings of emigrants were passing down the Indore road, some hundreds of whom received a meal at Goona. To relieve this pressure, relief employment has been opened on the further section of the Agra and Gwalior Railway. Sir Henry Daly, the Resident at Indore, telegraphed on the 29th August that the commencement of work on the railway had temporarily checked the emigration. Work on the Pahlunpore Railway, recently sanctioned by Your Lordship, was also arranged, as a relief measure to relieve the pressure in that part of the country, which pressure is, according to latest telegrams, now much lightened by the favourable rain-fall of the past week.

31. The season telegram despatched to-day to Your Lordship is as follows:—

Madras.—One to 1½ inches rain. Bellary, Kurnool, Cuddapah, much benefit; good rain Ganjam, Vizagapatam, Kistna; thunderstorm at Madras; one inch rain at Madras on 4th. Only half an inch elsewhere, save where occasional heavy showers; crops improved by rain except in South Arcot, Coimbatore, Salem, Madura; prices dearer; 901,227 on works, 1,430,885 on gratuitous; grain importations large; railway transport improving.

Bombay.—Showers throughout week everywhere; four inches rain all over Guzerat; continuous heavy rain all Konkan districts; good rain throughout Khandesh, Nasik, Sattara, Belgaum, and greater part Poona, Sholapore. Partial rain, Dharwar, Kaladgi. Prospects much improved. Prices not yet cheaper. Numbers on works 278,731; on gratuitous 125,960.

Mysore.—Bad week, occasional light showers; good rain Bangalore, night second September, gauging 1½ inches; dry crops prospects worse in all districts; gratuitous numbers 213,000; works number 40,000.

Hyderabad.—Three days' good rain, over four inches. Much benefit. Good rain Berar.

Rajputana.—Heavy rain Aboo and south-west States. Good rain Jeypore. Heavy showers Ajmere, Meywar and East States. Lyall telegraphs general prospect very materially improved. More rain needed Ulwar, Meywars.

Central India.—Good rain Rutlam, Indore and all Malwa. Two inches rain Neemuch, Gwalior, Bundelkund; too late to save much autumn crop Gwalior. Still prospects everywhere improved.

North-West.—Moderate rain Allahabad, Benares division; four inches Jhansi division; half-inch Agra; good rain one day Meerut and Bareilly; rest slight partial showers. Autumn crop lost many parts.

Punjab.—Dry hot weather up to second, then heavy universal rain over province, gauging 9½ inches at Ludhiana; too late to save autumn crop in parts. Lieutenant-Governor telegraphs prospects immensely improved, spring crop sowings secured over the important grain-producing districts.

Bengal, Central Provinces, Burmah, Assam.—Seasonable weather, good prospects.

It has given me great pleasure to be able to address to Your Lordship so satisfactory a telegram. But I cannot forget that, although our prospects are almost everywhere so much better than they were when I left Simla, yet everything in the Madras Presidency depends mainly on the October rains (north-east monsoon). The condition of Mysore is still a matter for much anxiety; and our hope for the future can only be fulfilled by a continuance of the present favourable change in the weather.

No. 82, dated 8th November 1877.

To—The Government of India.

I have to acknowledge the receipt of Your Excellency's despatch of the 5th September, No. 33 of 1877, giving an account of Your Lordship's visit to Poona, Madras, and other places, for the purpose of conferring with the Governors of Bombay and Madras and with other high officers on the subject of the famine.

2. The Despatch is one of high importance, but in replying to it, I am greatly embarrassed by the fact that more recent information received by telegraph has materially altered the condition of many districts through which Your Lordship passed, and that therefore your observations apply in some measure to situations which have ceased to exist. It is very gratifying to me to add that, as a rule, the prospect has considerably improved.

3. I have to express my cordial appreciation of the wisdom and public spirit which induced Your Excellency to undertake this journey, for the purpose of examining personally the state of the country, and of strengthening the hands of the Local Governments and Administrations, by your sympathy and counsel, in the performance of those arduous duties which have demanded the exercise of the highest energy and judgment.

4. Your Excellency's journey extended from Simla, through Amballa, Agra and Allyghur, to Jubbulpore, thence by Khandesh and Nassik to Poona, where you met the Governor of Bombay, thence to Bellary, before reaching which place the Resident at Hyderabad had an interview with Your Lordship, and then on to Madras. On the date of the despatch you were about to start for Bangalore.

5. Your Excellency's despatch gives a rapid but vivid description of the condition of the territories through which you passed, and you availed yourself of the opportunity of visiting relief camps in Poona, Bellary and Madras. It is difficult to exaggerate the advantage to the public service in all executive departments, when the head of the Government thus sees for himself the terrible proportions of the evil with which he has to contend.

6. The results of your consultations with his Grace the Governor of Madras have been stated in your despatch No. 34 of the 5th of September, to which I will give a separate reply. Two subjects are prominently dealt with in the despatch now under reply—

1st. The carrying powers of the railways.

2nd. Private subscriptions in aid of relief funds.

7. The anxious attention of the Governments of Madras and Bombay has been directed to the increase of the carrying powers of the railways, but it has been found almost impracticable to obtain from them the daily delivery of the number of tons which it was thought each Company ought to be able to transport. Under these circumstances, application was made to me for the supply of additional engines and wagons. These indents, as modified by more recent advices, are, as Your Lordship has been informed by telegraph, in process of receiving due compliance, and I trust that the railways will soon be able to meet the exigencies of the exceptional demands made on their resources.

8. With respect to private subscriptions in aid of relief funds, I understand Your Lordship's view to be this. That the Government is responsible, as far as may be practicable, for the saving of life by all the available means in its power, and that for this purpose an official agency has been organized; that it is not desirable that another agency, or the same agency under another name, should be employed on the same lines in the distribution of private charity; that such an interference would only impair the efficiency of the arrangements of Government, while the subscriptions could hardly make any appreciable difference in the expenditure of the State. At the same time, Your Excellency was perfectly alive to the fact that there were objects to which the efforts of private charity might well be directed, such as the extension of relief to women of the respectable classes, of aid to persons of very small fixed incomes, and to others who were struggling if possible to remain in their homes and not to resort to relief camps. Similarly, Your Excellency was also of opinion that arrangements by grants to orphanages and to individuals, for the support of those children who had lost their parents through the famine, might reasonably be the work of private charity, and you had requested the Governor of Madras to consider the specific objects to which the operation of such private charity should be directed, and the agency by which it should be distributed and superintended. If I have thus interpreted rightly the views of Your Excellency, they have my concurrence.

9. I approve of your instructions to the Resident at Baroda to be cautious as to the opening of petty works and the commencement of gratuitous relief. The long and exceptional prosperity of the ryots in Guzerat should render the necessity for the adoption of such measures a distant contingency. Your instructions to Political officers in the neighbouring States of Baroda to urge on the Chiefs the propriety of admitting free passage of grain from and to tracts threatened with scarcity, were also, I consider, very judicious.

10. The condition of Mysore is a subject of great anxiety to Your Excellency. You have strengthened the Famine organization in that province by the deputation of some selected officers, an arrangement which has my full approval. As it appears that the invested funds of the Mysore State, amounting to upwards of forty-six (46) lakhs of rupees, have been exhausted by the famine expenditure, I sanction the grant of a loan of fifty (50) lakhs, which Your Excellency proposes to make in four instalments to that State.

11. The general conclusion which I draw from Your Excellency's despatch is that, terrible as is the calamity which has visited the greater part of India, it has everywhere been met with unsparing energy and devotion by the public service in all Departments, and conspicuously by Your Excellency and the Governors of Madras and Bombay.

No. 34, dated 5th September 1877.

From—The Viceroy and Governor General of India,
To—The Secretary of State for India.

In my letter No. 33 of to-day's date, I have laid before Your Lordship some account of the journey I have undertaken to Madras, accompanied by my colleague, Sir Alexander Arbutnot, together with a brief summary of the latest changes in agricultural prospects over the several provinces of the Indian Empire. In the present letter I shall confine myself to a description of the arrangements concluded, after personal conference with the Governor, for the purpose of systematizing the policy, and strengthening the administration, of State relief throughout the famine-stricken districts of the Madras Presidency.

2. My minute, dated the 12th August, submitted to Your Lordship with our letter of the 20th August, contained a review of the situation which the Government of India had been Government, thus retarded and dispersed, had been unable to counteract, it was deemed absolutely necessary to concentrate the direction, and simplify the process, of its famine business, by placing it within the immediate control of a Famine Dictator, who, acting under the general authority of the Government of India, should be solely responsible for the administration of this department.

12. By none but the Head of the Local Government could such a task be properly assumed, or adequately discharged. It was therefore decided that, by rules passed under the India Council's Act, the Governor of Madras should take the famine business into his own hands, as was done by Lord Northbrook during the famine of 1874 in Bengal; that Collectors and executive officers should correspond with the Government on famine matters direct, and not through the Revenue Board as heretofore; and that Major-General Kennedy, acting as the accredited agent of the Government of India, should be appointed Personal Assistant to the Governor in all famine affairs. The object of this arrangement (to which great importance is attached by His Grace the Governor and by myself) is to associate the authority of the Supreme with that of the Local Government, without abrogating the responsibility of the former, or hindering the action of the latter.

13. These measures, as settled between the Governor and myself, have been loyally accepted by the other Members of the Madras Government. I do not expect from them, either now or hereafter, a complete recovery of the whole ground already ravaged by the growth of famine; but I feel assured that they will greatly facilitate remedial operations, and restrain the progress of positive pauperism.

* On our journey an urgent demand reached me by telegraph for 100 additional Medical Subordinates for Madras. Bengal had already lent 64 such officials. At the present time of writing over 62 out of the additional 100 have been arranged for, and some 20 have actually arrived in the Madras Presidency.

The Government of India has given to the Government of Madras the services of one of the very best famine officers in India; and we have arranged for the immediate despatch of all the Engineering, Executive and Medical* assistance required by the Local Administration. The Supreme Government, relieved from all necessity for detailed supervision, or vexatious interference, will spare no effort to assist the free and more vigorous action of the Madras Government, in following out the broad lines of famine policy now accepted. The Governor of Madras becomes virtually a Dictator in famine affairs, so far as the constitution permits such an arrangement; and I have every reason to anticipate great amelioration in the social and financial conditions of the Madras famine from His Grace's more direct control of the operations which will now be commenced.

14. The letter from the Government of Madras, which will reach Your Lordship by the present mail, gives the latest available information on relief affairs. It will be seen from it that there are now in this Presidency two and a quarter millions of persons in receipt of gratuitous relief, and on relief works, most of which works are under no adequate control, nor are they of such a character as to promise any great permanent benefit to the country.

15. It only remains for me to express the hope that the arrangements reported in this letter and its enclosures will meet with Your Lordship's approval; and to record my warmest acknowledgments of the cordiality and ability with which I have been assisted by the Duke of Buckingham in bringing these arrangements to a prompt and, I trust, a satisfactory conclusion.

No. 85, dated 22nd November 1877.

From—The Secretary of State for India,
To—The Government of India.

Your Excellency's despatch of the 5th September, No. 34 of 1877, describing the arrangements concluded for systematizing the policy and strengthening the administration of State relief throughout the famine-stricken districts of the Madras Presidency has been considered by me in Council.

2. Your Excellency, in the 4th, 5th and 6th paragraphs of the report, states, with great clearness, the peculiar difficulty of the problem presented for solution. The famine in the Madras Presidency had assumed such dimensions, both actually and in prospect, as to become one of the most serious disasters with which, as Your Lordship says, the Supreme Government has ever had to deal. While the executive responsibility, at least in the first instance, rested with the Local Government, the financial responsibility rested, as always, with the Government of India. The wide extent and severity of the famine rendered the duty imposed on the Supreme Government one of anxious gravity, but one of which it could not efficiently acquit itself without, in a great degree, interfering with the action of the administration which had on the spot to provide for the mitigation of the calamity.

3. It was not deemed expedient, and I think rightly, to transfer for the time the seat of the Supreme Government to the Madras Presidency, and thus to bring the executive and financial responsibilities into such immediate contact as to prevent all administrative delay. It was, therefore, necessary to devise some plan by which the Supreme Government would be justified in relaxing its control over the Local Government, and by which the action of the latter would be rendered more prompt, direct and efficient.

4. Your Lordship first laid down, in the Gazette of India Extraordinary, the principles by which famine policy should be guided. These are briefly summed up in the 10th paragraph of the despatch—

1st. An abstinence by Government from all measures which might interfere with the activity of private trade.

2nd. The initiation of a large scheme of public works as the essential portion of the relief system, other forms of relief being subsidiary. The large works to be under the direction and control of the Public Works Department.

3rd. All gratuitous relief to be as far as possible temporary, and all relief camps to be maintained only for receiving and supporting the starving and the infirm, and for getting them into a condition to labour.

These principles appear to me to be sound and judicious. At the time when these arrangements were being matured, I called Your Lordship's attention by telegraph to the importance of guarding from undue pressure, under the piece-work system, the large numbers of those who would not as wholly infirm be consigned to gratuitous relief, but who had become so enfeebled by privation as to be incapable of performing the ordinary task. I find that full provision has been made against this danger.

5. Your Lordship then proceeded to arrange that the Supreme Government should be represented by a carefully selected agent. For this most important duty you nominated Major-General Kennedy, the Secretary to the Government of Bombay in the Public Works Department, who had gained great distinction by his successful superintendence of relief operations in the Bombay Presidency.

6. You then determined that, by rules passed under the India Council's Act, the Governor of Madras should take the famine business into his own hands, as was done by Lord Northbrook during the famine of 1874 in Bengal; the Collectors and executive officers should correspond with the Government on famine matters direct, and not through the Revenue Board as heretofore; and that Major-General Kennedy, acting as the accredited agent of the Government of India, should be appointed Personal Assistant to the Governor in all famine affairs. These measures, by which, in Your Excellency's words, the Governor of Madras became virtually a Dictator in famine affairs, as far as the constitution permitted such an arrangement, were settled between the Governor and yourself, and have been loyally accepted by the other members of the Madras Government.

7. The arrangements appear to me to have been well calculated to secure the objects which Your Excellency had in view. I have to communicate to you, on behalf of Her Majesty's Government, their high appreciation of the judgment with which your policy has been conceived, and the energy with which it has been carried into execution.

WEEKLY CONDITION REPORT OF THE DISTRESSED DISTRICTS OF THE

PROVINCE OF MYSORE

(No. 48).

Special Famine Report for the Week ending 5th January 1878.

Statement No. 48, regarding Famine Relief operations in the Province of Mysore for the Week ending the 5th January 1878.

The weather has been bright and clear, though the mornings were sometimes foggy. Agricultural prospects are unchanged. The dry crops in the Tûmkûr District have yielded a poor return, but in other Districts the harvest has not been so decidedly unfavorable, and the Vaisak crops this year are likely to be exceptionally good. The Famine Commissioner, now in the north of Kolar, speaks well of the crops there and of the large area irrigated from streams and wells. A careful field-to-field inspection of 7 villages of the Tûmkûr Taluk has shewn that there is only about $\frac{1}{3}$ rd of the usual produce per head of existing population likely to be got from the crops which have been sown, but the experiment has been too local to admit of any general conclusion being arrived at, and the Famine Commissioner has called for the results of similar investigations made by other officers.

2. Prices in the Bangalore, Kolar, Tûmkûr, and Mysore Districts have slightly risen. Elsewhere they continued to fall. Imports by rail amounted to 1,582 tons, or 62 tons more than for the previous week. The Octroi officials return 690 tons, or 75 tons less than last week, as exported from Bangalore; but these figures are not very accurate.

3. The number of Civil Works has now been reduced to 16, with 5,069 persons employed on them, and next week's returns will shew a still further reduction in this description of relief.

4. The numbers under the Department Public Works exhibit a slight increase, amounting to 1,417, the daily average being 44,427 compared with 43,010 for the week before. The following is a list of the more important works :—

No.	District.	Name of Work.	NUMBER EMPLOYED

TOTAL			41,463	42,795

5. The numbers in the Relief Camps, of which there are now only 40, have declined to 6,980, of whom a large proportion are in Hospital. There were 1,301 new admissions during the week; 7,503 of the inmates were allowed to return to their homes, and 417 were sent to Relief Works. Particulars appear in the following statement:—

BANGALORE, }
12th January 1878.

By Order,
A. WINGATE,
Addl. Secretary.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE, AGRICULTURE, AND COMMERCE.

REPORTS ON THE STATE OF THE SEASON AND PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS
FOR THE WEEK ENDING THE 15TH JANUARY 1878.

GENERAL REMARKS.—In Madras the only rainfall reported during the week was in North Arcot; general prospects are fair; the total number on relief works is 158,643, and on gratuitous relief 210,896, a decrease of 10,030 and 22,446 on the figures of last week respectively. In Mysore there has been no rain; the harvesting of dry crops continues, with a generally poor outturn: the numbers on works for the week ending the 5th instant were 49,496 and on gratuitous relief 9,750, 1,060 more and 5,193 less than during the previous week. In Bombay there has been no rain except a shower in the Panch Mahals and a fall in part of the Kurrachee district; in Sind the river is now falling, though still abnormally high: the crops have been injured there in some parts by frost, but in Kurrachee they have been improved by the rain and floods: cloudy weather has caused some blight in Khandesh and the Southern Mahratta Country. In the Central Provinces rain is reported only from Saugor, Seoni and Mandla, but it is generally cloudy: prospects are on the whole favourable. In Berar prospects are good. In Central India good rain has fallen at Sutna, and some in Malwa; prospects are favourable. In Rajputana there has been no rain: the crops are doing well. In Bengal rain has fallen throughout Behar and in parts of the Bhágalpur Division; the condition of the cold weather crops is now generally promising; the harvesting of the winter rice is all but finished. In Assam there has been no rain; prospects are good. No rain is reported from Burma, where the harvest is progressing with an excellent outturn. In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh beneficial rain is reported from almost all parts of the province; prospects are good. In the Punjab no rain appears to have fallen: the crops promise well.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.
ABSTRACT OF THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE COUNCIL OF THE GOVERNOR
GENERAL OF INDIA, ASSEMBLED FOR THE PURPOSE OF MAKING
LAWS AND REGULATIONS UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF
THE ACT OF PARLIAMENT 24 & 25 VIC., CAP. 67.

The Council met at Government House on Wednesday, the 16th January 1878.

PRESENT :

His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General of India, G.M.S.I.,
presiding.

His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, C.S.I.

His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, G.C.B.

The Hon'ble Sir E. C. Bayley, K.G.S.I.

The Hon'ble Sir A. J. Arbuthnot, K.C.S.I.

Colonel the Hon'ble Sir Andrew Clarke, B.E., K.C.M.G., C.B.

The Hon'ble Sir J. Strachey, K.C.S.I.

Lieutenant-General the Hon'ble Sir E. B. Johnson, K.C.B.

The Hon'ble Whitley Stokes, C.S.I.

The Hon'ble F. R. Cockerell.

The Hon'ble B. W. Colvin.

The Hon'ble Mahārājā Jotíndrá Mohán Tagore.

The Hon'ble T. C. Hope, C.S.I.

The Hon'ble Sir Shumshareperkash, the Rájá of Sirmur, K.C.S.I.

The Hon'ble Mumtáz-ud-Daola Nawáb Sir Muhammad Faiz Ali Khán, Bahádur, K.C.S.I.

The Hon'ble G. C. Paul.

The Hon'ble E. C. Morgan.

NORTHERN INDIA LICENSE BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR JOHN STRACHEY moved that the Bill for the licensing of trades and dealings in the Panjáb, the North-Western Provinces and Oudh be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Messrs. Stokes, Cockerell and Colvin, the Hon'ble Nawáb Faiz Ali Khán and the Hon'ble Mr. Morgan and the Mover. He said—

“My Lord,—At the meeting of this Council last week, Your Excellency stated that I should be able to explain to the Council to-day the course which the Government proposes to follow with reference to the Taxation Bills which were introduced three weeks ago.

“His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor expressed at the same time a strong opinion that no unnecessary delay ought to be allowed in passing the Bills into law.

“He said that local legislation depended much on the shape which these Bills might take, and that until that shape was finally decided, doubt and unsettlement must remain in men's minds as to the extent to which their interests would be affected by fresh taxation. He said that this doubt and unsettlement were mischievous to the public and embarrassing to the Government, and besides this he urged this important fact, to which I myself drew the attention of the Council when the Bills were introduced, that the work of assessing the license-tax ought to be carried out by the European officers personally before the cold weather now passing away was over; otherwise the work would inevitably fall into the hands of Native subordinates.

“Similar representations have been made by several of the other Local Governments. It had originally been the wish of the Government of India that a somewhat longer period should be allowed to elapse before these Bills were proceeded with; but on reconsidering the question, the Government fully recognises the force of the reasons given by His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor for the opinion that the Bills ought to be passed without needless delay.

“If the measures proposed by the Government had been less favourably received, the case would have been different, and it might have been right to give more time for public discussion and criticism. The Bills, however, have now been before the public for very nearly three weeks, and it was a cause of much satisfaction to me to hear from my hon'ble friend the Lieutenant-Governor, that he was satisfied that our measures had been generally well received, and that the necessity for further taxation had been loyally recognised.

"The Government therefore proposes that the Bills shall now be gone on with in the usual course. I am about to move that they be referred to a Select Committee, and when the report of the Committee has been laid before the Council, it is proposed to proceed with the Bills as speedily as may be found convenient.

"I have only one other point to notice.

"At the last meeting of the Council, my hon'ble friend the Lieutenant-Governor expressed a hope that I would take an opportunity of explaining the scheme which the Government of India proposed to adopt in regard to the expenditure of the funds which we are now proposing to raise by fresh taxation.

"I think this wish of my hon'ble friend entirely reasonable, and before the Council is asked to pass these Bills into law, I shall endeavour to give the fullest explanation in my power in regard to this subject.

"I feel confident that I shall be able to satisfy the Council and the public that the resolution which the Government has proclaimed will be faithfully carried out, and that the proceeds of these new taxes will be expended for the purpose of providing what I have called an insurance against famine, and for no other purpose whatever."

The Hon'ble MAHARAJÁ JOTÍNDRÁ MOHÁN TAGORE said: "My Lord,—I have listened with attention to what has been said by the Hon'ble Member who has just spoken, and I crave Your Excellency's permission to occupy the time of this Council with a few remarks. I feel sure that the people in general will in all loyalty willingly submit to the proposed taxation when it is shown that the exigencies of the State necessitate its imposition, and considering all circumstances, I am inclined to think that the proposed license-tax is the best that could be suggested—next perhaps to an income-tax with a high minimum of incidence. As a non-official member of this Hon'ble Council, I deem it my duty, however, respectfully to represent to Your Excellency the strong impression which exists among the people that there is considerable room for retrenchments in the Home Military charges as well as in the Army and Public Works expenditure here, and that no additional tax ought justly to be imposed on the people before such retrenchments have been effected. As to the practicability of the reductions, they are supported in their views by no less an authority than Your Excellency's distinguished predecessor, Lord Northbrook; and this Council will remember the correspondence which passed between the War Office and the Duke of Argyll when His Grace was the Secretary of State for India, with regard to the depôt and recruiting charges. I am glad to see that the Hon'ble Member in charge of our finances entertains similar views with regard to military expenditure, and although he said on a former occasion that Your Excellency's Government will endeavour by representation to the Home Authorities to effect necessary retrenchments, he has unfortunately for us been able to hold out little hope of success. Now, My Lord, the people of this country have no voice in the British Parliament, and they have no exponent of their views in the India Office; they naturally look up to Your Excellency's Government as the protector and guardian of their interests. I hope Your Excellency will allow that, as loyal subjects, they have a right to expect that this Government will not simply represent, but represent with all the force and earnestness which sincerity of conviction imparts, that it cannot consistently with justice impose fresh burdens upon the mute millions mostly living from hand to mouth, until all possible reductions in expenditure have been effected. The generous instincts of the British nation and the love of fair-play which distinguishes them will, I feel confident, be on the side of justice to India, though the adjustment of the financial relations of England with India on an equitable basis were to affect their own pockets and interfere with patronage in certain high quarters. But we are aware that reductions in expenditure cannot be made all at once, while the deficit in the revenue must be immediately met. Taxation, therefore, is a matter of necessity. There is a widespread apprehension however which, I confess, is not quite unfounded, that taxes once imposed are not easily or soon removed. For this reason I would take the liberty respectfully to suggest that the Select Committees to which the Taxation Bills are to be referred may be asked to give their special consideration to the question whether the Bills should not be so modified as to limit their operations to a certain period,—say two or three years, so that there may be ample time for representation to the Home Government and the British public of the grievances of which we complain. This course, I submit, will be an assurance to the people that Your Excellency's Government is in earnest to do all it can to effectuate reductions, and will inspire them with a confidence that no new permanent burden will be laid upon them until all efforts of Your Excellency's Government to persuade the people of Great Britain to deal justly by the helpless millions of this their great dependency have absolutely failed.

"One word more, My Lord, and I have done. Regarding the application of the money to be raised by taxation, with every deference to the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bills, I am humbly of opinion that it should be formed into a separate fund with a separate account, and not be merged into the general Revenue, so that it may satisfy the people that it is what in reality it is intended to be, a separate famine fund; they will also have an opportunity of knowing what portion of it, if any, is applied to the repayment of previous famine loans, and what portion is spent on the construction of famine insurance works, and how far those works answer the purpose for which they are intended; for, not to mince matters, there is a general conviction that some at least of the irrigation-works which have been executed have turned out to be, as Colonel Corbett has shown, works of experiment rather than of experience."

The Hon'ble SIR ANDREW CLARKE said:—"MY LORD,—The Council will, I trust, permit me to offer a few observations which, from the relations that are now recognized to exist between Famine and Public Works, may not be wholly unacceptable or without interest. And the more so, as the administration of the latter being my particular function, some declaration of our policy may be looked for in the light of the teachings of our recent sad experience.

"It is hardly time for us to review the history of the famine that is passing away, though not yet completely gone, in the Deccan and Southern India. Scarcity and high prices of food, there as well as in other parts of the empire, still remain and render it as difficult as it is premature to come to any finite conclusion as to the exact cause of the calamity, or to dogmatize on the remedies that should be applied to meet the recurrence of famine in the land.

"Unhappily, as handed down to us, we have many and varied precedents, both administrative and economic, not all consistent however, and not all wise or good, for us to accept as standards for our guidance, or as models to imitate; some, in fact, are rather the reverse. You, my Lord, have discussed this section of enquiry in your Minute of last August. But whether looking backward or forward, our object is to ascertain what is the policy to accept, the practice to adopt, in order to enable us, if we cannot abolish famine—an end I fear hopeless to be attained—to do at any rate what we can to limit its area, to localize its scourge, to mitigate its intensity.

"But here I may ask, though no complete or satisfactory answer, I fear, can yet be given, to what are high prices, scarcity or famine due? And why in recent years have these been so recurring, so severe, so virulent?

"Are there causes, possibly as potent but silently at work, to bring about these visitations, besides mere atmospheric phenomena?

"Is there less thrift than formerly? Is the surplus of full harvests no longer stored, but sold, and the proceeds dissipated? Has population increased and in proportion food produce diminished? Have edible grains given place to more paying crops?

"It is possible that these causes are at work here and there, in isolated places, due to special circumstances, but I am inclined to think they are not by any means general. Their consideration, however, calls for thorough scrutiny and investigation, a duty pertaining, in its early stages at least, to the Economist and Statistician rather than to the Engineer.

"In connection with this, I would mention one incident of grave practical moment in the late famine. It is known that more than two-thirds of the autumn and spring harvest failed over an area inhabited by thirty millions of people, and that during the period, some ten months, of the greatest intensity of this famine, the food imported could only have helped to feed one-third of this multitude: yet at the instant the fresh harvest was assured, prices dropped and import ceased. This might lead to the assumption that Southern India held within itself, even when its harvests had failed, stores of grain nearly sufficient to feed its people for the whole time, and yet we were assured on all sides at the end of last, and beginning of this, year that there were no reserves of food, or next to none, in that country. Is it impossible to devise a means by which our knowledge on this all-important point may in the future be, if not absolutely reliable, at least not absolutely nil?

"Again, the facts of the grain-trade of Northern India present some features which it may be worth while to note, and which suggest that vast reserves are still in hand, notwithstanding the enormous export-trade of the last two years, and particularly of the present year.

"The export of wheat from Calcutta on an unusual scale commenced in May 1876, just after the spring or wheat-harvest had been garnered. Wheat then sold at Cawnpore for 27 seers per rupee, and the export rose from 150,000 maunds in April to 540,000 maunds in July, but checked (apparently by a rise in price in July to 22½ seers) fell in August to 265,000 maunds. At the end of August the price again fell to 27 seers, and the exports rose to 560,000 maunds (the maximum of the year) in October. It was about this time that the signs of approaching famine were unmistakable.

"From the end of August, the price rose till nearly the middle of December 1876, when it was 21 seers for the rupee, and the exports in January 1877 fell to 120,000 maunds.

"Now it is since January 1877 that the extraordinary export has taken place—thus anticipating by at least three months the course of trade of the previous year,—but prices remained constant from December till the beginning of April, at 20 to 21 seers.

"War was declared in Europe on the 23rd April 1877.

"By May the exports had risen to upwards of one million of maunds, and with a slight check in June (the price had risen to 16 seers in May) reached its maximum (1,270,000 maunds) in August, the price having been 19½ seers early in June and 18 seers early in July.

"From June till the early part of August there was no great variation in price, but in the latter half of that month the price rose to 15 seers, reaching its maximum in the latter half of September, when it stood at 11 seers. The autumn crops of Northern India had failed, and the export-trade fell suddenly to 440,000 maunds in September, was 255,000 maunds in October, and 235,000 maunds in November.

"Thus, so far as we can see, the enormous abstraction of grain for export from Bombay as well as from Calcutta, in addition to what was sent to the famine districts of Western India, did not cause a greater variation in the price of wheat at Cawnpore between December 1876 and August 1877 than is represented by a difference of 4½ seers in the quantity obtainable for one rupee.

"But the moment one harvest had failed and the sowings for the next were in jeopardy, the law of self-preservation appears to have asserted itself, and we may, I think, deduce from the rapidity of its action that the reserves are great, and if, as I was informed, more than 100,000 tons of shipping were left without freights, we have an index of the trade which had been reckoned on, by those most fitted to estimate the power of the supply, to equal the demand.

"No doubt there are tracts of country which, formerly growing food for home-consumption, now grow produce for export, and depend for their support on supplies from without; but accepting this, what follows will, I think, show that this is a source of satisfaction rather than a cause for regret, since in the restoration of the balance we find the very weapon with which to fight famine: for the fleecy capsules of the cotton plant, or the jewelled diapers of the poppy, feed their cultivators with no less certainty than the crops of the rice swamp, or of the wheat field, feed those who raise them.

"The Agricultural returns of India, from which much might have been gleaned, are not very complete, or rather they are not as yet in a very accessible form, but Mr. Bernard has been kind enough to give me a note which will make a review of them intelligible. He says—

"The best return I have been able to get of the area cultivated and the area under food crops in different parts of India, incomplete it is true for some Provinces, but still sufficient for our purpose, shows that in our most thickly-peopled Provinces there are about 75 to 80 acres of land under cultivation to every 100 persons, and that out of those 75 to 80 acres 65 to 70 are under food crops. For instance, Oudh with its dense population of 14 millions has 9 million acres of cultivated lands, of which 8,200,000 acres bear food crops. Madras has 21 millions of acres under food crops for its raiyatwari population (excluding zamindaris) of about 27 millions. Mysore has $4\frac{1}{2}$ millions of acres under food for its population of 5 millions. British Burma has $2\frac{1}{2}$ millions of acres under food with a population of $2\frac{1}{2}$ millions. The Central Provinces, where the land is poor and cultivation is slovenly, and where there are grown much cotton and oil-seeds, have only 13 millions of acres under food crops out of a total 18 $\frac{1}{2}$ millions of cultivated acres, but then its population is only 9 $\frac{1}{2}$ millions. There are great differences in Provinces, for instance British Burma exports annually 800,000 tons of rice, that is to say, it produces from two to three times as much food as its people require. Assam, on the other hand, has also a very rich soil, a heavy and never-failing rainfall, enormous areas of virgin land, yet she does not produce food enough for her people, and has to import food from thickly-peopled Bengal. But so far as I know, Assam is the only Province in this case, and all the other Provinces of India produce enough food for their own support and for export as well.

"A great deal has been said of late years about the vast areas put down with opium, cotton, indigo, seeds and other crops, to the exclusion of food crops, and to the exploitation of India for the benefit of rich traders and of distant populations. But much of this kind of talk is due to ignorance; for out of the cultivated area of British India, estimated at about 160 millions of acres, only about 580,000 acres are under opium, and little more than one million acres under indigo, 8,000,000 oil-seeds, and 10,500,000 acres under cotton, most of it for home-consumption in India, while at least 130 millions of acres are under food crops. And an acre of food crop land will in an ordinarily good season support two people if the produce of one Province be taken with another. In Burma and Bengal one acre supports three or four people; in the Central Provinces and Bombay it supports less than two. No doubt the area under such crops as oil-seeds, jute and oil-bearing roots has increased greatly during the last 10 or 15 years. But then the total area under the plough has also increased vastly. In the Madras Presidency alone I find that Mr. Dalrymple, no mean authority, wrote in 1867 that the cultivated land in certain districts of Madras had from 1856 to 1866 risen from 10 millions to 16 millions of acres, so that it is quite safe to say that the area of food crop land in India is now as high or higher compared to the population than it was in old times, notwithstanding the great extension of non-food staples like linseed and rapeseed."

"My object in calling attention to this statement will be patent and, I trust, conclusive. It is this, that even if Drought and Dearth were more extensive and widespread than they have been in the most disastrous of Indian famines, the empire can still from its own soil feed itself, and I say this with the full knowledge, that we have drawn rice from beyond the limits of the empire.

"The significance of this fact should go far to reconcile us to accept, not with cheerfulness certainly, but with resignation, the proposals of my Hon'ble Colleague; and this consideration recalls me to my more immediate object that, though the measures for which we now seek assent are the premium which we must pay for insurance (I fear only for a part insurance), and though it is to be hoped that sweet nature will give us a little longer time for recovery and restoration before she again withholds from us her bounteous and fruitful gifts, we must in wisdom and with prevision and energy, use the opportunity of husbanding with knowledge, as well as of distributing with certainty and rapidity, those gifts so that our peoples may not again suffer as they have in the past.

"Severe as the dearth and consequent distress have been from which we are now emerging, there has been no dearth of suggestions for the remedy and prevention of a similar state of things. These suggestions are as varied in their scope as they differ in the means required to give effect to them, ranging from a scheme to cost only a hundred millions sterling—but the money did not come with the scheme—to the simpler and certainly less costly introduction of a patent two-wheeled cart for horse or bullock draft—my friend forgot to tell me how the cattle were to be fed—or to a cheap and simple wind-mill for pumping water, but I was not told how the water was to be raised when there is no wind, the normal atmospheric condition of India when water is most wanted.

"And now, my Lord, in what I am about to say on the particular specific that has been so boldly proffered to us, on many sides from many irresponsible authorities, as the certain cure and remedy for all our ills, I desire most emphatically to record the fact that, though not an Irrigation Engineer myself (for my experience in this field of my profession has been very limited), I have approached the consideration of the subject as applicable to all India, prejudiced in favour not only of Irrigation, but also of Inland Navigation, and that one of my dreams has been the hope that during the time I was to sit at this Council Board I would unite the waters of the Arabian sea with those of the Bay of Bengal by an inland channel.

"The stern realities that confronted me have dispelled this illusion, but at any rate this bare statement should clear me from the charge that because I have had larger experience in Railways, I am therefore biassed in favour of Railway enterprises.

"The construction of Irrigation and Navigation-works must strike the most heedless as the most obvious way of preventing famines. Water in ample abundance, rushing and racing to the Ocean only to be spread and lost in its broad bosom, has to be but bitted and curbed by dam or bund, and then so distributed as to fertilise the wide level plains of India, and to secure food and life for man and beast.

"A step further, and these running rills are deepened, extended and converted into silent highways, to bear to foreign markets the redundant harvests of the tracts they traverse, and to bring back argosies laden with the wealth of other lands.

"This seemed simple and captivating, and in India, with its tropical sun, its certain (?) monsoons, and the prodigious rainfall along the Gháts and in some localities, nothing should be more sure.

"Others again having studied well our geography, have seen in the perennial supply drawn by our northern rivers from the eternal snows of the Himalayas an inexhaustible source of national wealth.

"Have these rivers been neglected? A glance at a map showing the districts of Northern India protected from drought by irrigation-works will give a graphic answer.

"These protected areas form, it is true, but a small portion of the entire surface of the Continent, and of the balance left, little can unfortunately be reached by this perennial supply; for the area within its influence ceases a little south of the Jumna, and from Rajmahal on the East away to the far South and West all the immense region of Central India bounded by the Vindias falls to the Ganges, and is inaccessible to canal-irrigation.

"This area, then, and that again to the South of the range I have named, may be said to be wholly dependent upon rainfall. And we are thus brought to see that, vast as is the country we have to deal with, mere magnitude is but one element of the problem to be solved.

"Much, very much, has already been done, especially in Southern India, and much more still can be, and will be, done in storing water; but the lessons which past and recent famines have taught us are that territories dependent on reservoirs, or 'tanks' as they are better known in India, offer, and at the best can offer, only an intermittent protection under the phase from which we are now emerging.

"Multiply these tanks as we may, they will stand us in but little help in such a famine as we have just passed through, due, as it has been, not to the failures of a single season, or of a single year. Deficiency of water in them originally, and ceaseless evaporation, are the influences which dry up one and dry up all when once the supply fails. And here, before I pass from this subject, I would desire to say that, although confidence in tanks cannot be assured, dependent as they are on the doubtful factor of local rains, yet in Madras and especially in Mysore, where there is the enormous number of 37,600 tanks ranging from the size of a village reservoir to a respectable-sized lake of 14 square miles, much has been done in recent years to place them in a condition of safety, improving, as far as practicable, their capacity. But in this direction still more has to be done, and every effort will be made to insist on the continuance of systematic action in perfecting these works.

"To replenish these reservoirs from other than their natural catchments, as has been suggested, by means of channels led off from the larger rivers, would, in nearly all cases throughout the centre of the peninsula, where the scourge of famine has been heaviest, be either wholly impossible, or relatively so if financially considered.

"The tempting idea of storing up the flood wave where the streams first issue from their birth place in the bosom of the Western Gháts, unless in a very few exceptional positions, appears to be as deceptive as it is luring, judging from the experience of works of this character in the Bombay Presidency. No less than 27 works more or less of this type estimated to cost over 2 millions sterling have there been either completed or commenced as Famine Relief Works, with, it is much to be feared, little prospect of paying for many years to come.

"The greatest advocate for schemes of this character has lately stated that 10,000 such reservoirs with an unfailing supply could thus be constructed, and instanced as a case in point one capable of storing 1,600,000,000 cubic yards of water and of commanding 'nine-tenths of the whole Peninsula of India,' which project, however, had in vain been pressed on the attention of Government.

"The Officer whose duty it was to investigate this project, and who himself was at first most sanguine as to its success, informs me that, after several years' gauging the river which was to supply the reservoir, the available quantity of water turned out to be only one-fourth of that calculated above; and further, that judging from the experience of three other works of a precisely similar character which were experimentally carried out in the same chain of hills, the fact was clearly demonstrated that such works could not, at least under existing conditions, be made to pay. The land is there, the water is there, but the inducements hitherto held out to the cultivators to embark in irrigation have met with the same disheartening response as in the case of the Madras Irrigation Company's Canal, which has hitherto disappointed in the most marked manner the expectation held out when it was projected. I have said it would not pay; but to my mind this is a matter of secondary importance, if only it would not fail. But as a security against famine in times like those we have passed through, it would be a broken reed to lean on.

"In these situations, with régur or other unsuitable soils, rapidly sloping ground, and other drawbacks, the sparsely scattered, ignorant and indigent cultivators, who perhaps have had no previous acquaintance with irrigation, fail to realize the advantage of incurring the outlay requisite for terracing their fields (often in such localities a serious charge), and it is thus to be feared that generations must be born and die before appreciable progress can be made towards the desired goal.

"Until the general conditions with which we have to deal alter materially, or schemes hitherto tried without success solve the difficulty of bringing water to the land without thereby imposing an unbearable burden on the country, we must accept as a fact that close on 550,000 square miles of the 740,000 comprising the Great Provinces of the Empire (exclusive of the Native States, Burma, &c.) cannot receive protection in any broad sense, and the vision of the 10,000 great reservoirs conjured up by the enthusiastic projector must be allowed to fade into dreamland.

"Another distinguished writer who has been quoted as a great authority, and whose opinion I admit is deserving of every respect, has stated that the great tracts of the Panjáb might, at the cost of some 10 millions, be irrigated without the risk of pecuniary loss, and that this would be an insurance against drought.

"This may be true, but the question is not entirely connected with famine, and considered from an irrigation point of view, the scheme has been already considered and abandoned, because the taxpayers of all India would have to find the money to execute it, and when executed there would be for generations no people to enjoy it, the district containing but a handful of inhabitants.

"The same writer when criticising our past expenditure in the Tirhoot famine would also have that country irrigated. Press these principles to their logical sequence and apply them to all the area of India, and we are brought face to face with an outlay of some £ 700,000,000 sterling !

"For a moment however admitting the dictum that 'there is not a district in India that could not be more or less irrigated,' and assuming that only 100 millions of acres (say 156,000 square miles) of its whole surface could have this great blessing conferred on it, at the rate specified, namely, £2 per acre (the Bombay works give Rs. 23½ per acre for protection exclusive of indirect charges), a capital outlay of 200 millions would be needed, and an annual burden imposed on the people of 8 millions sterling to cover the interest charge at 4 per cent.

"A proposition so startling might be allowed to answer itself, or still better, by adopting an argument already used that the taxation of India 'is almost without limit so high that you cannot turn the screw a bit more,' be condemned by those who have brought it forward for grave consideration; but as the best means of bringing home the very precarious nature of the revenue derivable from these protective works, the following sentence may be quoted from the Bengal Revenue Report for the past official year :—

" 'In Midnapore the rainfall was 75 inches more in the opinion of the raiyats than is good even for rice. Hence Canal water was at a discount. Those cultivators who had executed leases at the commencement of the season regretted that they had done so, and the result seemed to justify their view of the case, as numerous careful experiments made by both Revenue and Engineer Departments showed that the outturn of the irrigated crops was in no degree superior to that of the unirrigated. This following upon a previous year of good rainfall has brought the Midnapore Canal into the greatest disfavour. There was a large falling off in the leased area, which has again been followed by a very much larger decrease in 1877-78.'

"This has the greater significance when it is recollected who the author is, and his devotion and attachment to this branch of his profession, for no better Irrigation Engineer exists in India than Colonel Haig.

"Again he observes—

" 'The previous year having been a very favourable one for the unirrigated crops, the area leased for in 1876-77 fell from 55,995 acres to 32,681, but as the season advanced and its real character developed, the lessees repented of their engagements, and endeavoured to evade them by every possible means, first clamouring for a remission of the Government demand on the ground that the water was of no value to them (which, as it has turned out, was true), and when this was refused, endeavouring to prove that water had not been properly supplied. The result has been disheartening for both Government and people. The revenue demands were enforced mostly by process of law, the people resisting them to the last. Very little of the demand for the year was recovered during the year, but the recoveries of arrears of former years were so vigorously carried on, that the actual collections exceeded those of any previous year except 1874-75.

" 'It is impossible to record this result with any satisfaction, as it seems certain that the arrears and the difficulty of enforcing payment were mainly, if not solely, due to the extreme poverty of the people. It is melancholy to read of 12,714 certificates having been issued for the recovery of the arrears after abandoning all claims for less than one rupee, and making remissions to a large extent on other grounds; and this in a district where the irrigators have, as a rule, dealt fairly with Government, and have always been ready to pay when they had the means. One can hardly read the description of the revenue operations of the year, and it may be added, of the previous years, without a wish that, if the state of the cultivators is such as it is described by the Collector and his subordinates, irrigation, which, according to them, only enhances the difficulties of the people in ordinary years, had never been introduced at all. The Deputy Revenue Superintendent remarks—"The most potent cause about the gradual decline of the area leased is the indebtedness of the Midnapore raiyats. They are involved over head and ears; and it is a matter of infinite regret that their debts are increasing as their connection with the Government irrigation is growing older. Excepting during the year under review, the canal irrigation as compared with the unirrigated crop has always increased the yield from 3 to 5 maunds in the acre, but the Government irrigators are not in a position to benefit by it; all that they obtained from the fields go punctually to fill the coffers of the Mahájans, and they have finally to borrow money for the payment of the water-rate. The increased yield of the crop, if reserved for the liquidation of the Government debt, is sure to prove more than enough for the purpose; but no notice is taken of it, and when the irrigator is forced to pay for the irrigation of his land, he blames the canal for the increased debt."

“ ‘ Again, attachments and sales of the debtors’ property were very frequent, and where they had not the desired effect, the debtors were arrested for the realization of the Government dues ; and it is now a very common saying within the irrigable area that the major portion of the Government irrigators have been deprived of their plough-cattle for the payment of the water-rates. This is not very untrue, as the most valuable saleable property in the possession of the cultivators are the bullocks ; and where we could catch hold of them no other movable or immovable property belonging to them was attached or sold. The number of sale notices and warrants for the arrest of the debtors issued during the year under review was unusually large, yet from the well-known poverty of the Midnapore raiyats, the result has not been as satisfactory as was anticipated.

“ ‘ The Zamíndárs, whose resistance to the spread of irrigation was hitherto passive, have now broken out in action, and many of them have openly prohibited their tenants from using the canal water on the penalty of incurring their severe displeasure. They have done this with the view of securing the realization of their own dues, and of preventing their raiyats from increasing their debts unnecessarily as they call it. The Mahájans also have been telling the raiyats not to resort to the canal any longer.’

“ ‘ For the Collector’s explanation of the causes of this state of things reference may be made to the Revenue Report of 1875-76, paragraph 36. It should be noted, in passing, that the year 1876-77, in which coercive measures on so large a scale were found necessary for the realization of the Government revenues, was one of exceptionally high prices, and so far peculiarly favourable to the raiyats.’

“ ‘ I have at length, and I fear to weariness, made these quotations ; not that I desire to repeat them in the remotest degree to depreciate irrigation, but to show that the subject is surrounded with other difficulties, perhaps more obstructive and more powerful than those which the Engineer can overcome or the Financier deal with.

“ ‘ What has been done already in the way of this artificial irrigation in parts of India, its cost and its results, may be rapidly sketched.

“ ‘ Take first, my Lord, this great Province of Bengal, with its 62,000,000 of population, and its 48,000,000 acres of land under food crops, and its 7,500,000 acres producing industrial staples of one kind or the other, and consider its three great irrigation schemes of Orissa, the Sone and Midnapore.

“ ‘ These three projects protect generally some 1,231,000 acres, or 2·2 per cent. of the whole cultivated area of the Province ; they will, when completed, fully preserve that area from drought under the worst conditions yet known. In the last year water was taken from them for 360,000 acres, or only a little more than $\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. of the total lands under crops. To obtain this result, we have already spent close on 4½ millions sterling, and a little under £4 an acre will have been spent when the works have been completed.

“ ‘ In the Panjáb, exclusive of ancient works, nearly 3½ millions sterling have been spent in irrigating a little more than 1 million acres. The Sirhind project, now drawing to completion, promises well, but none of the other numerous schemes for further irrigation in the Panjáb hold out fair prospects of immediate success.

“ ‘ The same difficulty applies to the prosperous Provinces of the North-West, where £ 5,500,000 have been already expended in irrigating, according to the last returns, some 1,390,000 acres, and in prosecution of works which will eventually command a much wider area. This accomplished, the Ganges and the Jumna, the perennial rivers of these regions, will have given up possibly all the treasures they have drawn from the glaciers of their source.

“ ‘ An author, one indeed of our own circle, has in an English periodical, alluding to our not having constructed the great Sardah Canal in Oudh, twitted us now in India, for locking the stable door after the horse had been stolen, and has compared us to a father who has fee’d the doctor, but has forgotten to feed his own child.

“ ‘ In answer to this, I shall only quote an extract from the Secretary of State’s Despatch of the 9th April 1873, in which he says :—

“ ‘ At a time when the finances of India are burdened with the pressure of so many and such important public works, it was obviously impolitic to persevere in a vast undertaking costing upwards of 3 millions of money for the purpose of bringing water to the estates of landholders, who protested against the project as being unnecessary and a source of disease, while the opinions of the great majority of the local officers in Oudh, endorsed by every Chief Commissioner of the Province, and shared in by the Lieutenant-Governor, were that the proposed canals were not wanted and would not be a financial success.’

"Let me pass on to Madras, where, as far as I can gather from the facts, some six millions sterling have been spent on irrigation-schemes, or rather where this amount has been calculated without taking into account the dead stock value of the ancient Native works. The results are certainly better there, for whilst in ordinary years some five million acres receive the full benefits of irrigation, in the very worst years one million six hundred thousand acres are effectually protected,—yet Madras, with its 32 millions of people, has even then but seven per cent. of its agricultural industry secured from disaster in years of ordinary rainfall, and a much smaller area in years of drought.

"In Bombay, exclusive of Sindh, with 19 million acres under cultivation, some 17,000 can now be irrigated, and when the works which are now under construction are completed, costing at present estimates more than two millions, it is hoped, at all events, some eight to nine hundred thousand acres may be protected.

"I could go on giving dry facts, but in themselves they would, I fear, convey but a small idea to the mind of the vast work already accomplished in this country, far exceeding all that has been hitherto done as regards irrigation by collected Europe with the great canals of Italy and the reservoirs and dams of Spain; and I should assuredly fail were I to undertake the still greater task of practically bringing home the boundless nature of the effort which some would have us undertake, were we to rely on irrigation alone as an universal insurance against Famine.

"It must also be distinctly borne in mind that the early Irrigation Engineers, who have left an imperishable name in connection with the works of their creation, naturally, and indeed necessarily, selected those fields in their enterprise, where all the elements of success lay in happiest combination. Where in fact—

" 'Mill sites fill the country as thick as you can cram' em, An desput rivers run about a' beggin folk to dam' em.'

"One of these Engineers, not the least distinguished, nor the least loud in his upbraidings at the shortcomings of those whom he has left behind in India, for not following his good example, has quite forgotten that he has himself plucked the choicest plums off the tree and has left us only the kernels. Take for example the Kistna Delta Irrigation alone. What have we there? a garden it is admitted. But then, from the 31st December till the 1st July, it places under contribution, and claims exclusive right over, all the water from a catchment of not less than fifty times its own area.

"Having now, however, entered upon those tracts where these advantages no longer exist in such profusion, the least want of prudence may, by bringing about failures, injure the very cause which those, who most earnestly desire the extension of irrigation, have most at heart.

"I think that I have, however, sufficiently shown that the administrators of this country, whether civil or professional, have ever valued the precious treasures of its rivers and storm waters.

"In short, as far as I can ascertain, we have spent some 24 millions sterling, and for this we have some 14,000 square miles actually irrigated with more or less certitude as regards permanency of supply. In other words, we have had to pay £ 1,700 for each square mile, or something under £ 3 an acre.

"Even if we had the water at command and it were otherwise practicable to protect all the agricultural land of India, it would demand on this basis, an outlay of at least some three hundred millions sterling. This would build some 40,000 miles of Railway, the fourth of which would give us an insurance not against famines, but certainly against extreme scarcity, distress and death from want.

"I said just now if practicable because, in order to irrigate, we must have water, either annual from heaven or perennial from the snows of the Himalayas. The first we must regard, I fear, as precarious and uncertain, and as for the last, great as is the extent of the region over which the snow waters have their influence, and though possibly more may yet be garnered of their generous and perpetually recurring flow, we have already in the Panjáb and in the North-Western Provinces, especially in the latter, appropriated so great a quantity of it, that we fear we are approaching the limits of the supply. This last year we are told that the Ganges Canal was strained to its utmost, and at the tail of its distributaries the cultivators got but a scant supply; thus rendering more doubtful than before, the wisdom of drawing off any further supply for the proposed Eastern Ganges Canal.

"It is in years like the past one that the great advantages of irrigation are so apparent. We have evidence that the undeveloped Sone has already saved harvests, which must otherwise have perished, of more than a million sterling in value, whilst in the recent visitation in Madras the irrigated districts of the Godavery, Tanjore and Trichinopoly have practically paid their land-revenue in full. The Kistna District, where the Irrigation project is not complete, has had remitted some 15 per cent.; but in the unirrigated districts, remissions ranging from 30 to 70 per cent. have prevailed, whilst they have drawn from the irrigated districts food to the value of some £150,000 exported by sea alone.

"I will not now trouble the Council with any observations as to the Embankments or Inundation projects of parts of Bengal, of Burma, or of Sindh. I only allude to them at all as significant of the fact that the Rulers of this country, Native as well as British, have in more ways than one, in the present as in the past, thought out the difficult problems that this struggle against nature has from time to time presented to them.

"So also I will not now say anything of the water-logging of land, of the raising of the spring level, of fever and other alleged evils, which even if I admit as existing at all, I admit only to say that a remedy for them by drainage exists, though its cost, a heavy item with low-lying stiff clay soils, must be added to that of the original works.

"Let me, when mentioning drainage and the necessity for applying the severest examination to irrigation schemes, quote what one of the apostles of irrigation himself says when speaking of promoting indiscriminate and wide-spread irrigation—'We should,' he says, 'make sure that we may not turn the irrigated districts into vast swamps, decimating the inhabitants with fever, and reducing, instead of increasing, the fertility of the soil.'

"And here I may remark that the nature of the soil has been a factor which has been too often wholly ignored not only in schemes projected but since completed.

"I trust it will not for one moment be thought, because I have said what I have, that I am in the most remote degree opposed to, or the enemy of, irrigation; far from it. I believe I am—by the course I have taken in applying to every scheme and estimate that has come before me since I have taken my seat at this Council the closest enquiry and the most minute scrutiny as to the soundness of the one and the accuracy of the other—a truer friend to irrigation than the romantic enthusiasts who can only see that in water there is a cure for every ill, or the orator who, from the vantage ground of his great eloquence, makes easy the task, and would guide us through a maze, of which it is reserved for statesmen yet unborn to find the clue. So in saying this I wish it to be understood that, we do not purpose to neglect in the future irrigation-works which give prospects of being not only beneficial in ordinary years but in years of scarcity. Many projects are now under enquiry of which I hope this may be said, though of some of them the full cost of which would come to some £15,000,000 sterling, I find it already recorded that 'none of them are so urgently needed, in view to the prevention of famine, as to render it essential to extend financially the scale of operations in irrigation-works.'

"I have already alluded to the projected through water communication from Karáchi to Calcutta, estimated to cost £5,000,000. If this line of navigation, passing as it does across the Peninsula through regions flooded by the great waters from the Himalayas, stretching to both seas, traversed by a net-work of rivers, flowing through a natural physical formation—fulfilling in short all the Engineering conditions favourable to inland navigation—offer little or no prospect that, until years have elapsed, its practical influence as a means of communication will be felt, and that as a reproductive work, there is but little hope for any return, how does the problem stand in other parts of Hindústán?

"Here and there, as around this city, local works of this nature, isolated and apart, have been a success, and many other navigation canal projects are likely, in this limited form, to be carried out from time to time; but any connected system of internal navigation seems a remote possibility.

"The irrigation and combined navigation systems of the Godávári and Kistna, projected to open up traffic from the Eastern sea-board to the country of their sources and even to the Western Gháts, and ultimately to debouch at Carwar on the Western Coast, give little prospect or encouragement for us to anticipate from them the great benefits or facilities predicted by their projectors. It is not difficult to understand this when the main link in the chain, that of the Madras Irrigation Company, is closed for six months of the year, because the source of its water-supply is closed to it for that time! Even if this source were a constant one, the extension of the navigation to the Coast is barred by physical difficulties of apparently an insurmountable character. I may be told all this can be remedied by storage tanks. I grant this might be possible, but without counting their cost, or other difficulty of even a more serious nature which, as a financial undertaking, will make the original scheme a still more hopeless affair than now when the returns on the work do not come within a lách per annum of the maintenance and establishment charges irrespective of interest on capital, recent experience tends to show that these aids will in the hour of our direst need fail us.

"Still I do not desire to condemn these schemes altogether, and I hope to see something practical done with them; possibly, a remodelling of the works may ensure better results.

"The East Coast Canal, the most promising project of all, will demand, in order to secure its ultimate success, the solution of difficulties which will try the skill, genius and daring of another Cautley, owing to its having to cross the drainage of the whole Peninsula.

"I fear, then, that as far as our knowledge goes, we cannot look forward to being able at any early period in India's future to see established a connected system of inland navigation. No doubt in districts favouring their construction we shall see navigable canals introduced and extended, but, judging from the past, their use and general adoption must at best be necessarily a matter of slow growth, and in the centre of the Peninsula, where they would be of the utmost service in case of the recurrence of any such famine as we have now passed through, it may be doubted whether any connected line of real utility could be constructed with advantage.

"Accepting the difficulties of the position as thus briefly portrayed, it is evident that the only practical course at the present moment is to recognise the mutual inter-dependence of the different parts of this vast country, and provide the means of distributing the surplus of one part to meet the deficiency of other parts.

"Happily we have not suffered simultaneously throughout India. The surplus produce of one part has been available for transport to other parts, and the enormous export of wheat which has been concurrent with the late calamity has shown that India has been able as a whole to produce more than it could consume.

"I do not lose sight of the fact that the people of Southern India are not a wheat-eating people, but from the experience of the late famine and of that of 1874, it is evident that the calamity must be indeed frightful when India herself and the neighbouring rice-producing countries accessible by sea cannot feed any afflicted part.

"Even if on the whole empire the scourge of famine fell, and the food of its people had to be ocean-borne, how entirely dependent must the country still be on its internal communication!

"The point, then, at which I have arrived is that land communications have been our main stay in the recent famine and must ever be.

"I do not purpose to enter again upon the vexed question of waterways against railways. Even could I bring myself to consider that the former were possible in places where the latter exist, I could not shut my eyes to the facts which are patent to every one.

"We have a system of railways and we can say that they are now paying investments in the matter of direct returns. These railways have taught the people the advantages of rapid locomotion, and the merchant and trader know well, without such teaching the value of the Telegraph and of the Railway in the matter of quick returns. The railway system must continue to expand and will expand till every inhabitant of India is within 50 to 100 miles of a line.

"But there is an argument for Railways which has especial force in a time of famine. A grass famine may be said to be as bad as a grain famine. For if the cattle on which the tilling of the ground is dependent cannot get fodder or even grass, the people are indeed in a bad way. Their only resource is to take time by the forelock, as thousands have done in Upper and Central India in the course of the last few months when scarcity threatened, and, as in the case of a water famine, emigrate to distant tracts in order to save their cattle.

"We have not neglected the extension of Railways in connection with the lessons taught us by the famines of the last few years. The Northern Bengal, the Tirhoot, and the Irrawaddy Valley lines all received an impetus from famine if they do not owe their early existence to it. The recent calamity has precipitated the construction of the Dhond-Manmar line into an almost accomplished fact, and has given a stimulus to at least two other lines in Southern India. Similarly the threatenings of scarcity, now happily almost passed away, which came upon us a few months ago, have given an impetus to the projected lines of Central India and Rájputána.

"The Government has not hesitated, notwithstanding the severe strain upon its resources, to devote during the present year upwards of a million sterling to Railway lines over and above what it had arranged to spend this time last year.

"And whatever views may be held on the subject of Railways, there is this justification for their extension, that since October 1876 they have carried into the heart of the afflicted districts upwards of one and a quarter million tons of food-grains, representing the supply of $7\frac{1}{2}$ millions of people for 12 months at 1lb. per head per diem. But continuous as has been the inward current of food, the work of the Railways has at times been far heavier than would be gathered from the even distribution of the quantity named over the entire period. Thus, in the three months ended December 1876, the Great Indian Peninsula Railway carried into the districts afflicted nearly 27,000 tons monthly, besides the larger proportion of the grain (44,000 tons in the three months), exported by sea to the Southern Mahratta ports of that Presidency.

"In July and August of this year, when the intensity of the famine was at its maximum, that Railway carried almost the same quantity.

"And during those two months the Madras Railways distributed almost 200,000 tons of food.

"The effect of a prompt supply of such a quantity of food can only be estimated by a consideration of the direful effects of its non-supply, and I shall not be accused of exaggeration when I say that the Railways have saved Southern India.

"The work done by a Railway is only partly appreciated, unless the distance over which the goods are transported is considered.

"The rice exported from this port, Calcutta, was not carried over any great length of Railway, but the wheat of Upper India, which was carried in large quantities to Puna and even as far as Bellary, and the grain of the Central Provinces, was carried over hundreds of miles descending and ascending the Western Gháts. The waste of power over the Gháts and the risk attending it have been eliminated for all time by the construction of the Dhond-Manmar line.

"But vital as is the assistance which the Railways have afforded, it must not be left out of sight that this aid was rendered with a concurrent unprecedented export trade, and, consequently, augmented general traffic.

"Thus, in the first half of the current year, on all the Railways of India, there were about $4\frac{1}{2}$ millions of tons of goods lifted against $3\frac{1}{2}$ millions in the corresponding period of 1876.

"The pressure during the past year has been very great, and no doubt more or less loss and inconvenience has followed from this strain on the resources and means; but considering the distances traversed and the consequent impossibility of preventing detention of rolling-stock, the working has, on the whole, been creditable to Railway management in India. "

"In considering the effect upon the English railway system of the construction of the Channel Tunnel, the diversion of rolling-stock to continental railways has been discussed as a matter which would call for very special arrangement. Our English Railway Managers would not, I apprehend, view without misgivings the concentration of a moiety of their wagon-stock at Berlin, Vienna or St. Petersburg; yet the diversion from the lines of Northern India of a couple of thousand wagons was a frequent occurrence during the recent pressure, and on one occasion the number of wagons thus absent was close upon 2,800.

"Perhaps a few words from me here in further explanation of what has been already stated by my Hon'ble Colleague in reference to this Railway traffic and the preference given in September to food destined to the famine-stricken district may not be amiss.

"Very early in February of last year the power of the Great Indian Peninsula and Madras Railways to deal with the increase of traffic thrown upon them arrested our attention, but both Companies then thought that nothing special was needed to facilitate their operation.

"But on the 5th March, I find myself writing, when ordering engines from our State lines in Northern India to be placed on the metals of the Madras Line, that 'the Great Indian Peninsula is now in need of engines to work its own lines,' so rapidly had grown the demands from various causes on the rolling-stock of the lines. This growth of traffic led to many suggestions all pointing to the direct interference and intervention of the State with the management of the lines and the direction of trade. On this I find I again wrote pointing out that more engine power was all that was needed, adding—

"From the north and west the lines in correspondence are working as one system, and their capacity is only limited by their united haulage power, which no new organization or fresh administration can possibly improve; whilst on the contrary the introduction of foreign interference will inevitably tend to irritation and friction; and misunderstanding, confusion and chaos will take the place of hearty co-operation and management which at present exist between the Managers, who are mutually aware of their individual difficulties, and that these arise from physical and material causes requiring only time for their removal.

"At this moment throughout the whole of our railway system, a number of other circumstances, and not the famine alone, has caused a sudden expansion of traffic. All railways are taxed to their utmost, and even on the far Indus Valley, where by the opening for goods traffic of a portion only of the line last January, the Flotilla on the river was released for more concentrated traffic, an unexpectedly large trade has sprung up, and the wheat of Sindh and of the Northern Panjáb is seeking a market not only in the Deccan, but even in Europe itself. All this has to be watched and nurtured, and any rough or rude remedy, dictated by the momentary necessity for removing a block on a line traversing a district of Bombay or Madras, might irreparably throw back the growth of this trade and industry."

"Again—

"I hope I have shewn in this note that no exceptional administrative measures are really needed to meet the present pressure, which I am confident can be satisfactorily overcome without them."

"This I wrote in March of last year.

"To do more than the Railways were already doing could only be effected by two measures—one the doubling of the lines, the other the procuring of additional engines.

"The first was out of the question even if it could have been done in time to be of use in such a crisis; the second, owing to the exceptional gauge adopted in this country, was really almost as impossible as the first, since we have in Europe no reserve from other systems to fall back upon. The only alternatives left then were to contribute stock from the Northern lines, although on them, too, the pressure had fallen, and to give preference to food consigned to Southern India. Still reluctant to press, till forced by inexorable necessity, either of these courses on the Railway administration, it was not till the calamity in Southern India was assuming yet darker features, that with your approval, My Lord, I wrote confidentially to the several Railway Agents on the 27th July a letter which with the permission of the Council I will now read—

“DEAR SIR,—The situation in Southern India appears to be graver now than ever. It is causing the Viceroy to consider with anxious solicitude the means to be adopted in order to mitigate the terrible distress which seems imminent from want of food in Mysore and Madras, and it points to our being forced to take exceptional measures for facilitating the transport of grain into and within those countries.

“This, I fear, will have to be done at the sacrifice of certain trade interests, for in face of such a crisis, preference must be given to food-grain traffic.

“The haulage power and the stock on the Madras, and very possibly on the Great Indian Peninsula line, will have to be increased by contributions from other lines; and Lord Lytton feels assured that he may reckon on the co-operation of other Companies, should such a course be forced upon us.

“I trust that it may not come to this. But I invite your aid and co-operation to help us, and in the meantime I write this to ask you to consider what you can do to regulate and increase famine traffic, so as to give it a special service and preference over all other consignments on your lines, and to see what powerful goods engines (the gradients of both the Madras and Great Indian Peninsula Railways are bad) and covered or high-sided stock you can supply to the Madras line, in order to distribute what is sent from the North or by water. The latest information shows that the Madras Railway must have 16 powerful goods engines and 400 wagons without loss of time.

“I write this therefore to prepare you for what is probable. Please consider this in the meantime as very secret and confidential; but in case the worst comes to the worst, I should like to know beforehand what are your views on the course suggested.”

“I need not dwell upon the correspondence and negotiations that followed the issue of this Circular.

“The Agents of the Northern Railways did as much as was in their power to do, but fortunately it was not necessary to insist on preference on these lines, though the Government of Bombay were compelled at the end of July or beginning of August to urge on the representative of the Great Indian Peninsula to give food consigned to the Famine Districts preference over other goods.

“Hardly had this been done when the correspondents from the Calcutta press in Madras telegraphed to their principals in this city—‘People are asking, should not the Railways now carry food only?’

“I give these facts to shew that this subject was fully considered, and that we did not lightly, nor without very great reluctance, urge on the Companies those exceptional steps—a necessity as imperative, if not more so, than the necessity of war.

“The same distinguished Statesman who has advocated Irrigation as the treatment for famine has asserted that we have abandoned this remedy in favour of Railways, the agents that support our Military policy.

“That in the alignment of these great highways the part they might play in the defence of the empire in time of war was not overlooked by the great Proconsul who first gave them to India, is incontrovertible; but if they have not yet helped to deliver us in time of war, they most certainly have in time of famine, nor have they failed to deliver us from some of the accidents of war. After the tempest of the great mutiny had calmed down, those who were then responsible for the future peace of India, decided that a British force of a certain strength should always be in the land. The extension and part completion of the Railway system has permitted of a reduction in recent years of this force, which at the very least falls not far short of, if it does not exceed, two millions sterling a year. Thus besides having saved India some thirty millions already, it has saved to England a corresponding drain on her people.

“Nor am I, I believe, oversanguine, when I express the idea that, judging from what has been the development of traffic on the essentially Military lines of Northern India, their designers will be agreeably disappointed at finding that as Commercial lines they will not be such a drag on the finances as has been anticipated, whilst of this I am sure that they will be found to be the most powerful pacificator of our troubled frontiers.

"I have purposely avoided making any observations as to what should guide us in our administration, either civil or professional, when famine with all its suite of evils is really in the land; and I can scarcely be anticipating any final conclusion if I express the opinion that in proposing works for the exigencies of famine they must be chiefly of a character suitable for unskilled labour, requiring little skilled supervision, and able to be executed by concentrated gangs whose wages can be paid with the least opportunities for peculation. Far be it from me to say that we should have no work for the artisan or the skilled labourer. This class suffers just as much as, if not more than, the mere cooly or the simple agriculturist. But as the bulk of the labour is ignorant, the bulk of the work must be simple, and as the skilled supervision is limited (unless you divert it, and then you create mischief, from those works which must go on in any case), there exists still stronger reason that the work should be such as earthwork, collecting and breaking stone, a kind of work easy to supervise and to pay for.

"The various classes of works, suitable for relief objects taken in their order are tanks; road, river, and railway embankments; irrigation channels, canals and drainage-works; and I agree with those who think the last three are the last to be undertaken, because if these are not thoroughly well designed, they are the cause of very serious and absolute mischief. I would dwell upon this point, as I cannot too strongly reiterate the intention and, I believe, the instructions of the Supreme Government, that in view to the efficacious working of this policy it is primarily essential to have in reserve and ready the full and clear engineering details of such works, elaborated in quieter times by the professional officer in concert with the local civil authorities.

"To this precaution I attach the highest value, because I wish most distinctly and emphatically to disclaim, both on my own part and that of the Officers of the Public Works Department generally, that we regard famine as the opportunity for advancing our schemes or airing our pet projects. The initiative in these matters should be taken by the Civil Administrators, who are primarily responsible for the good government and material prosperity of the peoples committed to their charge.

"In saying this, however, I do claim for the Public Works Officers of the State that to them should very early in a campaign against famine be entrusted the agencies to fight it, and that operations be not postponed till to scarcity and lack of means are added disease and emaciation among the people, to say nothing of the demoralization inseparable from the pauper's dole, or the existence prolonged only by the relief ration.

"This is the more essential in this country, where it is not from a total absence of food within the country itself that men perish, but from the absence of means of acquiring it. They are deprived for the time of winning their bread by their usual callings, because we have not in this country, from its social relations and the functions Government has taken on itself, men of enterprise or philanthropy as we have in our own Western Home, who see, in the failure of a harvest, or of an industry, openings for giving to the labour thus set free, employment in works of utility, of improvement, or even of luxury.

"In advocating this as the true course to follow, I am conscious of the fact that it means a larger first outlay; but it also means a very considerable decrease in the unproductive expenditure which ordinary famine relief means.

"In what I have said I have rather reviewed the past, and dealt with what has been done already in the way of those material improvements, which may to some extent have counteracted the full effect of failure of harvests, from time to time, in parts of this Great Empire.

"I have dealt with the accomplished facts of the past, and avoided profuse promises as to the future; for I believe the narrative of the past will carry to men's minds the conviction, that those, to whom has been hitherto entrusted the guidance of affairs in this country, have not failed or neglected their duty in these respects; and this will be a sufficient earnest that this path of duty is not now likely to be abandoned."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

ADDITIONAL RATES (NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES) BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR JOHN STRACHEY also moved that the Bill for the levy of Additional Rates on Land in the North-Western Provinces be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Messrs. Stokes, Cockerell and Colvin, the Hon'ble Nawáb Faiz Ali Khán and the Hon'ble Mr. Morgan and the Mover.

The Hon'ble MR. MORGAN said that, when the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Finances made his Statement with reference to the additional taxation which would be necessary, as MR. MORGAN understood him, he stated that it would be necessary to provide about one million sterling for what he called the Famine Fund, and £500,000 as what might be termed a working balance in the finances. The sum which he proposed to levy by the imposition of the taxes, Bills regarding which were now before the Council, was, MR. MORGAN understood, about £800,000. But it was not stated at the time how much was expected to be received from the tax on trades and dealings, and how much from the land-tax. At the time these Bills were brought forward, as he understood the Hon'ble Member to say, it was not intended that they should be passed so early as it was now actually proposed that they should be. But on the suggestion of His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor, the passing into law of the Licensing Bill, which was the only Bill which applied to Bengal, had been accelerated, and, as he believed, very properly so. But of course the arguments of the Lieutenant-Governor with reference to that Bill which concerned new taxation were so cogent that there was no reason for him to raise any objection to its acceleration. But it appeared to him that the same argument did not apply to the levy upon the people of an increased tax upon land in the North-Western Provinces. There, it was well understood what the existing rate was, and therefore the levy of an additional rate of two per cent., which he understood was agreed upon, would be raised without any difficulty at all. It was not a question of the supervision of Revenue-officers, inasmuch as all the data were before them. He would therefore suggest that the consideration of the Bills for the levy of an additional rate upon land might be postponed without any detriment to the raising of the rates in due course. And it appeared to him that this might be done with greater reason, inasmuch as the necessity for the raising of further money by taxation must depend to a large extent on the equilibrium which was to be established in the budget which was not at present before the Council. Of course he made this suggestion with due deference to His Lordship, but he would suggest that the consideration of these Bills should be postponed until the Council was in possession of further details with reference to the budget, and with reference also to the amount which was likely to be raised under the Bill which had already been referred to a Select Committee, in respect to the licensing of trades and dealings in the North-Western Provinces.

The Hon'ble SIR JOHN STRACHEY said—"I do not know whether the Hon'ble Member who has just spoken has quite appreciated all that I intended to say at the beginning of the present sitting of the Council. All I am proposing at the present time is that these Bills should be referred to a Select Committee, not that the Council should take any action upon them in the way of passing them into law. I intended to say that this was all I intended to propose at the present moment, and that after the report of the Select Committee had been presented, the Bills should go in the ordinary course. I should like to say a very few words only with reference to the remarks of the Hon'ble Member regarding the possibility or propriety of postponing the consideration of the Bills affecting the proposed additional taxation upon land, while the Bill for imposing a license-tax, he thought, might be gone on with at once. But I would point out that if we do not proceed with these Bills pari passu, the whole basis of the scheme which I laid before the Council three weeks ago will really be disturbed, for it is an essential part of that scheme that these new taxes should be imposed equally, as far as one can do these things equally, both upon the commercial and agricultural classes.* It will disturb the whole of that scheme if we legislate for the commercial classes only and leave the agricultural classes out. Also, as I pointed out, the necessity for imposing these rates in Northern India is justified on this ground, that we have already imposed this rate in Bengal, and unless we impose similar rates in other parts of India, there is really no justification for the measure already taken in Bengal; and it is desirable that we should apply the same general system, so far as one can do so equitably, in one Province as in another. I quite admit that if there were special reasons, as there are in the case of Madras and Bombay, for not imposing additional rates on land in Northern India, that would be a very good ground for acting differently. But I endeavoured to show the Council that there was certainly nothing in the condition of the agricultural classes in the North-Western Provinces to justify any exceptional treatment. I think that it is quite essential that, if our measures for taxing the commercial classes have to be gone on with, our measures for taxing the agricultural classes must be gone on with at the same time. For if the measure imposing taxation on land should not be accepted, then a reconsideration of the whole subject of the new taxation will in my opinion become imperative and we shall not have provided that insurance against famine which in the opinion of the Government it is necessary to provide.

"I will merely add now, with reference to the other remarks made by the Hon'ble Member and also to those of the hon'ble Mahárájá Jotindrâ Mohán Tagore, that I shall endeavour at some future opportunity to give as full information as may be in my power upon every point to which reference has been made."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

ADDITIONAL RATES (OUDH) BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR JOHN STRACHEY also moved that the Bill for the levy of Additional Rates on Land in Oudh be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Messrs. Stokes, Cockerell and Colvin, the Hon'ble Nawáb Faiz Alí Khán and the Hon'ble Mr. Morgan and the Mover.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

ADDITIONAL RATES (PANJÁB) BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR JOHN STRACHEY also moved that the Bill for the levy of Additional Rates on Land in the Panjáb be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Messrs. Stokes, Cockerell and Colvin, the Hon'ble Nawáb Faiz Alí Khán and the Hon'ble Mr. Morgan and the Mover.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

ADDITIONAL RATES (CENTRAL PROVINCES) BILL.

* The Hon'ble SIR JOHN STRACHEY then moved that the Bill for the levy of Additional Rates on Land in the Central Provinces be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Messrs. Stokes, Cockerell and Colvin, the Hon'ble Nawáb Faiz Alí Khán and the Hon'ble Mr. Morgan and the Mover.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

HUSAINÁBÁD ENDOWMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. STOKES introduced the Bill to make better provision for the management of the Husainábád endowment at Lucknow and moved that it be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Sir E. C. Bayley, the Hon'ble Mr. Colvin, the Hon'ble Nawáb Faiz Alí Khán and the Mover.

He said that this Bill was necessary in order to provide for the due administration of the Husainábád endowment at Lucknow. He had, when moving for leave to introduce the Bill, related the history of that endowment. He had now only to state the manner in which the Bill would provide for the management of the endowment and the settlement of a scheme for the payment of the pensions and the application of the surplus-income.

The Bill first provided for the appointment of trustees, from time to time, by the Local Government, upon the nomination of the pensioners and such of the descendants of the founder of the endowment as might for the time being reside at Lucknow; such trustees would be not less than three in number and not more than five, and the present Superintendent, Muntáz-ud-Daola, would be one of them.

Sections 2 and 3 provided for the appointment of trustees in the place of deceased, retiring or incapable trustees, and for the vesting of the property of the endowment in the trustees for the time being. *

The Bill then committed the management of the endowment entirely to the trustees.

Sections 5, 6 and 7 provided for the transaction of business by the trustees at their meetings; and section 8 authorized the appointment of some person, not of their own body, as paid Secretary to the trustees.

By section 11 the Local Government might call for such accounts and information respecting the endowment as it should think fit.

Section 12 empowered the Secretary of State in Council to sue in the Allahabad High Court for the settlement of a scheme for the endowment, or to compel the restitution of any property belonging to the endowment. An appeal was allowed as in cases decided by that Court in its extraordinary civil jurisdiction, and the plaint in any suit under section 12 was exempted from court-fees.

Lastly, the Bill indemnified all persons for anything done before the passing of the proposed Act, which would have been valid if the appointments of the Superintendents and Agent, after the mutiny, had been valid, and saved such persons from suits or proceedings in respect of such acts.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. STOKES also moved that the Bill be published in the Gazette of India in English, and in the Government Gazette, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, in English and in such other languages as the Local Government thinks fit.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

DISTRESSED SEAMEN'S EXPENSES RECOVERY BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. STOKES asked leave to postpone the presentation of the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to provide for the recovery in British India of wages due to, and expenses incurred in respect of, certain seamen and apprentices.

Leave was granted.

TREASURE-TROVE BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR EDWARD BAYLEY asked leave to postpone the presentation of the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the law relating to Treasure-trove.

Leave was granted.

ASSIMILATION OF POWERS (NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES AND OUDH) BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR EDWARD BAYLEY also moved for leave to introduce a Bill to assimilate certain powers of the Local Governments of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh. He said that this Bill was of a purely technical nature, and was the result of the amalgamation of the Governments of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh. In those Provinces the Lieutenant-Governor and the Chief Commissioner had formerly a different status. Certain powers which had been confided to the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces had in the case of the Chief Commissioner of Oudh been reserved by the Governor General in Council to himself. But as the functions of the two offices were now discharged by the same person, it was manifestly absurd to suppose that he was qualified to exercise the higher powers on the right bank of the Ganges, and disqualified to exercise them on the left bank of the same river, and in practice it was found extremely inconvenient that this distinction should continue. It was therefore proposed to assimilate the powers of the Lieutenant-Governor in Oudh to those which he possessed in the North-Western Provinces.

The Bill would be a short one and would be confined to assimilating certain enactments under which the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces and the Chief Commissioner of Oudh now took powers, and care would be taken that, in assimilating differences which were merely technical between the laws of Oudh and those of the North-Western Provinces, this Bill should not affect any personal rights or privileges, or any peculiar customs, which now existed in Oudh.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Council adjourned to Wednesday, the 23rd January 1878.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATIONS.

Fort William, the 24th January 1878.

No. 3.—The Governor General in Council has been pleased to issue the following amended Rules for the preparation and publication of the Indian Law Reports:—

- I.—A staff of Reporters shall be maintained for such Courts of Law as the Government of India from time to time direct, consisting of one Reporter for each Court and as many Assistant Reporters as the business is found to require.
- II.—The Law Reports shall be published under the authority of the Government of India in the Legislative Department.
- III.—Each Reporter shall have the general supervision and control of his assistants, and shall distribute their work among them.
- IV.—Each Reporter is, from the materials collected by himself and his assistants, to select all the cases he thinks it useful to report, to reduce them into the shape of reports, to prefix a head-note to each report, to have them printed, and to transmit the proof to the Legislative Department.
- V.—No case shall be reported if the Judge or Judges who decided it desire that it should not be reported.
- VI.—If the Court desires that the Reporter shall consult it, or any committee appointed by it, on any case or matter, it shall be his duty to do so.
- VII.—The Government of India in the Legislative Department will authorize the publication of such cases as are finally determined on.

VIII.—If the Court or the Chief Justice desires that any case decided by the Court or any division or Judge thereof shall be reported, and signifies such desire to the Reporter, such case shall be reported and published.

IX.—Arrangements shall be made for the separate local publication of reports relating to local laws when such local publication may be deemed advisable.

X.—In framing reports regard shall be had to the following general rules and principles :—

- (a). Every report ought to contain a statement of all facts necessary for a due understanding of the decision.
- (b). Reports ought not to state any facts which are clearly unnecessary for a due understanding of the decision.
- (c). In judging whether to insert or to omit a statement of facts, it is better to err on the side of overstatement than of understatement.
- (d). It is not meant that the Reporter must state the facts over again if there is a clear, full and consecutive statement of them in the judgment.
- (e). As a general rule, cases for which a full statement of facts cannot be obtained are not to be reported.
- (f). As a general rule, every report ought to contain a statement of the arguments of counsel, sufficient to show what points were pressed upon the Court.
- (g). The Reporter should note any material bearing which the decision may have on other decisions or on any principle of law, and which is not otherwise apparent on the face of the report.
- (h). Every report ought to contain a full copy or account of the judgment delivered by the Court and by each Judge thereof, or of so much of the judgment as bears on the point for which the case is reported.
- (i). As a general rule, cases turning upon evidence or inferences of fact, cases relating to the construction of private documents, and, generally, cases which do not illustrate some principle of law or some important bearing of an enactment in a way not covered by previous decisions, ought not to be reported.
- (j). In selecting cases for report, the Reporters are to be guided by the weight and importance of the decision, and the existence of materials for a satisfactory report, and are not to abstain from reporting a case merely because they may think the decision to be erroneous, or to be in conflict with other decisions.

The 25th January 1878.

No. 4.—The Governor General in Council has been pleased to accept the resignation by Mr. W. E. Hart of the office of Reporter for the Indian Law Reports in the High Court, Bombay.

No. 5.—The Governor General in Council has been pleased to appoint Mr. H. C. Kirkpatrick, Barrister-at-law, to be Reporter for the Indian Law Reports in the High Court, Bombay.

No. 2 of 1878.—The following Notice to Mariners is published for general information:—

NOTICE TO MARINERS.

BAY OF BENGAL, COAST OF BURMA.

Position of Krishna Shoal Light Vessel.

With reference to notice to Mariners No. 21 of 1877, notice is hereby given that the Star light-vessel which was reported by the Marine Authorities in Rangoon to be placed four miles eastward of the position of the recently destroyed Krishna light-house, is reported to be from three to five miles in error on the Charts and Notices lately issued.

This LIGHT-VESSEL, according to reliable information just received in this Department, appears to be anchored in about 9 fathoms and at least 8 miles on an E. N. E. bearing from the site of the old light-house.

CAUTION.—Navigators are therefore warned to be careful when rounding the Krishna Shoal.

[The bearings are magnetic: variation 2° 45' Easterly in 1878.]

Port William, the 25th January 1878.

No. 5J.—The following extract from the London Gazette, dated Friday, the 14th December 1877, is published for general information:—

At the Court at Windsor, the 12th day of December 1877.

PRESENT:

The QUEEN'S Most Excellent Majesty.

Lord President.

Lord Privy Seal.

Earl of Derby.

Mr. Secretary Cross.

Mr. Thesiger.

Whereas by Section 18 of "The Extradition Act, 1870," it is among other things enacted that if by any law made after the passing of the said Act by the Legislature of any British Possession, provision is made for carrying into effect within such Possession the surrender of fugitive criminals who are in or suspected of being in such British Possession, Her Majesty may, by the Order in Council applying the said Act in the case of any Foreign State, or by any subsequent Order, either—

Suspend the operation within any such British Possession of the said Act, or of any part thereof, so far as it relates to such Foreign State, and so long as such law continues in force there and no longer;—

Or direct that such Law or Ordinance, or any part thereof, shall have effect in such British Possession, with or without modifications and alterations, as if it were part of the Act:

And whereas by an Act enacted by the Legislature of South Australia, the short title of which is "The Extradition Act, 1877," it is provided that "all powers vested in and acts authorized or required to be done by a Police Magistrate or any Justice of the Peace in relation to the Surrender of Fugitive Criminals in the United Kingdom under 'The Extradition Acts, 1870 and 1873,' are thereby vested in and may in the Colony be exercised and done by any Justice of the Peace in relation to the Surrender of Fugitive Criminals under the said Acts."

And whereas it is further provided by the said Act that the said Act shall not come into operation until Her Majesty shall by order in Council direct that the said Act shall have effect within the Colony as if it were part of "The Extradition Act, 1870," but that the said Act shall thereafter come into operation as soon as such Order in Council shall have been publicly made known in the Colony.

Now, therefore, Her Majesty, in pursuance of "The Extradition Act, 1870," and in exercise of the power in that behalf in the said Act contained, doth by this present Order, by and with the advice of Her Majesty's Privy Council, direct that the said Act shall have effect in the Colony of South Australia, without modification or alteration, as if it were part of "The Extradition Act, 1870."

And the Right Honourable the Earl of Carnarvon, one of Her Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, is to give the necessary directions herein accordingly.

C. L. PEEL.

Notifications by High Court, Comptroller General, &c.

HIGH COURT—Original Side.

NOTIFICATIONS.

Calcutta, the 25th January 1878.

The following Rules, passed by the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal on its Original Side, are now published.

By order,
R. BELCHAMBERS,
Registrar.

It is ordered that the following Rules be read and passed as Rules of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, in its Original Jurisdiction to take effect from the 1st day of February 1878:—

1. When any property is ordered to be sold by public auction in execution of a decree or order of the High Court, on its Original Side, the ascertainment of the matters required by Section 287 of the Civil Procedure Code to be specified in the proclamation issuing under that Section shall be deemed to be a quasi-judicial act within the meaning of the 637th Section of the Code, and the same shall be done by the Registrar of the Court or such other Officer as shall be named in the order of sale, and the Registrar or such other Officer, at the case may be, shall for that purpose have power to summon any person whom he may think necessary, and examine him in respect of any such matter, and require him to produce any document in his possession or power relating thereto.
2. Every order for sale shall direct a proclamation to be made under the provisions of Section 287 of the Code of Civil Procedure.
3. Unless otherwise ordered by the Court or a Judge, every proclamation of an intended sale shall be settled and approved by the Registrar or such other Officer as may be named in the order for sale.

4. When immoveable property is under attachment in execution, the party at whose instance the same may be attached shall, before applying for an order for the sale of such property, cause search to be made in the Office of the Registrar of Deeds with the object of ascertaining whether such property is subject to any and what incumbrances.
5. Every application for an order for the sale of property in execution, whether moveable or immoveable, shall be supported by an affidavit stating all that is known to the party at whose instance the same has been attached respecting the title to such property, and also, whenever the application is for the sale of immoveable property, stating the result of the search made with respect thereto pursuant to the last preceding Rule.

GAUHATI, }
The 15th January 1878.

NOTICE

Is hereby given that the Government building for Ice-machine together with the Bungalow and Out-offices, erected for the use of the Engineer in charge of the Machinery and of a Non-Commissioned Officer, with a large compound and Ice-machinery capable of turning out (40) forty maunds of Ice in (24) twenty-four hours, turning lathe, well and pump, and numerous other items, all in working order, will be sold by public auction on the 4th February 1878, at an upset price of Rs. 10,000 for Ice-machine with its apparatus, and Rs. 20,000 for the Buildings and Out-offices.

The sale will take place at Executive Engineer's Office, Military Works Division, Lucknow Cantonment, at 2 P.M., and the purchaser will be required to pay 5 per cent. on the fall of the hammer, and the balance before taking possession of the above property.

The purchaser will have all the property at his risk after the sale is completed.

In case of failure in paying up the balance, the above property will be re-sold, and the loss thereby sustained will be recovered from the purchaser, who will have no claim to the increased sum if obtained by this re-sale.

The buildings are situated on the south side of the Railway line running to Benares, near the General's Bungalow and the Railway Over-bridge.

The purchaser will hold the land on the conditions specified in paragraph 1984 of the Bengal Military Regulations. He will likewise have to comply with all the rules now in force or that may hereafter be introduced in Cantonments.

On completion of the sale, the purchaser will be required to sign a declaration to this effect in the presence of the Cantonment Magistrate.

Some ether expected to arrive shortly from England for use with the Machine will also be offered for sale at the same time and place on conditions to be stated at time of sale.

THE INDIAN LAW REPORTS.

PUBLISHED UNDER AUTHORITY.

The "Indian Law Reports," published under the authority of the Governor General in Council, will appear in monthly parts, published as soon as possible after the first of each month at Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, and Allahabad, and will comprise four series,—one for the Calcutta High Court, a second for the Madras High Court, a third for the Bombay High Court, and a fourth for the Allahabad High Court. The cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from each High Court will be reported in the Series for that High Court. Cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from Provinces in India not subject to any High Court will be reported in the Calcutta Series. The Parts of each Series can be had separately, or all four Parts can be had stitched into one wrapper at the option of subscribers and purchasers. It will be observed from the following statement of the terms of subscription and sale, that a considerable reduction is allowed to persons taking the complete set :

Terms of subscription, payable annually in advance.

SCHEDULE.

An Act to amend the law relating to Opium.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the law relating to opium; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Preamble.

1. This Act may be called "The Opium Act, 1878":
Short title.

It shall extend to such local areas as the Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, from time to time direct ;

And it shall come into force in each of such areas on such day as the Governor General in Council in like manner directs in this behalf.

2. The enactments mentioned in the schedule hereto annexed shall be repealed to the extent specified in the third column of the said schedule.

And in Acts No. XI of 1849, No. XXI of 1856 and No. X of 1871, and in Bengal Act No. II of 1876, the words "intoxicating drugs" (wherever they occur) shall not include opium.

The reference made to Bombay Regulations XXI of 1827 and XX of 1830 in Act No. VII of 1836 shall be read as if made to the corresponding sections of this Act.

3. In this Act, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context—

"Opium" includes also poppy-heads, preparations or admixtures of opium, and intoxicating drugs prepared from the poppy :

"Magistrate" means, in the Presidency-towns, a Presidency Magistrate, and elsewhere a Magistrate of the first class or (when specially empowered by the Local Government to try cases under this Act) a Magistrate of the second class :

"Import" means to bring into the territories administered by any Local Government from sea, or from foreign territory, or from a territory administered by any other Local Government :

"Export" means to take out of the territories administered by any Local Government to sea, or to any foreign territory, or to any territory administered by another Local Government :

"Transport" means to remove from one place to another within the territories administered by the same Local Government.

4. Except as permitted by this Act, or by any other enactment relating to opium for the time being in force, or by rules framed under this Act or under any such enactment, no one shall—

- (a) cultivate the poppy ;
- (b) manufacture opium ;
- (c) possess opium ;
- (d) transport opium ;
- (e) import or export opium ; or
- (f) sell opium.

5. The Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may from time to time by notification in the local Gazette, make rules consistent with this Act, to permit absolutely or subject to the payment of duty or to any other conditions and to regulate within the whole or any specified part of the territories administered by such Government, all or any of the following matters :—

- (a) the cultivation of the poppy ;
- (b) the manufacture of opium ;
- (c) the possession of opium ;
- (d) the transport of opium ;
- (e) the importation or exportation of opium ; and
- (f) the sale of opium, and the farm of duties leviable on the sale of opium by retail :

Provided that no duty shall be levied under any such rule on any opium imported and on which a duty is imposed by or under the law relating to sea customs for the time being in force or under section six.

6. The Governor General in Council may from time to time, by notification in the Gazette of India, impose such duty as he thinks fit on opium or on any kind of opium imported by land into British India or into any specified part thereof, and may alter or abolish any duty so imposed.

7. The Governor General in Council may, by order notified in the Gazette of India,

(a) authorize any Local Government to establish warehouses for opium legally imported into, or intended to be exported from, the territories administered by such Local Government, and

(b) cancel any such order.

So long as such order remains in force, the Local Government may, by notification published in the official Gazette,

(c) declare any place to be a warehouse for all or any opium legally imported, whether before or after the payment of any duty leviable thereon, into the territories administered by such Government, or into any specified part thereof, or intended to be exported thence, and

(d) cancel any such declaration.

An order under clause (b) shall cancel all previous declarations under clause (c) of this section relating to places in the territories to which such order refers.

So long as such declaration remains in force, the owner of all such opium shall be bound to deposit it in such warehouse.

8. The Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may, from time to time by notification in the local Gazette, make rules consistent with this Act to regulate the safe custody of opium warehoused under section seven; the levy of fees for such warehousing; the removal of such opium for sale or exportation; and the manner in which it shall be disposed of, if any duty or fees leviable on it be not paid within twelve months from the date of warehousing the same.

9. Any person who, in contravention of this Act, or of rules made and notified under section five or section eight,

Penalty for illegal cultivation of poppy, &c.

- (a) cultivates the poppy, or
- (b) manufactures opium, or
- (c) possesses opium, or
- (d) transports opium, or
- (e) imports or exports opium, or
- (f) sells opium, or
- (g) omits to warehouse opium or removes or does any act in respect of warehoused opium,

and any person who otherwise contravenes any such rule, shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be punished for each such offence with imprisonment for a term which may extend to one year, or with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, or with both;

and, where a fine is imposed, the convicting Magistrate shall direct the offender to be imprisoned in default of payment of the fine for a term which may extend to six months, and such imprisonment shall be in excess of any other imprisonment to which he may have been sentenced.

10. In prosecutions under section nine, it shall be presumed, until the contrary is proved, that all opium for which the accused person is unable to account satisfactorily is opium in respect of which he has committed an offence under this Act.

Presumption in prosecutions under section nine.

11. In any case in which an offence under section nine has been committed—

Confiscation of opium.

- (a) the poppy so cultivated;
- (b) the opium in respect of which any offence under the same section has been committed;
- (c) where, in the case of an offence under clause (d) or (e) of the same section, the offender is transporting, importing or exporting any opium exceeding the quantity (if any) which he is permitted to transport, import or export, as the case may be, the whole of the opium which he is transporting, importing or exporting;
- (d) where, in the case of an offence under clause (f) of the same section, the offender has in his possession any opium other than the opium in respect of which the offence has been committed, the whole of such other opium,

shall be liable to confiscation.

The vessels, packages and coverings in which any opium liable to confiscation under this section is found, and the other contents (if any) of the vessel or package in which such opium may be concealed, and the animals and conveyances used in carrying it, shall likewise be liable to confiscation.

12. When the offender is convicted, or when the person charged with an offence in respect of any opium is acquitted, but the Magistrate decides that the opium is liable to confiscation, such confiscation may be ordered by the Magistrate.

Whenever confiscation is authorized by this Act, the officer ordering it may give the owner of the thing liable to be confiscated an option to pay, in lieu of confiscation, such fine as the officer thinks fit.

When an offence against this Act has been committed, but the offender is not known or cannot be found, or when opium not in the possession of any person cannot be satisfactorily accounted for, the case shall be enquired into and determined by the Collector of the District or Deputy Commissioner, or by any other officer authorized by the Local Government in this behalf, either personally or in right of his office, who may order such confiscation: Provided that no such order shall be made until the expiration of one month from the date of seizing the things intended to be confiscated or without hearing the persons (if any) claiming any right thereto and the evidence (if any) which they produce in support of their claims.

13. The Local Government may, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, from time to time, by notification in the local Gazette, make rules consistent with this Act to regulate—

Power to make rules, regarding disposal of things confiscated

(a) the disposal of all things confiscated under this Act; and

(b) the rewards to be paid to officers and informers out of the proceeds of fines and confiscations under this Act.

14. Any officer of any of the departments of Excise, Police, Customs, Salt, Opium or Revenue, superior in rank to a peon or constable, who may in right of his office be authorized by the Local Government in this behalf, and who has reason to believe, from personal knowledge or from information given by any person and taken down in writing; that opium liable to confiscation under this Act is manufactured, kept or concealed in any building, vessel or enclosed place, may, between sunrise and sunset,

- (a) enter into any such building, vessel or place;
- (b) in case of resistance, break open any door and remove any other obstacle to such entry;

(c) seize such opium and all materials used in the manufacture thereof, and any other thing which he has reason to believe to be liable to confiscation under section eleven or any other law for the time being in force relating to opium, and

(d) detain and search, and if he think proper arrest, any person whom he has reason to believe to be guilty of any offence relating to such opium under this or any other law for the time being in force.

Power to seize opium in open places.

15. Any officer of any of the said departments may

(a) seize, in any open place or in transit, any opium or other thing which he has reason to believe to be liable to confiscation under section eleven or any other law for the time being in force relating to opium,

(b) detain and search any person whom he has reason to believe to be guilty of any offence against this or any other such law, and, if such person has opium in his possession, arrest him and any other persons in his company.

16. All searches under section fourteen or section fifteen shall be made in accordance with the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

17. The officers of the several departments mentioned in section fourteen shall, upon notice given or request made, be legally bound to assist each other in carrying out the provisions of this Act.

18. Any officer of any of the said departments who, without reasonable ground of suspicion, enters or searches, or causes to be entered or searched, any building, vessel or place, or vexatiously and unnecessarily seizes the property of any person on the pretence of seizing or searching for any opium or other thing liable to confiscation under this Act, or vexatiously and unnecessarily detains, searches or arrests any person, shall for every such offence be punished with fine not exceeding five hundred rupees.

19. The Collector of the District, Deputy Commissioner or other officer authorized by the Local Government in this behalf, either personally or in right of his office, or a Magistrate, may issue his warrant for the arrest of any person whom he has reason to believe to have committed an offence relating to opium, or for the search, whether by day or night, of any building or vessel or place in which he has reason to believe opium liable to confiscation to be kept or concealed.

All warrants issued under this section shall be executed in accordance with the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

20. Every person arrested, and thing seized, under section fourteen or section fifteen, shall be forwarded without delay to the officer in charge of the nearest Police-station; and every person arrested and thing seized under section nineteen shall be forwarded without delay to the officer by whom the warrant was issued.

Every officer to whom any person or thing is forwarded under this section shall, with all convenient despatch, take such measures as may be necessary for the disposal according to law of such person or thing.

21. Whenever any officer makes any arrest or seizure under this Act, he shall within forty-eight hours next after such arrest or seizure make a full report of all the particulars of such arrest or seizure to his immediate official superior.

22. In the case of alleged illegal cultivation of the poppy, the crop shall not be removed, but shall, pending the disposal of the case, be attached by an officer superior in rank to a peon or constable, who may in right of his office be authorized by the Local Government in this behalf; and such officer shall require the cultivator to give bail in a reasonable amount (to be fixed by such officer) for his appearance before the Magistrate by whom the case is to be disposed of, and such cultivator shall not be arrested unless within a reasonable time he fails to give such bail:

Provided that, wherever Act No. XIII of 1857 (An Act to consolidate and amend the law relating to the cultivation of the Poppy and the manufacture of Opium in the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal), or any part thereof, is in force, nothing in this section shall apply to such cultivation.

23. Any arrear of any fee or duty imposed under this Act or any rule made hereunder, and any arrear due from any farmer of opium-revenue,

may be recovered from the person primarily liable to pay the same to the Government or from his surety (if any) as if it were an arrear of land-revenue.

24. When any amount is due to a farmer of opium-revenue from his licensee, in respect of a license, such farmer may make an application to the Collector of the District, Deputy Commissioner or other officer authorized by the Local Government in this behalf, praying such officer to recover such amount on behalf of the applicant; and on receiving such application, such Collector, Deputy Commissioner or other officer may in his discretion recover such amount as if it were an arrear of land-revenue and shall pay any amount so recovered to the applicant:

Provided that the execution of any process issued by such Collector, Deputy Collector or other officer for the recovery of such amount, shall be stayed if the licensee institutes a suit in the Civil Court to try the demand of the farmer and furnishes security to the satisfaction of such officer for the payment of the amount which such Court may adjudge to be due from him to such farmer:

Provided also that nothing contained in this section or done thereunder shall affect the right of any farmer of opium-revenue to recover by suit in the Civil Court or otherwise any amount due to him from such licensee.

25. When any person in compliance with any rule made hereunder gives a bond for the performance of any duty or act, such duty or act shall be deemed to be a public duty or an act in which the public are interested, as the case may be, within the meaning of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, section 74, and upon breach of the condition of such bond by him, the whole sum named therein as the amount to be paid in case of such breach may be recovered from him as if it were an arrear of land-revenue.

Bills introduced into the Council of the Governor General for making
Laws and Regulations, or published under Rule 22.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Second Publication.]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 16th January 1878, and was referred to a Select Committee:—

No. 1 OF 1878.

A Bill to make better provision for the management of the Husainábád endowment at Lucknow.

WHEREAS in the year 1839 the third King of Oudh Muhammad Ali Shah, built at Lucknow a Mosque called Husainábád Mubárak for the purpose of the celebration therein of certain religious ceremonies and for the ultimate interment of himself and his mother;

And whereas, on or about the twenty-third day of November 1839, the said Muhammad Ali Shah deposited the sum of twelve lákhs of Lucknow sicca rupees in the treasury of the late East India Company at the Residency at Lucknow;

And whereas by a deed of gift dated the fifteenth of the month of Ramazán in the year 1255 of the Hijra, corresponding with the said twenty-third day of November 1839, the said Muhammad Ali Shah declared that the annual interest on the said sum of twelve lákhs of rupees at the rate of four per centum per annum, together with the rent of certain shops therein referred to and the income of certain religious offerings, should be applied to the payment of the pensions of certain persons therein mentioned and their descendants (hereinafter called the pensioners) and to defraying the expenses of the said Mosque and the repairs of a road therein mentioned; and by the same deed the said Muhammad Ali Shah appointed two of his servants named Rafik-ud-Daulah Sayyid Imám Ali Khán Bahádúr and Azimulláh Khán Bahádúr, and after them their descendants, generation after generation, to be Superintendents (mulawalla) of the said Mosque, and Sharfu-d-Daulah Muzaffar-ul-Mulk Muhammad Ibráhím Khán Bahádúr Mustakím Jang, and his descendants after him to be Agent of the said pensioners only, and the expenses of the said Mosque were to be paid in perpetuity from the said treasury to the said two Superintendents and their descendants after them, and the said pensions were to be paid through the said Agent; and the said deed further provided that, in the event of failure of heirs of the said Superintendents or Agent, the British Resident for the time being at Lucknow should, with the concurrence of three-fourths of the said pensioners, appoint one of their number to the vacant post. And the deed now in recital also contained the following provisions:—

“As the pensioners enumerated in this deed are objects of our peculiar consideration and favour, it is necessary that the Resident for the time being, owing to the union and friendship subsisting between the two Governments, treat them with kindness, and considering them deserving of the support of the British Government, always afford them his aid and assistance.

“The undermentioned items of income are hereby remitted and shall be devoted to the expenses of the Husainábád Mubárak and its dependencies, and all the property in it is given by us as a gift. It shall not be optional with the sovereigns of Oudh, at any time, on any account whatsoever, to interfere in any way with it, and let the Resident for the time being, at the request of the mut’walis, or superintendents, in this particular matter, give his countenance and support that this good work may continue in existence for ever;”

And whereas the items of income so referred to were the rents of certain shops attached to the said Mosque and the income from religious offerings thereto ;

And whereas on the fifth day of December 1839, Colonel Caulfield, the British Resident at Lucknow, addressed a letter to the said Muhammad Ali Shah in which he acknowledged the receipt of the said deed of gift, and stated that His Majesty might rest satisfied that every attention would be paid by the Resident to the wishes therein expressed, that his relatives would ever meet with the utmost attention, and that their interests would always be attended to by the Resident so far as his official duty permitted ;

And whereas some time after the said twenty-third day of November 1839, the said Muhammad Ali Shah added to the endowment so created Government promissory notes amounting to the sum of two millions four hundred and seventeen thousand five hundred sicca rupees, but he did not expressly declare any trusts of such further endowment ;

And whereas the said notes are believed to have been in September 1841, converted into Government promissory notes for Company's rupees, and to have been then endorsed in favour of the said Superintendents and the Agent ;

And whereas at some time between the same date and the month of February 1856, certain surplus-funds of the said endowment were invested in Government promissory notes, some in the names of the said Superintendents and Agent, and some in the names of the said Superintendents only ;

And whereas, after the mutiny of 1857 and the re-occupation of Lucknow, the said Mosque was found to have been stripped of all its valuable property and the promissory notes of which the said endowment then consisted were missing, and it appeared on enquiry that the said Agent had joined the mutineers and been killed during an attack on the said city, and that the said Superintendents had sold certain of the same promissory notes ;

And whereas the Government of India thereupon removed the existing Superintendents from their office, and called upon the existing pensioners to appoint under the hereinbefore-recited provisions of the fourth article of the said deed of trust two other Superintendents and an Agent ;

And whereas the Nawábs Muhsinu-d-Daulah and Mumtázu-d-Daulah were accordingly appointed Superintendents and Shahámat-ulláh Khán was appointed Agent, and such appointments were confirmed by the then Chief Commissioner of Oudh in the year 1860 ;

And whereas in the meanwhile most of the promissory notes so missing as aforesaid were recovered and of some of the others duplicates were granted by Government ;

And whereas the Superintendents and Agent appointed as last aforesaid, subsequently obtained from the Civil Court at Lucknow a declaration of their title to the arrears of interest which had accrued due on the promissory notes then constituting the said endowment ;

And whereas in the month of June 1864, the said promissory notes and arrears were assigned to the said Superintendents and Agents free from all restrictions ;

And whereas the said Nawáb Muhsinu-d-Daulah has recently died, but the said deed of trust confers no power to appoint any other person to be a Superintendent in his stead ;

And whereas it is doubtful whether the aforesaid appointment of Superintendents and Agent was a regular and valid appointment, and whether there exists any person who can exercise the power of appointment conferred on the Resident by the said deed of gift ;

And whereas, owing to the changes which have happened since the death of the said Muhammad Ali Shah, it is expedient to provide for the management of the said endowment in manner hereinafter appearing ;

And whereas it is also desirable to empower the High Court of Judicature at Allahabad to settle a scheme for the payment of the pensions referred to in the said trust-deed, and for the application of the surplus-income of the said endowment in defraying the expenses of the trust and in support of the Mosque, road and other objects contemplated by the said Muhammad Ali Shah ;

And whereas it is also expedient to indemnify all persons for anything done before the passing of this Act, which might lawfully have been done if the said appointments of the said Nawábs and Shahámat-ulláh Khán had been valid ;

It is hereby enacted as follows :—

1. The said pensioners and such of the descendants of the said Muhammad Ali Shah as may for the time being reside at Lucknow may from time to time nominate so many persons as they or a majority of them think fit to be trustees of the said endowment ; and the Local Government may from time to time appoint from amongst the persons so nominated such persons, as it thinks fit, to be such trustees ; provided that the said Nawáb Mumtázu-d-Daulah shall be one of the said persons to be first nominated and appointed as aforesaid, and that the number of the said trustees shall be not less than three and not more than five, as the Local Government may from time to time direct.

2. If any of the said trustees dies, or is desirous of being discharged, or refuses or becomes incapable to act, then and so often the Local Government may appoint any other person to be a trustee in the stead of the trustee so dying or desiring to be discharged, or refusing or becoming incapable to act.

When any of the said trustees is guilty of any misconduct which in the opinion of the Local Government disqualifies him to be a trustee, the Local Government may with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council appoint any other person to be a trustee in his stead.

3. After the first appointment of trustees under this Act, the whole property of the endowment shall always be vested in the whole body of trustees for the time being.

4. The trustees shall have the entire management of the property and affairs of the endowment, and shall be responsible for the due conduct of such affairs.

5. The trustees shall elect one of their own body to be their Chairman and to convene and preside at their meetings. If at any such meeting he is not present within an hour from the time appointed for holding the meeting, the trustees present shall choose one of themselves to preside for that occasion.

6. Every trustee shall have one vote, and no more. All questions arising at meetings of the trustees shall be decided according to the votes of the majority of those present; and if their numbers are equally divided, the Chairman shall have a second or casting vote.

7. Business may be transacted at any meeting at which more than half the existing number of trustees is present, if such meeting has been regularly convened.

If within an hour from the time appointed for the meeting, a quorum is not present, the meeting shall stand adjourned to the same day in the next week, and if at such adjourned meeting a quorum is not present, it shall be adjourned sine die.

8. With the previous sanction of the Local Government the trustees may from time to time appoint some person, not being one of their own body, to act as their Secretary, to keep their accounts, conduct their correspondence and perform other ministerial duties; and may pay him such suitable salary as they may fix and may suspend or dismiss any person so appointed.

9. The appointment of trustees under this Act shall be effected by a notification in the local official Gazette, and the appointee shall become a trustee on the date fixed in the notification, or if no date is fixed, from the day after its appearance in such Gazette.

10. The validity of any such appointment so notified shall not be questioned in any Court of justice.

11. The Local Government may from time to time call for such accounts and other information respecting the said endowment as it thinks fit; and any person disobeying such requisition, or furnishing false information respecting such endowment, shall be deemed to have committed an offence under section 175, section 176 or section 177 (as the case may be) of the Indian Penal Code.

12. The Secretary of State for India in Council may, from time to time, institute a suit or suits in the High Court of Judicature at Allahabad for the settlement of a scheme consistent with this Act for the said endowment:

for the modification of such scheme:

or for the purpose of compelling the restitution of any property belonging to the said endowment.

The procedure in any such suit shall be governed by the rules for the time being in force in the said High Court in the exercise of its extraordinary original civil jurisdiction, and the decree in such suit shall have the same effect and be executed in the same manner as if the property comprised therein were situate within the local limits of such jurisdiction.

Decree.

An appeal shall lie from any decree made under this section, subject to the rules for the time being in force as to appeals from decrees made by a Judge of the said High Court in the exercise of extraordinary original civil jurisdiction.

Appeal.

13. The plaintiff in such suit and the memorandum of appeal (if any) shall not be chargeable with any Court-fee.

Exemption from Court-fees.

14. All officers and other persons are hereby indemnified for anything done before the passing of this Act, which might lawfully have been done if the hereinbefore-recited appointments of the said Nawáhs and Shahámat-ulláh Khán had been valid; and no suit or other proceeding shall be maintained against any such officer or other person in respect of anything so done.

Indemnity clause.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

This Bill has become necessary in order to provide for the due administration of the Husainábád endowment at Lucknow. The preamble recites in detail the history of that endowment. It was originally created by Muhammad Ali Shah, third King of Oudh, on or about the 23rd November 1839, on which date the King deposited twelve lakhs of Lucknow sicca rupees in the treasury of the Lucknow Residency, and by deed of the same date declared the trusts upon which that sum was deposited. Those trusts were that the annual interest, together with the rent of certain shops referred to in the deed and the income of certain religious offerings, should be applied (1) to the payment of certain pensions to persons mentioned in the deed and their descendants; (2) to defraying the expenses of a Mosque called Husainábád Mubárák, and (3) to the repair of a road mentioned in the deed. The deed appointed certain servants of the King, and their descendants in perpetuity, to be Superintendents (mutawallís) of the Mosque and Agent of the pensioners respectively, the management of the Mosque and road and of the pensions being kept distinct. In case of failure of descendants of these persons, the Resident at Lucknow, with the concurrence of three-fourths of the pensioners, was empowered to appoint one of their number to the vacant office.

The Resident at Lucknow accepted the charge committed to him by the King; and the King afterwards increased the endowment by Government promissory notes amounting to sicca rupees 24,17,500, but without declaring any fresh trusts. The preamble then traces the fund so created, which was lost during the mutiny of 1857, but most of it was afterwards recovered. The Agent had also joined the mutineers and had been killed; and after the mutiny fresh Superintendents and a new Agent were appointed by the pensioners, and these persons obtained possession of the fund in June 1864. One of the Superintendents has, however, since become incapable of acting, and it has therefore become necessary to provide for the appointment of a new Superintendent. But doubts have arisen as to the power to appoint, and as to the validity of the appointment made after the mutiny. The Bill provides for this matter, as well as for the settlement of a scheme by the High Court of Allahabad, the provisions of the deed being very vague; and for indemnifying persons for acts done by virtue of the appointments abovementioned.

Section 1 provides for the appointment of trustees, from time to time, by the Local Government upon the nomination of the pensioners and such of the descendants of Muhammad Ali Shah as may for the time being reside at Lucknow; such trustees to be not less than three in number and not more than five, of whom the present Superintendent, Mumtāzu-d-Daulah, is to be one.

Sections 2 and 3 provide for the appointment of trustees in the place of deceased, retiring or incapable trustees, and for the vesting of the property of the endowment in the trustees for the time being.

Section 4 commits the management of the endowment entirely to the trustees.

Sections 5, 6 and 7 provide for the transaction of business by the trustees at their meetings; and section 8 authorizes the appointment of some person, not of their own body, as paid Secretary to the trustees.

By section 11 the Local Government may call for such accounts and information respecting the endowment as it thinks fit.

Section 12 empowers the Secretary of State in Council to sue in the Allahabad High Court for the settlement of a scheme for the endowment, or to compel the restitution of any property belonging to the endowment. An appeal is allowed as in cases decided by that Court in its extraordinary civil jurisdiction, and the plaintiff in any suit under section 12 is (section 13) exempted from Court-fees.

Section 14 indemnifies all persons for anything done before the passing of the proposed Act which would have been valid if the appointments abovementioned had been valid, and saves such persons from suits or proceedings in respect of such acts.

CALCUTTA, } WHITLEY STOKES.
The 16th January 1878. }

D. FITZPATRICK,
Secy. to the Govt. of India.

The following Bill was referred to a Select Committee of the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 16th January 1878:—

No. 23 OF 1877.

A Bill for the licensing of trades and dealings in the Panjáb, the North-Western Provinces and Oudh

WHEREAS, in order to provide means for defraying the public expenditure from time to time incurred and to be incurred for the relief and prevention of famine in British India, it is necessary to effect a permanent increase of the revenue available for provincial purposes; and it is therefore, expedient that persons carrying on trades and dealings in the territories and provinces respectively administered by the Lieutenant-Governor of the Panjáb, the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces and the Chief Commissioner of Oudh, should take out licenses and pay for the same; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. This Act may be called "The Northern India License Act, 1878."

Short title.

It extends to the territories under the administration of the Lieutenant-Governor of the Panjáb, the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces and the Chief Commissioner of Oudh, respectively; but nothing herein contained applies to persons earning their livelihood solely by agriculture.

Local extent.

This Act shall come into force in any of the said territories on such date as the Governor General in Council by notification in the Gazette of India directs in that behalf.

Commencement.

2. When this Act comes into force in the territories under the administration of the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces, Act No. VIII of 1877 (for the licensing of certain trades and dealings in the North-Western Provinces) shall be repealed.

Repeal of Act VIII of 1877.

3. In this Act "Collector" means the chief officer in charge of the revenue-administration of a district.

"Collector" defined.

4. Every person who, on or after the first day of April 1878, falls, in any of the said territories, under any of the heads specified in the schedule hereto annexed, and carries on (whether on behalf of himself or any other person) his trade or dealing, shall take out a license under this Act, and shall pay for the same the annual fee mentioned in such schedule as payable by persons of the class and grade to which he belongs.

Annual licenses to be taken out.

5. Every license under this Act shall be granted by the Collector of the District in which the person requiring such license carries on his trade or dealing: provided that, if such person carries on such trade or dealing in more than one district, the license shall be granted by the Collector of the district in which his principal place of business is situate.

Every such license shall be signed by the Collector granting it, or by such officer as he may appoint in this behalf.

Particulars to be specified in the license.

6. Every such license shall specify—

- (a) the date of the grant thereof;
 - (b) the name, father's name, caste and trade or dealing of the licensee;
 - (c) the class and grade to which he belongs;
 - (d) the fee paid for the license;
 - (e) the place or places where the licensee intends to carry on his trade or dealing for the ensuing year; and
 - (f) the term for which the license shall remain in force,
- and shall be received in evidence as prima facie proof of all matters contained therein.

7. Every such license shall have effect and continue in force from the day of the date thereof till the first day of January next after the date of the grant thereof.
Commencement and expiration of license.

8. Every person to whom any such license has been granted, and who desires to continue to carry on his trade or dealing after the expiration of such license, shall take out a fresh license for that purpose for the following year, to expire on the day appointed in the last preceding section, and shall renew the same so long as he desires to continue to carry on such trade or dealing.
Renewal of license.

List of Licensees.

9. As soon as may be after the first day of April 1878 and the first day of January in every subsequent year, the Collector shall prepare a list of the persons to be licensed under this Act in his district. Such list shall state—
Collector to prepare annual list of licensees.

(a) the trade or dealing of each of the persons therein named;

(b) the class and grade under which he is charged; and

(c) the fee to be paid for his license.
 Such list shall be in the language of the district, shall be filed in the office of the Collector, and shall be open to public inspection at all reasonable times without any payment.

10. The Collector shall, from time to time, determine under which of the classes and grades mentioned in the said schedule every person to whom a license may be granted by him as aforesaid shall be charged, and shall amend the said list accordingly.
Collector to determine class under which licensee is to be charged.

The list or such part or parts thereof as the Collector thinks fit shall be published in the principal mohallas or ganjes of all towns, and in the chaupal, or other public place, in all villages concerned, together with a notification that if any person mentioned in such list continues his trade or dealing, payment of the amount specified in the list as payable by him must be made in the year 1878 within thirty days of such publication in that year and within thirty days next after the first day of January in each succeeding year.
Publication of list and notification.

11. The Collector may, by a notice in writing, require the occupier of any house to forward to him a statement in writing signed by such occupier of the names of all persons residing in such house at the date of the notice and of their respective callings.
Collector may require list of persons in any house.

12. Any person mentioned in the list referred to in sections nine and ten and objecting to the class or grade under which he is charged may, within thirty days after such publication, or within such further time as the Collector may in each case think fit, apply by petition to the Collector in order to establish his right to have his name transferred to another class or grade, or altogether removed from the list.
Petition of objector.

13. The Collector shall fix a day for the hearing of the petition, and on the day so fixed, or on such subsequent day as he may from time to time direct, shall hear the same and pass such order thereon as he thinks fit:

Provided that if, in his judgment, the petitioner is able to show that the fee which has been charged exceeds two per cent. upon his annual net earnings, such excess shall, for the purpose of section twelve, be deemed a valid objection.

Provided also that the Collector shall not, in the course of any proceedings under this section, call for any evidence except at the instance of the petitioner, or in order to ascertain the correctness of facts alleged by him.

14. Any person dissatisfied with such order may within fifteen days from the date thereof present a petition of appeal to the Commissioner of Revenue of the Division, whose decision upon such appeal shall be final.
Appeal from order on petition.

Every petition presented under this section shall be accompanied by a copy of the petition to the Collector, a copy of his order thereon, and all other documents (if any) connected with the case.

15. The Collector may in his discretion remit the whole or any part of the fee payable under this Act by any person who has carried on his trade or dealing for a portion of the year only.
Power to remit fee.

16. A person or firm coming under more than one of the designations in the said schedule shall be chargeable only under one of the said designations at the discretion of the Collector; and in the case of a firm, payment by any one of the partners shall, for the purposes of this Act, be considered payment by the firm.
Persons carrying on several trades.

17. If, after expiry of the period mentioned in the notification published under section ten, for payment of the amount specified therein, any person (whether he is or is not mentioned in the said list) carries on his trade or dealing without having taken out a license as required by this Act, he shall be liable, by order of the Collector, to pay a fine not exceeding thrice the amount payable by him in respect of such license, exclusive of the amount so payable; and on receipt of such payment the Collector shall grant him a license.
Penalty for carrying on business without a license.

All sums due under this section and all fees payable under this Act shall be recoverable as if they were arrears of land-revenue.

18. Every person holding a license under this Act shall produce and show such license when required so to do by an officer generally or specially empowered in writing by the Collector to make such requisition.
License to be produced on demand.

But no person shall be proceeded against for neglect or refusal to produce such license except at the instance of the Collector.
Prosecution to be at instance of Collector.

19. Courts of Wards and Receivers and managers appointed by any Court in British India, shall be chargeable under this Act in respect of any trade or dealing of which the income is officially in their possession or under their control.

20. When any trustee, guardian, curator, committee or agent is charged under this Act in such capacity, or when any Court of Wards or Receiver or manager appointed by any Court is charged under this Act, every person and Court so charged may, from time to time, out of the money coming to his or its possession as such trustee, guardian, curator, committee or agent, or as such Court of Wards, Receiver or manager, retain so much as is sufficient to pay the fee charged.

Every such person or Court is hereby indemnified for every retention and payment made in pursuance of this Act.

Municipalities.

21. The Collector of the District may require any Municipal Committee to furnish, within a period to be specified under the orders of the Local Government, returns showing the names and numbers of persons chargeable under this Act resident within the limits of such Municipality, together with the class and grade to which they respectively belong and the fees payable by them respectively.

If the Municipal Committee fails within the period prescribed to make such returns, or if it make such returns but the Collector of the District has reason to doubt their accuracy, he may at any time cause a return showing the names, numbers, classes and grades aforesaid to be prepared in such manner as may be prescribed by the Local Government.

22. When the return mentioned in section 21 has been furnished or prepared, notice shall be served on the Municipality, calling on it to pay to the Collector of the District, within a period to be specified in the notice, a sum calculated on such return in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

Any Municipality may appropriate any part of its revenues to the payment of the sum leviable from it under this section, or raise such further sums in addition to its existing revenue as may be needful for such payment: provided that such further sums be raised in accordance with the Act under which such Municipality is constituted.

Miscellaneous.

23. All fees and penalties paid or recovered under this Act shall be carried to the credit of the Local Government.

The amount so credited shall be applied, in such manner as the Governor General in Council thinks fit, for the purpose of defraying expenditure incurred or to be incurred for the relief and prevention of famine in the territories administered by such Local Government, or, if the Governor General in Council so directs, in any other part of British India.

24. All or any of the powers and duties conferred and imposed by this Act on a Collector may, subject to the orders of the Collector of the District, be exercised and performed by an Assistant Collector or such other officer as the Local Government from time to time appoints in this behalf.

25. Every person shall be legally bound to furnish information to any officer exercising any of the powers of a Collector under this Act when required by him to do so.

26. The Local Government may, from time to time, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council,—

(a) exempt any portion of the territories administered by such Government, or any persons or class of persons in such territories, from the operation of this Act;

(b) exempt from the operation of this Act any persons whose respective nett annual earnings are less than such sum as the Local Government may, from time to time, direct in this behalf;

(c) make rules consistent with this Act, (1) for regulating the time and manner of collecting the fees charged under this Act, (2) for providing in any case or class of cases for serving notices on persons charged under this Act, (3) for determining the mode in which persons belonging to any class shall be distributed into grades, and (4) generally for the guidance of officers in matters connected with the enforcement of this Act.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

In the Financial Statement for 1877-78, attention was drawn to the necessity imposed upon the Government of India of bringing the public Revenues and Expenditure into a condition of proper equilibrium. The events that have occurred since that time have shown that the urgency of the case has become greater with each succeeding month of the prolonged crisis through which the country has been passing.

After the Famine of 1874 in Northern Bengal, the Government of Lord Northbrook declared that such calamities could no longer be treated as abnormal or exceptional, and that sound financial principles required that the grave obligations entailed by Famine upon the Government should be explicitly recognised and provided for among the ordinary charges of the State.

The Secretary of State agreed with Lord Northbrook's Government that the periodical occurrence of Famine ought to enter into the calculation of the Government of India when making provision for its ordinary wants from year to year, and that such a surplus should be provided in each year as would make a sensible impression on the debt incurred in times of Famine. Her Majesty's Government have recently re-affirmed this principle.

To enable the Government to discharge the obligations placed upon it to meet these requirements, additional taxation has been deemed necessary. To provide for a portion of this in a manner suited to the condition of the country and the special circumstances of the case, the present measure is proposed.

The following Bill was referred to a Select Committee of the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 16th January 1878:—

No. 24 of 1877.

A Bill for the levy of Additional Rates on Land in the North-Western Provinces.

WHEREAS, in order to defray the expenditure incurred and to be incurred for the relief and prevention of famine, it is necessary to make a permanent increase to the annual revenues available for provincial purposes, and it is therefore expedient to provide, in the territories administered by the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces, for the levy on land of additional rates to be applied to local purposes; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. This Act may be called "The North-Western Provinces Local Rates Enhancement Act, 1878," and it shall

Short title.

Commencement. come into force on such date as the Governor General in Council by notification in the Gazette of India directs.

2. On and from such date Act No. VII of 1877 (to amend the law relating to assignments from the General Provincial Fund established under the North-Western Provinces Local Rates Act, 1871) shall be repealed.

3. In section three of the North-Western Provinces Local Rates Act, 1871, Section 3, amended. after the proviso the following shall be inserted, that is to say—

"Every estate situate in a district of which the land-revenue is liable to periodical revision, shall be liable, in addition to any rates levied under the foregoing portion of this section, to the payment of such further rate, not exceeding one per cent. on its annual value, as the Lieutenant-Governor from time to time imposes.

"Such further rate shall be paid by the landlord independently of, and in addition to, any land-revenue assessed on the estate."

4. To section four of the same Act the following clause shall be added, that is to say:—

"The Lieutenant-Governor may from time to time impose upon any such estate, in addition to any rate imposed under the first clause of this section, a further rate of such amount not exceeding half an anna for each acre as aforesaid as he thinks fit."

5. In sections five, seven, and eight of the same Act, after the word "rate" wherever it occurs, the words "or further rate" shall be inserted.

6. For section ten of the same Act, the following section shall be substituted:

"10 (a). From such fund the Lieutenant-Governor shall in each year appropriate such amount, not exceeding the proceeds of the further rates assessed in such year under sections three and four, as the Governor General in Council may direct, for the purpose of defraying expenditure incurred or to be incurred for the relief and prevention of famine in the said territories.

"Provided that the whole or any portion of such amount may, if the Governor General in Council so directs, be expended for the relief and prevention of famine in any other part of British India.

"(b). The Lieutenant-Governor may, from time to time, assign from such fund such amount as he thinks fit, to be applied in payment of charges incurred or to be incurred on account of such canals and railways as he, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may declare to be works of general provincial utility.

"Provided that the amounts so assigned in any year shall not exceed one-tenth of the proceeds of the rates assessed in such year under the first clause of section three and the first clause of section four.

"(c). Subject to the appropriation directed by clause (a), the Lieutenant-Governor shall from time to time allot from such fund such amounts as he thinks fit to be applied in each district for expenditure on all or any of the following purposes:—

"(1.) The construction, repair, and maintenance of roads and other means of communication;

"(2.) The maintenance of the Rural Police and District-post;

"(3.) The construction and repair of school-houses, the maintenance and inspection of schools, the training of teachers, and the establishment of scholarships;

"(4.) The construction and repair of hospitals, dispensaries, lunatic asylums, markets, wells and tanks; the payment of all charges connected with the purposes for which such buildings or works have been constructed, and any other local works likely to promote the public health, comfort or convenience.

Provided that the amounts so allotted in any year for any district shall not be less than nine-tenths of the proceeds of the rates assessed under the first clause of section three and the first clause of section four in such district in such year."

7. In section eleven of the same Act, for the word "assignments" the word "allotments" shall be substituted.

In section twelve of the same Act, for the word "assignment" in each of the places where it occurs, the word "allotment" shall be substituted, and for the word "reassigned" the word "re-allotted" shall be substituted.

And in section thirteen of the same Act, for the word "assignment" the word "allotment" shall be substituted.

And in section fourteen of the same Act, for the word "amount" in each of the places where it occurs, the word "allotment" shall be substituted.

The following Bill was referred to a Select Committee of the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 16th January 1878 :—

No. 27 of 1877.

A Bill for the levy of Additional Rates on land in the Central Provinces.

WHEREAS, in order to defray the expenditure incurred and to be incurred for the relief and prevention of famine, it is necessary to make a permanent increase to the annual revenues available for provincial purposes; and it is therefore expedient to provide, in the territories administered by the Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces, for the levy of additional rates on land to be applied to local purposes; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

1. This Act may be called "The Central Provinces Additional Rates Act, 1878;"

Short title.

It extends only to the territories administered by the Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces; And it shall come into force on such date as the Governor General in Council by notification in the Gazette of India directs.

Local extent.

Commencement.

2. Every estate shall be liable, in addition to the rates and cesses payable under any settlement for the time being in force, to the payment of such further rate not exceeding one per cent. on its annual value, as the Chief Commissioner, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, from time to time imposes.

"Annual value" means

(1). in cases in which the settlement of the land-revenue is liable to periodical revision, double the amount of the land-revenue for the time being assessed on an estate;

(2). in cases in which such settlement is not liable to such revision, or in which the land-revenue has been, wholly or in part, released, compounded for, redeemed or assigned, double the amount which, if the settlement were liable to such revision, or an assessment at full rates were to be made, would be assessable as land-revenue on the estate.

3. All sums due on account of any rate imposed under this Act shall be recoverable as if they were arrears of land-revenue due on the land on account of which the rate is payable.

4. The proceeds of all rates levied under this Act shall be carried to the credit of a general provincial fund.

5. From such fund the Chief Commissioner shall from time to time appropriate such amount as the Governor General in Council may direct, for the purpose of defraying a due proportion of the expenditure incurred or to be incurred in the said territories for the relief and prevention of famine:

Provided that the whole or any portion of such amount may, if the Governor General in Council so directs, be expended on the same objects in any part of British India.

Subject to such appropriation, any portion of the fund may be applied by the Chief Commissioner to such local works likely to promote the public health, comfort or convenience as he thinks fit.

Preamble.

6. The Chief Commissioner, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may by notification in the Local Gazette from time to time—

(a) determine by what instalments and at what times such rate shall be payable, and by whom it shall be assessed, collected and paid;

(b) make rules consistent with this Act for the guidance of officers in matters connected with its enforcement;

(c) exempt any portion of the territories under his government from the operation of this Act, or exempt any estate from liability to pay the whole or any part of any rate under this Act;

(d) direct fresh measurements of estates liable to pay rates under this Act, and vary the assessments accordingly.

Offg. Secretary to the Govt. of India.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE, AGRICULTURE, AND COMMERCE.

REPORTS ON THE STATE OF THE SEASON AND PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS
FOR THE WEEK ENDING THE 22nd JANUARY 1878.

GENERAL REMARKS.—In Madras slight showers are reported from many of the southern districts and Ganjam; general prospects are said to be less hopeful owing to the indifferent outturn of the harvest in many districts: this remark would seem to apply chiefly to the Godavery, North Arcot, Madura, Tanjore, Coimbatore and Chingleput districts; prices show a slight but general tendency to rise. The total number on relief works is 141,849, and on gratuitous relief 191,611, a decrease of 13,794 and 19,255 on last week respectively. No rain has fallen in Mysore; the outturn of dry crops is poorer than was anticipated; the number on relief works for the week ending the 12th instant was 46,479 and on gratuitous relief 7,558, a decrease of 3,017 and 2,192 on last week. No rain is reported from Bombay; the rabi crop in Násik is said to be in poor condition; elsewhere (except in Sind) prospects appear to be fair. In the Central Provinces copious rain has fallen in part of Saugor, elsewhere none; the wheat is in good condition, but other rabi crops have been in some districts injured by frost, insects and blight. In Berar the prospects of the rabi are favourable. No rain is reported from Central India or Rajputana; prospects are generally good. In Bengal there has been slight rain in the Rajshahi division, in Sarun and Gya, and in parts of Chota Nagpore: the cold weather crops are generally in good condition; the winter rice harvest is now all but over. In Assam there has been no rain; prospects are good. In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh there is said to have been partial rain; prospects are generally favourable. No rain has fallen in the Punjab: it is needed in Hissar, but the crops generally promise well.

Bengal—(Jan. 22nd).
Chittagong ...	Nil	Weather seasonable, with cloudy intervals; rain is wanted for the winter crops.
Noakholly ...	Nil	Weather seasonable; the reaping of the amun crop is completed; pulses, chillies, &c., are progressing favourably; public health is good.
Chittagong Hill Tracts...	Nil	Weather seasonable; heavy fogs up to 9 A. M.; the prospects of mustard are bad, almost the whole crop being destroyed by small insects; cattle disease is still prevalent in Garjamia and Chingri Valley.
Hill Tipperah ...	Nil	Weather cloudy on some days of the week; mustard is being reaped; other crops are doing well; prices continue high as compared with the last year's prices; health is good.
Backergunge ...	Nil	All is well.
Furreedpore ...	Nil	Weather cloudy for some days, but now clear again; the amun rice has been reaped; the outturn is below the average, but better than was expected; rain is wanted for the spring crops; there are many fever cases still remaining.
Dacca ...	Nil	Weather seasonable, rather cloudy; state and prospects of the crops are favourable.
Mymensingh ...	Nil	Weather fine and cold; state and prospects of the crops are favourable.
Tipperah ...	Nil	Weather fine; amun dhan has been reaped and has yielded a good outturn; the pulse crops promise well.
24-Pergunnahs ...	Nil	Weather seasonable; state and prospects of the crops are satisfactory; cholera and fever are abating.
Jessore ...	Nil	Weather seasonable; prospects of the crops are fairly good; they would have been better if a little more rain had fallen; fever is abating.
Nuddea ...	Nil	Weather cloudy at the beginning of the week, warm for the time of year; the rabi crops are progressing well in all the sub-divisions; the harvest has been commenced in Choondangah.
Moorsheadabad ...	0·09	Weather cold and damp; the rabi and other standing crops are generally well reported on; fever and cholera are on the decrease, except in Bharatpur; a few cases of small-pox are reported from Kandi.
Pulna ...	0·10	Weather seasonably cool; mutter , khesari , musoor , cheena , and musina promise a good outturn; the harvesting of kuldi and sugarcane is going on; fever and cholera have abated.
Rajshahye ...	0·10 on the night of the 14th instant.	The weather has been much warmer for the last week; the sky is now clear; the crop reports are good; cholera is abating; fever is still prevalent.
Bogra ...	Nil	The sky was cloudy during the first part of the week, latterly the weather was seasonably cool; no change to report in the state and prospects of the crops; rice is selling in the Bogra Bazar at 26 seers per rupee; this is a very high price for the season of the year, especially as the amun harvest has been so abundant; cholera has again broken out in the jurisdiction of Panchabibi and Adandighi stations.
Dinagepore ...	Nil	Weather moist, threatening rain; the cold-weather crops are doing fairly near the station.
Rungpore ...	Nil	Weather cold and fine; the tobacco and other crops on the ground are doing well.
Cooch Behar ...	Previous week Nil .	Weather very cold, with dense fogs in the mornings; west wind is prevailing; the state and prospects of the crops are the same as reported last week; the reaping of the amun rice is now practically over; mustard is in seed, and the other cold-weather crops are doing well; fever is abating, and the public health is improving.
Jalpaiguri ...	Nil Previous week Nil .	Weather seasonable; the harvesting of the winter rice is almost completed; the prospect of the dry season crops is good; health of the district is at present good; fever has almost disappeared from the town of Jalpaiguri.
Darjeeling ...	Nil	Weather very cold; snow has fallen on the adjacent hills; the winter rice crop has been nearly all gathered in, yielding a good return; the minor crops are progressing favourably.
Midnapore ...	Nil	Weather cold and seasonable; prospects of the crops are fair.
Howrah ...	Nil	The signs of rain have gone, and the weather is colder again; nothing new to report; the amun harvest is nearly complete; sugarcane looks well.

Presidency or Province and District.	Rainfall for week preceding.	State of agricultural prospects.
Bengal—continued.
Hooghly ...	Nil	Weather seasonable, cloudy at intervals; all the amra rice, excepting that on the extreme low lands, has been reaped; the rabi crops are doing well; there has been a change for the better in the state of public health; no fresh cases of fever have been reported during the week.
Burdwan ...	0·4	The prospect of the rabi crops is good; fever is prevalent in the Jehanabad sub-division; cholera has also broken out in Jehanabad, and still continues in the Cutwa and Culna sub-divisions.
Bankoora ...	Few drops on 16th.	Weather cold, and during the middle of the week cloudy; the crops on the ground are flourishing.
Beerbhoom ...	0·05	Weather seasonable; the cold weather crops are fair.
Sonthal Pergunnahs ...	0·17	A little rain fell in the early part of the week; the latter part was cold and clear; no change in the state and prospects of the crops since last report.
Bhāgalpur ...	Nil	Weather generally clear and seasonably cold; more rain is wanted for the rabi crops, especially in the north of the district; the price of rice is still rising, owing to the increasing demand from outside; the export of grain by rail continues as before; general health is excellent.
Monghyr ...	Nil	Weather clear, with cold nights; the prospects of the crops are much the same as reported last week; some damage from frost has been reported in Begoesra.
Purneah ...	Nil	Weather cloudy and cool with westerly wind; the aghani crop has been reaped, the outturn averaged from 12 to 16 annas; rain is wanted for the rabi crops.
Maldah ...	Nil	Weather fair, occasionally cloudy; the state of the crops continues favourable, but rain is required for the rabi ; public health is good.
Durbhunga ...	Nil	Weather seasonable; with the late rains the prospects of the rabi crops have been more improved, and are very favourable; heavy exportation has raised the price of rice considerably.
Mozufferpore ...	Nil	Weather seasonable and cold; the prospects of the rabi crops are good throughout the district; the prices of food-grains are stationary.
Sarun ...	0·36	Weather seasonably cool; the mornings are generally foggy, and there have been occasional gatherings of clouds; slight rain has fallen in most parts of the district; the state and prospects of the rabi crops continue fair; in some villages within the jurisdiction of the Gopālganj Sub-division great damage has been done by hail and frost; prices have greatly risen; public health is good.
Champaran ...	Nil	Weather cold, with occasional fogs in the mornings; the prospects of the rabi crop have improved during the last week in consequence of the late rain; public health is good.
Patna ...	Nil	Weather seasonably cold; the harvesting of the rice crop will be finished in a week; the prospects of the rabi crops have much brightened after the rainfall; health is good.
Gya ...	0·63	The sky was cloudy at the beginning of the week; maximum thermometer in the shade 74°; the prospect of the rabi crop is promising; the recent rain is reported to have been quite sufficient in Jehanabad; from Nowāda it is reported that the crop will be a full one; no report from Aurungabad has been received.
Shahabad ...	Nil	Weather warmer, since rain clear and fine; the rabi crops everywhere have been extremely benefited by the rain; prices have a tendency to fall; the cattle are badly off for want of fodder in Bhubooah.
Hazāribāgh ...	0·03	Weather seasonable; nothing fresh to report about the state and prospects of the crops.
Lohardugga ...	·08 at Palamow; there has been slight rain in four out of thirteen police station circles in west centre of the head-quarters division.	The prospects of the rabi in Palamow are good; in the head-quarters division there is never much rabi ; this year it is as good as usual; public health is good.
Manbhoom ...	0·14	Weather cloudy and close; there is no change in the prospects of the crops.
Singbhoom ...	0·13	Weather clear and seasonable; nothing to report about the crops.
Balasore ...	Nil	Weather fair; the harvesting of the main rice crop is completed; fever is bad in Jellawore, and is causing much mortality; an extra native doctor with medicines has been posted at the locality; a few cases of cholera have been reported.
Cuttack ...	Nil	Weather rather warm for the season; the cutting of the saradh crop has nearly been finished; the rabi crops are being reaped; the dalua rice is being sown; public health is generally good.

Presidency or Province and District.	Rainfall for week preceding.	State of agricultural prospects.
Bengal—continued.
Pooree ...	Nil	Weather warm for the season; the saradh rice crop is still being harvested; sugarcane and arkur are being cut, mustard is being reaped, and moong and kalai promise well; the dalsa rice plants are progressing favourably; the exports to the Madras Presidency continue; the mandia crop in the salt tracts is dying for want of water, but elsewhere it is in ear; cattle disease is reported from parts of the district. General Remarks. —The cold-weather and other standing crops are generally well reported of, but rain is still wanted in Chittagong, Bhāgalpur, Purneah and Maldah; the winter rice harvest is now practically over in all places save in the extreme low lands; the prospects of mustard in the hill tracts of Chittagong and of mandia in the salt tracts of Pooree are bad; the former is said to have been almost wholly destroyed by insects, and the latter is dying for want of rain; the price of rice continues to rise in several districts owing to exportation; public health is on the whole good, although cholera is prevalent in parts of the Burdwan and Bogra districts, and fever is causing much mortality in Jellalore.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.
FOREIGN DEPARTMENT.
Political.

CORRESPONDENCE WITH H. M.'S SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA ON THE SUBJECT OF THE ADMINISTRATION OF THE NORTH-WESTERN FRONTIER OF INDIA.

No 86,—(Political,) dated 17th May 1877.

From—The Government of India, Foreign Department,
To—Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India.

YOUR LORDSHIP'S Political Despatch No. 72 of 13th July 1876, on the subject of changes necessary for the improved administration of the western and north-western frontiers of India, was duly received and considered by us; but our reply to it, postponed at first until His Excellency the Viceroy should have had the opportunity, desired by your Lordship, of personally visiting the frontier, was further delayed by the pressure of other questions urgently demanding our more immediate attention.

2. In the despatch above referred to, your Lordship expressed your satisfaction at finding that the views of the Government of India, regarding the transfer of the Province of Sindh from the Presidency of Bombay to the Lieutenant-Governorship of the Punjab, were in full accordance with those already expressed by yourself on the subject; and your Lordship then authorized us to take the steps necessary for giving effect to these views at such time as might seem to us most convenient.

3. But, although thus finally approving the principle of the withdrawal of Sindh from the charge of the Government of Bombay, your Lordship pointed out that many difficult questions of detail in regard to the future management of the two Provinces of Sindh and the Punjab remained to be settled. For instance, whether the Trans-Indus Districts should be governed as a single district, or be divided; whether, for administrative purposes, they should be entirely disconnected from districts on this side of the Indus; and whether the system of administration should be civil or military. On these points your Lordship suspended your opinion, considering that they could be decided with less difficulty, should His Excellency the Viceroy be in a position to personally visit the localities and consult with the officers by whom the arrangements which may be ultimately thought best will have to be carried out.

4. We have now the honor to transmit, for your Lordship's consideration, a Minute by His Excellency the Viceroy on the re-organization of the frontier. The details of the measure therein recommended will doubtless require revision; and to these our best attention is now being given. But the views expressed by His Excellency as to the broad principles upon which the administration of our frontier should now be re-organized, without any avoidable delay, have been formed with careful consideration after a personal inspection of the frontier; and in those views we generally concur. We adhere to the opinion expressed in our Political Despatch No. 85 of 7th April 1876 regarding the severance of Sindh from Bombay, and also to the opinion that there are no districts requiring a separate military government. But, having in view the tendency of recent events on our own frontier, as well as in Central Asia and in Europe, and the growing importance and imperial character of our frontier and trans-frontier relations, we think it has now become desirable that the conduct of these relations should be under the direct control of the Government of India, and not administered, as heretofore, through the agency of a local Government. We are further of opinion that the separation of political from administrative duties is practically impossible when these two classes of duties are interwoven as closely as they now are in the government of the frontier. To place the frontier officers under the local Government, quoad their administrative duties, and under the Government of India, quoad their political duties, is a system fraught with inconvenience; and one which has already proved the source of serious embarrassment to this Government. We think that in the marked separation of the frontier districts, geographically, historically, by race, by institutions, and by customs, from the Cis-Indus districts, there are many and strong reasons for their administrative separation also. Lastly, we consider that to add the distant Province of Sindh, with its rising seaport and important frontier relations, to the Lieutenant-Governorship of the Punjab, without affording the latter any corresponding relief, would unduly increase the administrative charges and responsibilities of that Government; which, owing to the extent of its jurisdiction, its long and troublesome frontier line, and the variety of the interests it has to deal with, is already, perhaps the most difficult and onerous of all the local Governments.

5. We, therefore, recommend that the Frontier, or Trans-Indus, districts of the Punjab and Sindh be formed into a separate Frontier Government; administered, under the direct control of the Government of India, by a Chief Commissioner and Governor-General's Agent at Peshawur; that this Officer should be charged with the general conduct of all our frontier and trans-frontier relations; and that he should be provided with subordinate Officers at Peshawur and Jacobabad, the latter having the special charge of the administration of the lower frontier and our relations with Beloochistan. We further recommend that the Sindh and Punjab Frontier Forces be amalgamated and placed under the Commander-in-Chief in India; retaining, however, their local and special character, but making them interchangeable within the limits of the Frontier Government.

6. If these recommendations meet with your Lordship's approval, and the general principles of frontier administration, as indicated in the Minute of His Excellency the Viceroy, be accepted, measures will be commenced at once to carry them out, and to settle the details of transfer and administration with the local Governments and officers concerned.

7. In making these recommendations we have not failed to consider fully the views expressed by your Lordship on the necessity of compensating the Presidency of Bombay, in other quarters, for the loss of territory to which it will be subjected by the necessary transfer of Sindh. We recognise the propriety of such compensation, if the present scheme of frontier re-organization be carried into effect; and we are of opinion that it can be best provided for in the manner suggested in your Lordship's above-mentioned despatch; viz., by the administrative union of the whole or part of the Central Provinces with the Presidency of Bombay.

8. As, however, the detailed arrangements for carrying out any such subsidiary measure are clearly distinct from, and independent of, all the measures directly involved in the administrative re-organization of the frontier districts, we propose to take the earliest opportunity of addressing to your Lordship a separate despatch upon this subject.

P. S.—A Minute written by our Hon'ble Colleague Sir Edward Bayley, after most of us had signed this despatch, will follow.

REORGANIZATION OF THE FRONTIER.

Minute by the Viceroy.

1. In February 1876 the Secretary of State addressed a despatch to the Government of India on the subject of the administration of the frontier, and "the changes which, under existing circumstances, seem necessary for the purpose of ensuring unity of action in the government of the western and north-western frontier of India."

2. In this despatch the Secretary of State reviewed briefly the past administration of the frontier, and the evils which had arisen from the dual system of government. In so doing, he dwelt strongly on the necessity for unity of action, and for bringing the whole frontier under the direct control of the Government of India. He confined himself, however, to indicating broadly the various measures by which this object might be effected; leaving it to the Government of India to make proposals for carrying it out, and requesting an early expression of their views on the subject.

3. On the 7th April the Government of India replied to the above-mentioned despatch, expressing their unanimous opinion that the transfer of Sindh from Bombay to the Punjab is desirable both on political and administrative grounds; but deprecating any arrangement involving the severance from the Punjab of the frontier districts now under its control.

4. On the 13th of July the Secretary of State expressed, in reply, his satisfaction at finding his views with regard to Sindh in accord with those of the Government of India, but deferred any expression of opinion as to the future administration of the frontier,—a question which could, he observed, be better decided after I had had the opportunity of personally visiting the localities, and consulting the officers concerned.

5. The negotiations going on in Khelat at the time of my arrival, and my own proposed autumn tour (for the express purpose of visiting the frontier districts, and meeting and conferring with the principal frontier officers on the spot), decided me to postpone action till matters in Khelat should be more settled. The Delhi Assemblage, and the urgent calls of the Bombay and Madras famines, have still further delayed action in the matter. But, in the meanwhile, I have been assiduously collecting the detailed information requisite for a practical decision of this question, which is rendered peculiarly urgent by the character of recent and present events. In recognition of this fact, as also in deference to the expressed wishes of the Home Government, I now desire to submit to the earliest consideration of my colleagues a statement of those arrangements which, after careful and prolonged attention to the object in view, I believe to be best adapted for the attainment of it.

6. In the despatch of 3rd February 1876 the Secretary of State thus indicates the courses which suggest themselves to him: "The whole territory of Sindh may be annexed to the Punjab; or the lower portion of the valley of the Indus may be placed under a distinct Government; or the districts requiring special military supervision may be separately administered; or some other division of these provinces, involving larger re-adjustments, may be made." And he continues—"Local circumstances, facilities of communication, the character of the population under British rule and of the tribes beyond the frontier, must be taken into careful consideration before any decision can be taken on this important point."

7. Before discussing the courses thus suggested, I would premise that there are three points on which there seems to me to be such an overwhelming concurrence of opinion that it is unnecessary for me to go over the arguments concerning them. The first point is the necessity for a re-adjustment of our frontier administration. This the Government of India has affirmed both by its action and in despatches and telegrams. It has been equally affirmed by the Home Government, which only withheld its sanction to the measures originally proposed by this Government because those measures appeared to it temporary and incomplete.

8. The second point is the severance of Sindh from Bombay. On this point the Government of India and the Secretary of State are in complete accord; and the Secretary of State, in his despatch of 13th July, authorizes the early adoption of such measures as may be requisite to effect such a severance.

9. The third point is that the line of demarcation between the Sindh, or lower frontier, and the Punjab, or upper frontier, should be re-adjusted according to the distribution of the races on the border; so that the Belooch tribes may all come within one district and administration, and the Pathan tribes within the other. On this point there seems perfect unanimity of opinion.

10. Accepting, then, these three points, and keeping in view the main principles laid down by the Secretary of State, viz., unity of action, and direct control by the Government of India over our frontier policy, it seems to me that we have practically the choice between three courses—1st, having severed Sindh from Bombay, and rectified its northern boundary, to form it into a separate province, directly under the Government of India; 2nd, to attach Sindh to the Lieutenant-Governorship of the Punjab, either retaining its autonomy, or merging it entirely in the Punjab; 3rd, to form a separate Trans-Indus district, under one head who, as the Viceroy's representative, would directly control all frontier administration and trans-frontier relations.

11. Now, whether we approach this question from à priori consideration of broad principles of policy and administration, or work upwards from the existing condition of affairs to an à posteriori solution of the difficulties and anomalies in which our frontier administration is now involved, we seem to be irresistibly led to the same conclusion.

12. It is not necessary for me to dwell again on the growing importance of our frontier politics,—their gradual merging into one great Central Asian question, and so into the Imperial policy of the British Government; nor on the effect which our advance in Khelat may have on our trans-frontier relations. It will probably be admitted that at no time has there been such urgent necessity for care, combined with vigour and unity of purpose and action, in our frontier policy. And if it is asked how such desiderata can be best secured, the natural answer must be—By placing all in the hands of one officer; by selecting him with special regard to the peculiar requirements of the appointment, which should be high enough to command the services of the best men; by letting him have as little as possible to attend to, apart from his purely frontier duties, and as much power as possible within his own jurisdiction; on the affairs of which he should be in direct communication with the Viceroy, who is the only exponent of Imperial policy in India.

13. Such a reply at once outlines a scheme in accordance with what I have mentioned as the third course open to us. The "one officer" cannot be the present Commissioner of Peshawur, whose control is limited to a small portion of our frontier, and whose position is not sufficiently high for the purpose here proposed; nor can it be the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab, who, already burdened with the administration of a large province, can give but a fraction of his time and attention to frontier politics. The Foreign Secretary occupies a position equally unfitted for the personal supervision of the frontier: for he is not an executive officer; he is too far removed from the spot; and he has many other important duties to perform. The "one officer" required for this purpose must necessarily be a Chief Commissioner and Governor-General's Agent, residing on the spot; and his authority must be co-extensive with the whole length of the frontier. Mixed up as are the tribes within and beyond our border, he must evidently have charge of the immediate frontier districts, as well as of all our trans-frontier relations; while, at the same time, his jurisdiction should be confined to the smallest possible limits, in order to diminish the pressure of his purely administrative work. To all those conditions, the Indus boundary naturally tends itself. Finally, as every unnecessary link between the responsible head and his executive agent tends to sub-divide responsibility and diminish efficiency, the Viceroy's Agent on the frontier should be responsible to the Viceroy only, owing no divided allegiance to any local Government.

14. This may, perhaps, appear too abstract and theoretical a way of dealing with a very practical question; but I think an examination of the actual condition of affairs and of the several proposals hitherto made for the amelioration of it, will lead to the same conclusion. There has always been, and I conceive that there always must be, an officer of rank at Peshawur, charged with the general management of our relations with the tribes on that frontier and with Cabul. Similarly, there always has been, and always must be, an officer in Sindh, having in his hands the general conduct of our relations with the Belooch tribes and Khelat. And the question which this Government is now forced to decide is—What should be the relations of these officers to one another, to the local Governments, and to the Government of India?

15. The first course I have named, viz., to form Sindh into a separate province, directly under the Government of India, does not seem to me to meet the difficulty at all. The dual system of government would remain as before, with no better guarantee against the recurrence of similar complications. For at the very time that the disputes between the Sindh and Punjab officials obliged the Government of India to interfere, Sindh, so far as its political relations beyond the border are concerned, was directly under the Government of India.

16. There are other reasons also against forming Sindh into a separate province. On administrative grounds, the multiplication of small independent provinces is undesirable; though, under exceptional circumstances, it may become necessary. But none of these exceptional circumstances exist in Sindh. On the contrary, there are special reasons why that province should be attached to its great neighbour, the Punjab. Its revenue is small, its population scanty, and it is in no sense self-dependent. Its importance is derived from two sources, both depending on extraneous support. The first is the harbour of Kurrachee, which is important, not as the port of Sindh, but as the future port of the Punjab, and the development of which depends more upon its communications and trade with the Punjab than on the comparatively small trade of Sindh. The second source of Sindh's importance is its position at the debouch of the Bolan Pass; thus commanding the great western gate of India, and forming the fulcrum of our political action in Beloochistan and Southern Afghanistan. But this again, so far from being a reason for the isolation of Sindh as a separate province, suggests a strong argument for the closest possible connection of Sindh with the rest of the frontier, of which it forms an integral part.

17. I think, therefore, that the first of the three above-mentioned proposals may be dismissed; and that we may pass on to the consideration of the second, viz. the attachment of Sindh to the Punjab, keeping both undivided. This proposal has, I am aware, received the support of many distinguished men, my predecessor among others, and I believe has, on more than one previous occasion, been considered and strongly advocated by the Government of India. It, therefore, claims our most attentive consideration; and I now propose to examine how far it fulfils the conditions essential to the attainment of the objects we have here to keep in view as the great, but only, justification of any change at all in the present regime.

18. These are—1st, unity of action in the government of the western and north-western frontier; and 2nd, the exercise of direct and effective control by the Government of India over the whole frontier. Now, from the context of the despatch we are acting on, as well as from the circumstances which gave rise to our receipt of that despatch, it is evident that what is there meant by the 'government of the frontier' is not so much the internal administration of the frontier districts, as the conduct of our relations with the frontier tribes and the independent States beyond our frontier. * * * * *

20. Now the great questions which, arising out of this situation, must necessarily and surely tend to swallow up, or govern, the minor ones of tribal policy, are questions not directed, or susceptible of direction, by the Punjab Government. As stated in the memorandum of that Government, the Punjab Government has no policy of its own towards Cabul; and the Lieutenant-Governor merely acts as a medium of communication for carrying out the wishes, orders, and policy of the Supreme Government. The contingencies mentioned in the Secretary of State's despatch, as most needing the action of a single will along the whole frontier, are those which fall entirely outside the administrative scope, or political influence, of the Punjab Government. Placing the Khelat frontier under the Punjab Government would, therefore, do little towards securing the desired unity of action, unless the Punjab Government were given a much greater control than it now exercises over the whole sphere of our trans-frontier politics. But this, again, would be directly at variance with the second object proposed; viz., the more direct and unembarrassed management of frontier affairs by the Government of India.

21. At present, the Commissioner at Peshawur practically obeys two masters. For, while he receives instructions regarding local politics and administration from the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab, he receives his orders regarding the larger trans-frontier politics direct from the Government of India. In the same way, the Commissioner in Sindh formerly received his orders from Bombay on matters of administration, and from the Government of India on matters of foreign policy. It has already been found necessary to place the present Governor-General's Agent for Beloochistan, Major Sandeman, more directly under the Government of India. I cannot consider the present dual system of managing our relations with the tribes and independent States beyond the Punjab border as conducive to administrative efficiency, or such as it is, from any point of view, desirable to extend and perpetuate.

22. Of the friction inevitable under such a system, we have, at the present moment, an illustration in the correspondence still going on with Bombay regarding the removal of * * *. If an officer appointed by a local Government, and performing his duties to the entire satisfaction of the local Government, is removed because, in another branch of his duties, he has failed to give satisfaction to the Government of India, such removal cannot be effected without giving rise to considerable irritation on the part of the local Government. But the evil lies deeper than this. If there be one Department of the Government, for the administration of which, more than of any other, the Viceroy is directly responsible, it is the Foreign Department. This Department he directs, not merely as head of the Government of India, but, unlike all other Departments, personally as head of the Department itself. This, therefore, is, above all others, the one Department in which the selection of officers should rest entirely in the hands of the Viceroy. Under the present system, however, the Viceroy has to carry out the most important and delicate of all the duties devolving on him, not through agents of his own selection, but through officers selected for him by the Punjab Government, and looking to that Government for their advancement.

23. I am aware that it is urged in favor of the present dual system, that it has worked well hitherto. But on this point the Viceroy is necessarily the best authority: and, with the fullest appreciation of the loyalty and ability with which I have been served by the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab and the Commissioner of Peshawur, I am bound to say that, from my assumption of office up to the present moment, the existing system has been to me a source of grievous embarrassment. Under this system, either the Lieutenant-Governor must be made the channel of all correspondence on frontier matters,—and, in that case, the most delicate, confidential, and urgent communications can only be sent through him with a risk of misconception, a certainty of delay, a greatly increased chance of publicity, and no compensatory advantage whatever; or else he feels himself slighted, kept in the dark about important matters closely affecting his own duties, and entitled to complain that his subordinates have been practically withdrawn from dependence on his orders. By the growth of this system, the Punjab Government, though inferior in status to others which are necessarily subordinate to the Supreme Administration, has now virtually become the Foreign Office of the Government of India; and a Foreign Office more inconveniently situated, or organised, could not possibly be devised. The present arrangement is, indeed, so palpable an anomaly, and so contrary to the first principles of good administration, that I should not have thought it necessary to discuss it at all, but for the fact that it has been defended on the fallacious ground that it works well in practice; and because it indirectly derives an apparent support from the weight of those opinions which have been expressed in favor of attaching Sindh to the Punjab without any modification of our actual frontier arrangements.

24. Briefly then;—the addition of Sindh to the Punjab would extend and continue an anomalous and most inconvenient system of frontier administration; without giving us any greater guarantee than we have at present for unity of action in the most important of our frontier relations, unless the Government of the Punjab be simultaneously invested with a wider control than it now exercises over those relations: and to give it such control would involve the sacrifice of one of the principal objects of any change in the present system, viz., the more direct administration of the whole frontier by the Government of India. Such enlargement of the local, with a corresponding reduction of the supreme, authority, appears to me particularly undesirable at a time when the character of frontier politics is daily becoming less provincial and more imperial; and when, by the addition of a large district to his already heavy charge, the Lieutenant-Governor would be able to devote less time than ever to the study and management of these politics.

25. The addition of so large a tract as the whole of Sindh to the already onerous charge of the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab, would be, even apart from this consideration, a measure fraught with serious disadvantages. Although the Lieutenant-Governorship of the Punjab is inferior to those of Bengal and the North-Western Provinces as regards population and revenue, yet the extent of its jurisdiction, coupled with the variety of interests included in that jurisdiction, and the amount of care and constant attention demanded by the condition of affairs along the whole length of its frontier, render it, perhaps, as at present constituted, a more difficult Lieutenant-Governorship than Tide Minute of Lord Canning, either of the other two. With Sindh, and the control of our political relations with Beloochistan added thereto, the present burdens of the Punjab Government would be heavily increased. The administration of three localities, each of them so distant from the other, yet all of them so important, as Peshawur, Delhi, and Kurrachee, is in itself a severe strain to throw on the machinery of a Lieutenant-Governorship, already occupied with the most difficult task of all, viz., the care of a long unsettled line of frontier; while the amount of responsibility devolving on the Lieutenant-Governor in other ways may be roughly measured by the fact that his province would require nearly one-third of the whole armies of India for its garrison.

26. It remains now to consider the third proposal, viz., that of forming a frontier district separate from Sindh and the Punjab under a Chief Commissioner, or Governor General's Agent; having the management, directly under the Government of India, of all our frontier business, and trans-frontier relations. The administrative advantages of such a measure, as regards the conduct of these relations, have, to a great extent, been already indicated. The Viceroy would, by means of this arrangement, command the services of his own specially selected agent, in whose hands the threads of all our border politics and tribal relations will be concentrated. The time of such an agent could be devoted, almost entirely, to purely frontier duties; and he would be better able, than any Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab can possibly be, to visit with adequate frequency, freedom of mind, and singleness of interest, all parts of the frontier; thus making himself personally and thoroughly familiar with the social facts, individual characters, and local sentiments, which claim incessant and concentrated attention in the successful administration of border politics. The political and administrative conduct of the frontier would be in the same hands, and pass through the same channels. All division of responsibility, and all antagonism of schools and systems, would thus be eliminated.

27. I am aware, however, that some decided opinions have been expressed against this proposed severance, based, as far as I understand them, on the following principles:—1st, that these frontier districts naturally form an integral part of the Punjab; 2nd, that their internal administration would suffer by separation; 3rd, that our frontier relations are best carried on through the Punjab Government.

28. Now, as regards the first of these objections, all that I can learn on the subject leads me to an exactly opposite conclusion. The frontier districts are separated from the Punjab by almost every possible kind of distinction. They are separated geographically, historically, by race, by institutions, and by customs. The Indus, for a great part of its course, forms a natural and little traversed boundary between two essentially distinct territories. The Trans-Indus districts were only conquered and annexed to the Sikh kingdom late in the reign of Runjeet Singh. They are mostly inhabited by races different from those which occupy the Cis-Indus districts; and the tribal system prevalent throughout the greater portion of them differs widely from the institutions of the Cis-Indus population. Their essentially different conditions have been practically recognized by making them the subject of separate and special legislation. Sir H. Maine, in a remarkable, and most suggestive, Minute written on the subject in 1864, pointed out that the association with the Punjab of districts so essentially different from it in character and conditions as those which lie beyond the Indus, is quite as likely to delay the progress of the Punjab as to hasten that of their less civilized populations. And, so far from these districts forming a natural and necessary part of the Punjab, Sir J. Lawrence (than whom no one knew the Punjab better) actually advocated their abandonment, and the selection of the Indus as the boundary of the Punjab and of India.

29. As regards the second objection, it seems to me to rest on assertion rather than argument; at least in the numerous papers on the subject before me, though I find it repeatedly declared that the separation of these districts would be prejudicial to their internal administration, yet I have found almost no arguments advanced in support of that assertion; except the general one as to the injurious effect of change, whatever the change may be. But any such general objection applies with equal force to the severance of Sindh from Bombay; to the steps already taken with regard to our political relations on the Belooch frontier; and to every administrative improvement rendered necessary by the progress of time and the development of a country. I confess I am unable to understand why the Commissioners and Assistant Commissioners of these frontier districts should administer them less ably and conscientiously when reporting to a high officer at Peshawur, than when reporting to a high officer at Lahore; or why the closer and more frequent supervision of the former should be less efficient than the rarer and more distant supervision of the latter.

30. I may here observe that the great weight of opinions against the separation of the frontier districts is from officers who are, or have been directly connected with the Government of the Punjab. These officers are, undoubtedly, the best qualified judges on certain points which must not be lost sight of in our consideration of the question we are dealing with: but on the general merits of an arrangement involving some reduction in the scope and power of a particular Government, the previous and present officers of that Government, proud as they may justly be of their association with its achievements and traditions, are scarcely in a position to form the soundest, or most impartial, opinion. At any rate, if overwhelming weight be given to the opinions of the Punjab officers on the question of separating the frontier districts from that province, then the same weight must be given to the opinions of the Bombay and Sindh officers on the question of the transference of Sindh to the Punjab,—a measure to which the last-named local officials are quite as unanimously opposed, but which the Government of India has declared to be expedient. I venture to think it would be difficult to find an instance in which measures of this kind, however beneficial they may have ultimately proved themselves to be, have not been opposed by those who were called upon to surrender a portion of their administration of the special interests to which they had devoted much care and attention.

31. The last objection is, that our frontier relations are best carried on through the Punjab Government; or, as it has been expressed, that the proposed separation would deprive the Government of India, quoad its administration of the western border, of the assistance of a Government which has cordially carried out our policy, and is best fitted, by position and experience, to conduct, under our orders, the relations of the British Government with its Belooch and Afghan neighbours. Now, this argument seems to me to require very careful examination. Governments are not entities possessed of special knowledge or experience, but a collection of individuals selected for certain special qualifications. If the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab were specially selected for his knowledge of frontier affairs, then he would naturally be the best adviser of the Government of India on these matters. If, on the other hand, an exceptionally qualified frontier officer is sent to Peshawur, and the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab is selected, rather with a view to his special qualifications for the administration of the more settled districts, then the whole argument falls to the ground. As regards Secretariat assistance, it is only necessary to instance the circumstances of the present moment, when the Secretary of the Punjab Government happens to be officiating as Foreign Secretary to the Government of India. The Government of India is, therefore, presumably better advised on these matters than the Government of the Punjab. So long as our relations with the Trans-Frontier States are carried on by an officer of comparatively subordinate position, there may be reasons why he should communicate through the local Government, rather than directly with the Government of India. But, if the conduct of these relations be transferred to an officer whose official rank is little below that of the Lieutenant-Governor himself, it is, in that case, difficult to imagine what advantage could be gained by reserving to the Punjab Government any share in the conduct of them. All unnecessary links in an administrative chain admittedly weaken the strength of it. The frontier officer has all the local knowledge necessary to enable him to form and submit an opinion, or to frame a line of policy, for the consideration of the Government of India. The Government of India reviews the information and opinions thus submitted to it with a knowledge of British and Imperial interests, as also of the military and financial conditions of India far wider, and more accurate, than that of any local Administration. But what new light can the Punjab Government throw on the matter? It has not the local knowledge of the Chief Commissioner on the spot; and it has no knowledge of Imperial policy and political conditions which the Commissioner does not equally possess.

32. Therefore, whether I consider the question on abstract principles of administration or policy, or from the standpoint of the practical unity of our present frontier administration, I am irresistibly brought, in either case, to the conclusion that the unity and direct impulse, so necessary to the efficiency of our frontier policy, will be best secured by the formation of a separate Frontier Government, such as I shall now proceed to describe.

PROPOSED FRONTIER GOVERNMENT.

33. The proposed Frontier Government should comprise the six frontier districts of the Punjab, viz., Hazara, Peshawur, Kohat, Bunnoo, Dera Ismail, and Dera Ghazi, Khan, with the exception of the cis-Indus portions of Bunnoo and Dera Ismail Khan; and the trans-Indus portion of Sindh, with the exception of Kurrachee. The Indus would thus form the boundary of the new Government along almost the entire length of its jurisdiction; and this great natural boundary would conveniently divide countries which are not only geographically separate, but also socially distinct; countries differing from each other in their material configuration and popular institutions.

34. The two points where the boundary line leaves the Indus are at the extreme north, and the extreme south, of it. The cis-Indus district of Hazara, which forms part of the present Peshawur district, is included in the Frontier Government; because it is essentially a frontier district, and allied in character and conditions to the trans-Indus, rather than to the cis-Indus, territories. Some modification of the present boundary between this district and Rawul Pindi may be found desirable for the convenience of the population; but these details may be hereafter settled by the local authorities.

35. The trans-Indus taluka of Kurrachee, and, perhaps, a small portion of the adjoining trans-Indus territory, are not included in the Frontier Government; because Kurrachee, as the great future port of Sindh and the Punjab, is connected rather with the development of those countries than with the management of frontier tribes; because, with its large English population and mercantile community, it requires a more elaborate judicial system than would probably be found necessary for the ruder frontier districts; and because the administration of it, with its promising harbour and growing mercantile interests, &c., would be a heavy and most undesirable addition to the charges of the Frontier administration.

36. The cis-Indus portions of Bunnoo and Dera Ismail Khan are detached from those districts; because they are physically separated from the trans-Indus portion by a great natural barrier, the river which divides them; because the population of them is cis-Indus in character, and their administration unconnected with frontier arrangements. In fact, their association with trans-Indus districts is comparatively recent in time, and has not, I believe, proved convenient in practice.

37. The question whether the great military supports of the frontier, Rawul Pindi, Attock, and Mooltan, should be included in the Frontier Government, is a military, rather than a territorial, question; and will be so considered. Nothing, however, but very strong military reasons should outweigh the manifest disadvantage of including in the Frontier Government large Cis-Indus towns and districts; which would materially add to the charges of the Frontier administration, and are entirely distinct, in population and condition, from the districts constituting its special charge.

38. At the head of the Frontier Government should be a "Chief Commissioner of the North-Western Frontier," with the powers of a Chief Commissioner, and such additional powers as it may be found necessary to confer upon him. In consideration of the importance of his charge, he should take rank above other Chief Commissioners, and his pay should be slightly higher than theirs—say Rs. 5,000 per mensem. He should have the power of a local Government in all revenue matters, and the power of temporarily moving troops without having to make formal requisition for their services. He should also be assisted by a Judicial Commissioner exercising the powers, and performing the duties, of the Chief Court throughout the territory. He should further have a Secretary, Assistant Secretary, and staff and office establishment on a scale proportionate to his position. The head-quarters of the Frontier Government should be at Peshawur.

39. Under this presiding authority, the Government should be divided into two great divisions,—an upper and a lower division; each under a Commissioner; the Commissioner of the southern division being also Governor-General's Agent, or Political Agent, for Beloochistan. The upper division should include the districts now forming part of the Punjab, with the exception of Dera Ghazi Khan; the lower division should include the latter and the territory taken from Sindh. By this arrangement the administrative divisions would correspond with the great tribal divisions on our frontier.

40. The head-quarters of the northern division should be at Peshawur, that of the southern division at Jacobabad, or Sukkur. It is probable that when Khelat affairs are more settled, a sanitarium may be found at no very great distance from the former place, which would remove the principal objections to making it the seat of an important Government.

41. Each Commissioner should exercise, not only the ordinary powers of a Commissioner, but also the powers of Judicial and Financial Commissioners; and should be allowed the services of an Assistant, or "Additional," Commissioner. In consideration of the importance and responsibility of their duties, these officers should also receive salaries somewhat above that of an ordinary Commissioner; the Commissioner of the lower division receiving, in addition thereto, a special allowance as Governor-General's Agent for Beloochistan.

42. Each division should be distributed into three districts; the upper division to consist of the Hazara, Peshawur, and Dera Ismail Khan districts; the lower of Dera Ghazi Khan, Shikarpore, and a southern district embracing parts of the Sukkur and Kurrachee Collectorates.

43. By this sub-division of the upper frontier, two districts (those of Bunnoo and Kohat) would be abolished; the former being merged in Dera Ismail Khan, the latter principally in Peshawur. If this proposal be adopted, able Assistants to the Deputy Commissioners of Peshawur and Dera Ismail Khan would have to be stationed at Kohat and Bunnoo, respectively. But there seems reason to think that greater administrative unity and efficiency would be gained by making these two, out-stations of, and subordinate to, Peshawur and Dera Ismail Khan, respectively, than by making them independent districts.

44. Each district should be administered by a Deputy Commissioner, with increased judicial powers, nearly equal to those now exercised by a Commissioner; and each Deputy Commissioner should be provided with a Judicial Assistant. In the case of Peshawur, two such Assistants will, perhaps, be necessary.

45. The staff of Assistants in the upper division would be increased by two, to replace the Deputies at Kohat and Bunnoo; and a still further increase would probably be advisable throughout the province generally. I am aware that these changes will entail a slight increase in the cost of the administration of the frontier; but I think such cost is more than compensated by the relief that will be afforded to the divisional and district officers from the drudgery of routine work, and the increased opportunities afforded them of becoming personally acquainted with the tribes, &c., on their frontier,—a point to which I attach the highest importance.

46. The above is only a sketch of the proposed administrative staff of the province. When once the broad principles of our frontier administration have been approved, a detailed list would be prepared by the officer appointed to the charge, in communication with the local authorities, and submitted for the approval of the Government of India. Possibly it would not be desirable, for the present at any rate, to interfere with the district of Kohat.

47. Proposals regarding the administration of the Cis-Indus portions of Bunnoo and Dera Ismail Khan, and Kurrachee and the Cis-Indus portions of Sindh, might be submitted by the Punjab Government; Kurrachee and the Cis-Indus portions of Sindh being annexed to the Punjab and forming a Commissionership under that Government.

48. I do not consider that the position of the officers in the frontier districts need be much affected, nor their prospects in any way injured, by the transfer of these districts to the Frontier Government. They would, it is true, lose their chance of succeeding to some of the high offices of the Punjab; but, on the other hand, their actual appointments should, I think, be raised in importance and in pay; their work would be more varied, and they would have exceptional opportunities of bringing themselves under the notice of the Government of India, and succeeding to the higher political appointments in the Viceroy's gift. The Sindh and Punjab frontier officers would be amalgamated in one list separate from that of the Punjab Proper, but with every facility offered for exchanges; and the titles, and as far as possible the powers, of the Sindh officers should be assimilated to those of the Punjab officers, as being those generally accepted under the Government of India.

49. Agents sent to Khelat, Quetta, and any places beyond our border, should be directly subordinate to the Frontier Government, and correspond through it; the Agent at Khelat being immediately subordinate to the Commissioner of the lower division. To save time, diaries and ordinary communications might be sent direct by the Commissioner of the lower division to the Government of India; and, in cases of urgency, important communications might be similarly sent; but copies of all communications so sent, and in the latter case, telegraphic notice of papers having been so sent, as also of their contents, should always be despatched to the Chief Commissioner. Political Agents of all kinds beyond the border should be included in the frontier list of officers.

50. Kashmir, however, being as it were in the rear of the new Frontier Government, should not be considered as coming within the sphere of the Chief Commissioner's frontier duties; and the officer on duty with the Maharaja should communicate direct with the Government of India, keeping the Chief Commissioner informed, however, of anything in any way affecting his duties; e. g., correspondence relating to Chitral, Badakshan, &c.

51. The Punjab Frontier Force and the Sindh Frontier Force should be amalgamated into one "Frontier Force," and the whole placed under the orders of the Commander-in-Chief. It seems to me unnecessary to revert to the many discussions and controversies which have taken place on the subject of the peculiar position of the Punjab Frontier Force. Conditions have changed; along most of the frontier the position and duties of the Frontier Force now differ in no respect from those of any other part of the Indian Army; and most of the arguments urged in favor of maintaining its special character have lost their force. In practice, in almost all recent military operations the Frontier Force has been associated with other troops, and the whole have passed under the orders of the Commander-in-Chief. On the other hand, all the anomalies and inconveniences of the system remain as strong as ever; and some of the chief arguments for placing it under the Commander-in-Chief have been strengthened by the increasingly imperial character of our frontier politics. I think, too, the frontier has passed the stage which all countries and borders go through when military and police duties are almost synonymous; when the civil government partakes of a military character, and the military force partakes necessarily of a civil, or police and local, character. In short, the time, I think, has come for the military force to take its proper place with the rest of the troops under the immediate orders of the Commander-in-Chief; and for the civil government to rely more directly, under ordinary circumstances, on its own force—the police. The intermixture of commands, which has been so often pointed out as the great blot in our frontier military system, would thus cease; and Peshawur, instead of being a separate command interposed between, and interrupting the continuity of, the frontier chain of posts, would take its natural position as the military head-quarters of the northern division.

52. Though amalgamated and placed under the Commander-in-Chief, the force should still be localized, and retain its character of a frontier force; that is to say, the regiments should serve only within the frontier military districts, though interchangeable within these.

53. As regards the constitution of the frontier military districts, I know that many arguments are urged in favor of making the military and civil divisions of the frontier conterminous; but if it is decided that the military force should be directly under the Commander-in-Chief, and not under the local Government, these reasons in a great measure disappear. On purely military grounds, the most convenient distribution would appear to be to make Peshawur the head-quarters of the upper military district, and Mooltan of the lower, the upper to include Peshawur, Nowshera, the districts of Eusefzai, Kohat, and Bunnoo with their outposts; the lower to include Dera Ghazi Khan, Dera Ismail Khan, Jacobabad, and the troops in Khelat.

54. Although Mooltan is without the limits of the Frontier Government, it is undoubtedly the most convenient military head-quarters for the lower district, with most parts of which it will be in easy communication when the Indus Valley Railway is opened; it is, moreover, an important frontier fortress and arsenal, and the station of a British regiment, and I see no objection in the fact of its lying outside the Civil boundary of the frontier, sufficient to counterbalance these advantages; while, on the other hand, I see no sufficient military advantage in including Mooltan within the Frontier Government, to outweigh the undoubted disadvantages of extending the Commissioner's jurisdiction across the Indus.

55. As regards Rawul Pindi, there seems no military reason for including it within the Frontier Government: and interests of civil administration are strong against it. It would remain, therefore, as now, the great support of the frontier, but outside the boundaries of the frontier district. The troops at Abbottabad, Khyragully and Kuldumna, might form a brigade under a Brigadier, reporting to the Major-General Commanding at Rawul Pindi; and the troops at Kurrachee and Hyderabad remain, as now, under a Brigadier at Kurrachee.

56. The precise staff for these commands would be hereafter matter of discussion in the Military Department. The Peshawur Command, increased as it would be by the troops at Kohat, &c., is such an important one that, perhaps, it might be raised to a Major-General's command, and, in this case, it would seem better that the brigade at Abbottabad, &c., which essentially forms part of the Frontier Force, should report to Peshawur rather than to Rawul Pindi, which latter is not a frontier command.

57. The precise manner in which the amalgamation of the Sindh and Punjab Frontier Forces should be carried out is also a point to be settled in the Military Departments of the Governments of India and Bombay. I think, however, that in the process one regiment of Sindh Horse might be reduced, and the Jacob Rifles abolished altogether. The unhealthiness and inefficiency of this Corps has been the subject of frequent report; its abolition has been several times considered; and the peculiar constitution of it would make very difficult its delocalization from Jacobabad, and amalgamation with the rest of the Frontier Force.

58. By the transfer of the command of the Frontier Forces to the Commander-in-Chief, the patronage of the regiments composing them will naturally devolve on him; and I think it is for the interests of the Force itself, as well as of the Army generally, that this should be the case. As a rule, promotion should still go within the Force, but facilities should be given for exchanges, and thus, by degrees, the field of selection, as well as the field of employment for frontier officers, would be widened. But, considering the special character and importance of the two frontier commands, I think that these appointments should be subject to the approval of the Government of India.

59. Some slight modifications of the distribution of the military force along our frontier will probably be desirable, in connection with recent events and frontier reorganization. I have already expressed my opinion that one regiment of Sindh Horse might be reduced. On the other hand, the occupation of the high ground of Beloochistan renders necessary an increase of infantry on the lower frontier. Dera Ismail Khan has somewhat lost in importance, and the cavalry regiment there would apparently fulfil its object better at, or near, Tonk. These points, however, would be better settled hereafter in consultation with the officer in charge of the frontier.

60. For the immediate security of the frontier against petty raids, &c., it is essential that it should possess a picked and most efficient police force, commanded by picked officers. For the Sind frontier the money saved by the reduction of one regiment of Sindh Horse might suffice to increase and improve the Police Force, the existing Belooch Guides forming part of the police organization. Whether the Frontier Force in the upper frontier also admits of reduction, or the conversion of part of it into a police force, is a question which would have to be considered later, in connection with the re-distribution of the Frontier Force. But, in any case, I consider the formation of a picked and efficient police force one of the first requisites for the successful administration of the frontier. I am hopeful that the force thus formed may eventually become an admirable school for frontier work, and a promising and popular field of distinction for young men of energy and character.

61. As regards the judicial system of the new Government, little change seems immediately necessary. All the districts included in it are subject to Statute 33 Vic., c. 3., and are "Scheduled Districts" within the meaning of our Act XIV of 1874. The differences in Civil Procedure between the Sindh and Punjab Frontier districts are few, and of no serious importance; and, as regards Criminal Procedure, the same Code (Act X of 1872) is in force in both groups of districts. Appeals lie now, in the case of the Punjab Frontier districts, to the Chief Court at Lahore; and, in the case of the Sindh Frontier districts, to the Sadr Court at Kurrachee. In future, all appeals should lie to the Judicial Commissioner at Peshawur, giving him power, in case of doubt, to make such references to the Chief Court at Lahore as the Judicial Commissioner of Oudh is already empowered to make to the High Court at Allahabad. Any legislation needed to assimilate the judicial procedure in the upper and lower frontiers, and to invest the Chief Commissioner with the powers of a High Court, can be effected in the simplest and easiest manner by a Regulation under 33 Vic., c. 3, and a Notification under Act XIV of 1874. Whether the whole system of legislation for the Frontier Government might not be simplified, is a difficult question, deserving very careful consideration; but I think it would certainly be undesirable to attempt it until the new Government has worked for some time and gained experience; all changes not absolutely necessary should be avoided at first.

In the same way, as regards the Revenue systems, I think it would not be desirable to attempt any assimilation until experience has proved that change is necessary or expedient.

62. I think it desirable that I should take this opportunity of indicating broadly the views I personally hold regarding the frontier administration. Very broad the sketch must necessarily be, when so much depends on conditions constantly changing; on the prejudices and passions of races with whom we are as yet but imperfectly acquainted; and on the individual judgment and special qualifications of the officers on whom so much depends. If, in the views I am about to express, I have the concurrence of our frontier officers, and they claim to have been endeavouring to act on the lines here set forth, I shall feel myself strengthened and encouraged by their support. If, on the other hand, they differ on some points from the conclusions I have arrived at, I can only say that these conclusions are not "evolved from my inner consciousness," and that I claim no supernatural insight into frontier politics. My views on this subject have been derived from long and careful study of masses of correspondence, reports, minutes, &c., containing the opinions of the most competent judges, both actors and spectators. By the recorded experience of others I have endeavoured to test and correct all a priori impressions of my own; and the conclusions thus gradually matured are confirmed by such knowledge of the facts they refer to as I have been able to acquire from a year's tenure of office, during which several important frontier questions have forced themselves prominently on my notice. It is well to bear in mind that in policy, as in other games of skill, the observant spectator is often a better judge than the player absorbed in the chances of the game.

63. In the first place, then, I think it should be our aim to cultivate more direct and frequent intercourse than at present exists between ourselves and the tribes on our borders. I have already had occasion to observe more than once, what I cannot too often repeat in reference to this subject, that it is to the effect of the straightforward, upright, and disinterested action of English gentlemen, and to the influence which higher mental power and culture never fail to exert over those who are brought much in contact with them, rather than to superiority in fighting power and appliances, that I attribute British supremacy in India, as well as the exceptional success of British rule in all quarters of the globe. If personal character and influence be the powerful engines I believe them to be, it is desirable that their force should be exercised as constantly and directly as possible. For this, among other reasons, I propose the appointment of a Chief Commissioner at Peshawur, invested with exceptionally high powers, who can represent to the Native mind more directly and personally than either the Lieutenant-Governor at Lahore, or the still more distant Viceroy at Calcutta, the embodied power and dignity of the British Government. For this reason, also, I propose to increase the administrative staff of divisions and districts, so that the Commissioners and Deputy Commissioners, relieved of much purely routine work, may have more time for visiting, and becoming personally acquainted with, their troublesome, but not hopelessly unmanageable, neighbours. I have before me now a Minute by Major James, formerly Commissioner of Peshawur, in which, as the result of thirteen years' frontier experience, he expresses himself most strongly as to the absolute impossibility of combining a proper intercourse with the border tribes with the execution of his ordinary civil duties. The then Lieutenant-Governor, and Lord Lawrence hinted, indeed, that this incompatibility of functions was Major James' own fault; yet from all quarters I hear Major James spoken of as one of the ablest and most active administrators the frontier has known, and one who, but for his untimely death, had a brilliant career before him.

64. Again, for the reasons given above, I think that the employment of Arbabs, or middlemen, should be discontinued as much as possible. I do not myself believe that it strengthens our hold even upon the small class we thus employ. For every man gratified by employment, a host of jealousies are raised against him and ourselves. There is some reason to fear that these personages are not altogether incapable of provoking, or promoting, difficulties on the frontier in the hope of increasing their own importance: and the Police authorities at Peshawur have now ascertained that one of the Arbabs most trusted by the Punjab Government on that frontier was carrying on, a few months ago, a treasonable correspondence with persons in Cabul, which nothing but the man's death enabled us to detect. I admit, however, that there are many occasions on which the services of Arbabs have been, and may again be, most valuable to us, especially in opening communication with frontier tribes; but I think that whenever their services can be dispensed with, and direct communication opened, or maintained, by our own authorities, this should be done. Even if we could always depend on the absolute loyalty of Arbabs, these men cannot convey to the Native the same clear idea of our views and character that he would gain by personal intercourse with British officers.

65. For the same reasons, I would be inclined to relax somewhat the restrictions now placed on district officers corresponding with Chiefs beyond the border, and on officers crossing the border. I am aware that this is a matter which will require very careful and delicate handling, and that any relaxation of the present restrictions may be attended with considerable risk. But it seems to me that, in our anxiety to avoid present risk and complications, we have somewhat sacrificed future influence and security. I think there is no one who considers our present relations with the trans-frontier tribes to be altogether satisfactory. I believe that our north-western frontier presents at this moment a spectacle unique in the world: at least, I know of no other spot where, after twenty-five years of peaceful occupation, a great civilized Power has obtained so little influence over its semi-savage neighbours, and acquired so little knowledge of them, that the country within a day's ride of its most important garrison is an absolute terra incognita; and that there is absolutely no security for British life a mile or two beyond our border. I can see no force in the oft-repeated argument that the Sikh and other kingdoms were no more successful than ourselves in their intercourse with these hill tribes; unless, indeed, it be assumed that English civilization and rule are no better than those of a Sikh or Persian kingdom; that an English officer represents no higher type of character than the servant of an Eastern king; and that our power and military resources and appliances are not immeasurably superior to those of the kingdoms which were crushed by a mere fraction of the force now at our command.

66. Next, as regards our general system of frontier defence, and the punishment of offences committed by the independent tribes; I think, as already stated, that the time has come when the military force should pass under the Commander-in-Chief, losing somewhat of its police character, while the civil power should be more directly responsible for the protection of life and property.

67. I propose, therefore, to increase somewhat the police force, giving it as good an organization as possible, and placing it directly under the district officers. The local militia also should be under the district officers; and ordinarily these civil forces should be sufficient to meet and punish any attempts from over the border. With a picked police force, composed of men of the same stamp, and as intred to hill-work as the tribes whom they have to act against, but better armed, organized, and disciplined, under picked officers, and with a proper system of espionage and intelligence, I see no reason why the security of the frontier should not be maintained, in ordinary times, without the assistance of troops. But when once the troops are called out, then the control of all armed forces, military, police, or militia, should pass into the hands of the Officer Commanding the troops; and he alone, acting of course in concert and communication with the civil authorities, should be responsible for the protection of the frontier.

68. I have already, on several occasions, expressed my strong disapproval of the system of small punitive military expeditions; and I have twice, within my short tenure of office, refused to sanction them when they have been recommended. I do not for a moment suppose that these turbulent and savage tribes can be managed without occasional displays of power and severe punishment; but I object to this particular form of punishment. I object to it because it perpetuates a system of semi-barbarous reprisal, and because we lower ourselves to the ideas of right and might common to our barbarous neighbours, rather than endeavour to raise them to our own ideas;—because it seldom really touches the guilty, and generally falls most heavily on the innocent; because its natural tendency is to perpetuate animosity rather than lead up to good relations; because, as a rule, it leaves no permanent mark, and the tribes assailed by us can point triumphantly to our having evacuated their country after all; because there can be no more trying fighting for our own troops than that which obliges them ultimately to retire before an enemy increasing in strength and boldness: and it appears from the records of these expeditions, which are not always successes even in the most limited sense, that the losses suffered by ourselves often exceed the losses we inflict. Finally, I object to this system, because I think the confidence of the hill tribes and their warlike spirit are quite as likely to be raised as lowered by contests in which they generally fire the last shot at a retreating foe. I am aware that the expeditions I thus deprecate are defended by a large number of our most experienced frontier administrators, on the grounds, so far as I understand them—1st, that they are the only means of dealing with barbarous races; and 2nd, that their success has been proved by results. With regard to the first argument, I cannot find that any other system has ever been tried with sufficient persistence to give it a chance; and, with regard to the second, I cannot at all admit the results that have been obtained, after 25 years' frontier administration, as evidence of successful dealings with these tribes, seeing that European life is as insecure as ever beyond our immediate border; that we have recently been exposed to a series of successful raids and outrages from one tribe; and that in my short tenure of office I have twice had to consider the necessity of military operations against offending sections. I maintain that, under ordinary circumstances, the police should be able to cope with offences committed within our border, and, if necessary, follow up and inflict punishment beyond it. I also maintain that when troops are used, the expeditions should be on a considerable scale, and productive of permanent results. At any rate, under no circumstances, should the troops be withdrawn until all opposition has absolutely ceased: they should never be required to turn their backs to an enemy who is still firing at them. And I think these expeditions, in which, while doing little to put our relations permanently on a better footing, we injure a whole tribe for the vicarious punishment of an individual, are particularly inapplicable where (as is so repeatedly and strongly represented to us by the Punjab authorities) there really is little or no tribal responsibility or control. In the Punjab Report of October 1876, it is pointed out that the Belooch system of tribal responsibility cannot be applied to the Pathan tribes, because "every tribe is divided and sub-divided into numerous clans, each independent of the others, and yielding but small obedience to its own petty headmen." These tribes, it is stated,—“only unite against a common enemy. Control exercised over such tribes through their chiefs would be impossible, for the chiefs do not exist.” Yet it is to these very tribes that the system is applied of burning certain villages because other members of the tribe have committed outrages.

69. In dealing with barbarous tribes, our object should be either to support and enforce tribal responsibility to the utmost wherever it already exists, or to reduce tribal cohesion to a minimum where no recognized authority can be found and used. The worst system of all is that which, while it gives us none of the advantages of tribal responsibility, yet unites the tribe against us when we seek to exact reparation for injuries inflicted. If, therefore, as we are repeatedly assured by the Punjab authorities, the heads of these tribes cannot be held answerable for the actions of individuals, it should be an object to trace the offence, and bring home the punishment to the individual and his immediate abettors, rather than to punish the tribe itself for the acts of one or more of its members.

70. It is hardly necessary to say that in reference to this, as to other points which I have indicated, I am fully alive to the difficulties of execution; but I think it none the less important to lay down general lines for guidance in our action.

71. The last point, to which I attach special importance, is the gradual disarmament of the population immediately within our frontier. The old reasons for allowing and encouraging them to carry arms, namely, that they were required to participate actively in the defence of the frontier, have almost disappeared; and, in any case, I would entrust the protection of the frontier against violence to the police and military, rather than to the inhabitants themselves. One of the first steps towards civilization and social progress is the separation of the military from the agricultural and trading classes; and the sooner our subjects can be taught to confine themselves to peaceful pursuits, looking to the authorities for protection and redress instead of taking the law into their own hands, the better it will be for all concerned. Such a measure would require care and time for its execution; but whenever the inhabitants of a village or district have shown themselves troublesome, or specially quarrelsome, or slow to render assistance when called upon, the opportunity should be taken to deprive them of their arms. Meanwhile, all who do carry arms should be, to some extent, organized; and the carrying of arms be clearly understood to carry with it certain responsibilities. The number of able-bodied men carrying arms, and the nature of their arms, should, as far as possible, be registered, and all armed villages required to furnish assistance to the police or civil power or supply escorts, watchmen, &c., in proportion to their armament.

72. These are my general views on the subject of border policy. The reorganization of the frontier districts, which is here proposed, will doubtless afford great facilities and advantages for giving practical effect to the principles on which I am anxious to see the management of frontier affairs conducted. But I need scarcely point out that the necessity for a speedy and complete reorganization of the present system of Frontier Government is entirely independent of any administrative theories, or political principles, peculiar to myself. This measure is absolutely and urgently requisite for the efficient execution of the policy of the Government of India, whatever that policy may be, or howsoever that Government may be composed now or hereafter.

73. I need hardly add that, notwithstanding the special pains I have devoted to the consideration of this subject, on which my opinions have been guided by careful reference to our most experienced local authorities in every important part of the frontier, as well as by personal investigation of the geographical and administrative facts to be dealt with, it is practically impossible to lay down, in such a paper as the present, a scheme of reorganization complete and perfect in all its details.

Many of my recommendations on incidental points may, of course, be susceptible of important modification; for instance, it may be found, on further consideration, expedient to constitute two Courts of Appeal, one at Jacobabad and the other at Peshawur; and some of the military details to be dealt with must necessarily be re-considered, in further consultation with the military authorities concerned.

I in no wise, desire to commit either my Colleagues, the Secretary of State, or myself, to the premature adoption of every particular subsidiary measure, roughly indicated in this Memorandum; but, as head of the Government of India, I must honestly say that I cannot, with any comfort to myself, or any confidence in the future, accept, as permanent, the present system of frontier management, and that the only reform of it which I could recognize as satisfactory, must be in general accordance with the principles I have now laid down.

No. 119, dated 20th November 1877.

From—The Secretary of State for India,
To—The Government of India.

1. I have received and considered in Council the Political Letter of Your Excellency's Government, No. 86, dated the 17th May last, forwarding a Minute by Your Excellency on the subject of changes considered necessary for the improved administration of the Western and North-Western Frontiers of India, and recommending certain measures to give effect to the views therein expressed, which have received the general concurrence of the Government of India as a body.

2. The recommendations of Your Excellency in Council are that the Frontier, or Trans-Indus, districts of the Punjab and Sind should be formed into a separate Frontier Government, administered under the direct control of the Government of India, by a Chief Commissioner and Governor General's Agent at Peshawur; that this officer should be charged with the general conduct of all our frontier and trans-frontier relations; that he should be provided accordingly with subordinate officers at Peshawur and Jacobabad, the latter having the special charge of the administration of the lower frontier, and our relations with Beloochistan; and that the Sind and Punjab Frontier forces should be amalgamated, and placed under the Commander-in-Chief in India, retaining, however, their local and special character, but becoming interchangeable within the limits of the Frontier Government.

3. I agree with Your Excellency in Council in thinking that the attachment of the province of Sind to the Punjab will overtask the powers of the Punjab Government unless some relief be afforded to it; and I concur in the opinion expressed in the despatch under reply, that, under existing circumstances, it will be expedient to place the management of our frontier and trans-frontier relations more directly under the management of the Government of India. That these relations, whether they concern the petty tribes along the border, or the more important States behind them, must be conducted according to the views of the Government of India, is not open to dispute. Nor can it be reasonably doubted, that administration is rendered more vigilant and more vigorous by shortening the "administrative chain" that connects the authority which gives the orders with the officer by whom they are carried into execution. The Punjab Government was interposed between the Governor General and the frontier officers at a time when communication between Calcutta and the Punjab was tedious and difficult, when the state of affairs beyond our territory caused little solicitude, and when the duties imposed upon the Government of Lahore were not such as to prevent the frontier from receiving a large share of its attention. In all these respects great changes have taken place. Since the construction of the telegraph, and of the nearly completed railway, distance has ceased to be a consideration of primary importance. The Government of Lahore, besides the care of a province advancing with singular rapidity in every kind of improvement, has been burdened with accretions from the territory, first of the North-West, and, more recently, of Bombay. On the other hand, it cannot be denied that frontier questions involve more important consequences and present greater difficulties than was the case in former times. Various causes have contributed to create irritation and restlessness among the turbulent Mussulman populations who are our immediate and more distant neighbours. The critical position of the first Mahometan State in the world has given a renewed vigour to the impulses of fanaticism which in these countries are never in complete repose. At the same time the military activity and large territorial acquisitions of Russia have, undoubtedly, created excitement among populations beyond the sphere of her immediate influence, and may have generated in some minds the illusion that a conflict with the British power was no longer so hopeless as it formerly had been.

4. All these considerations appear to me to justify you in wishing to strengthen the administrative machinery through which your frontier relations are managed, and I am prepared to authorize the measures necessary for that purpose. Fears have been expressed that administrative modifications of this kind might carry with them a change in the pacific policy which has for many years guided the Indian Government in its dealings with neighbouring tribes and States. It is almost superfluous for me to draw Your Excellency's attention to these apprehensions, for they are as much at variance with your own views as they are with the instructions which the Indian Government has uniformly received from the Government of Her Majesty. Your Excellency discerns as plainly as Her Majesty's Government that a policy of conquest on your north-west frontier would lead to no advantage which would in any degree countervail the certain financial and political embarrassment it would cause. The changes now under consideration have no such object. They are measures of defence and security, not of aggression. They will operate as a guarantee for the maintenance of existing territorial limits. In that they tend to discourage attack from without and so to prevent war, they make less possible the only contingency under which an advance of frontier might conceivably be forced upon your Government.

5. Your Excellency has intimated an opinion that though the main object you have in view is a more effective control of frontier relations, the change would be more satisfactorily effected by the constitution of the Trans-Indus districts into a distinct and separate administration. Many of the considerations you advance are cogent, and in forbearing at the present time to give effect to them I must not be understood to be recording an opinion definitively adverse. But while I admit that it may possibly hereafter be found expedient to adopt some such comprehensive scheme as that proposed by Your Excellency's Government, I am disposed to think that both the objects in view, viz., the relief of the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab, and the more effective control by the Supreme Government of frontier policy, might be adequately secured by a less extensive change. Any unnecessary disturbance of administrative arrangements is distasteful to the people of India, and open to many practical objections; and a large change can seldom be effected without considerable cost, which is to be deprecated at the present time.

6. Financial considerations, even at this period of extreme pressure, might not justify the abandonment of any measure shown to be absolutely necessary; but any administrative change, involving a considerable increase of expenditure, should at all events be deferred, if a less costly arrangement may seem to offer a reasonable prospect of being attended with success. Nor can it be forgotten that grave objections have been expressed, in various quarters entitled to respect, against the transfer to a new authority of the jurisdiction in civil matters at present exercised by the Punjab Government over the inhabitants of the districts beyond the Indus. I do not say that such a transfer need, in fact, be seriously or permanently injurious to the persons who would be affected by it; but in any change of the kind it is important that the feelings and interests of all concerned should be previously ascertained and carefully considered.

7. In lieu, therefore, of the proposals of Your Excellency's Government, I am prepared to sanction the adoption of the following measures:—

- (a) The Trans-Indus districts of the Punjab and Sind to be divided into two divisions, taking the dividing line at the point where the Belooch gives place to the Pathan.
- (b) A Commissioner to be appointed over each division by the Viceroy, but in respect to all internal affairs to take his orders from the Punjab Government.
- (c) The Northern Commissioner to be styled Governor General's Agent and Frontier Commissioner; to receive the salary of a Chief Commissioner; and upon all external matters, i.e., matters concerning those who are not subjects of Her Majesty, to correspond with the Viceroy direct, and be the superior of the Southern Commissioner, who upon those matters will correspond with him alone.
- (d) The Frontier Forces, for the present at least, to be under the orders of the Governor General's Agent, not under the orders of the Commander-in-Chief.

It would be for Your Excellency to decide in respect to each class of cases whether the communications of the Frontier Commissioner should be sent under flying seal through the Punjab Government; and it would also be for your consideration whether, in view of the present financial exigency, the post of Commissioner of the Southern Division should not be filled by the Commissioner of Sind.

8. I do not deem it necessary to enter, at present, into the minor questions involved, such as the residence of the Frontier Commissioner, or the number of Deputy Commissioners or any of the military details. Upon these points the Punjab Government should be directed to submit to Your Excellency in Council, as speedily as possible, detailed proposals in conformity with the above principles, after consideration of which you will be in a position to make specific recommendations for the approval of Her Majesty's Government. I trust that, having regard to existing financial exigencies, it may be found possible to establish the new organization without any considerable increase on the present cost of administration in the Punjab and Sind.

9. I have not overlooked the fact that the measures sanctioned in this despatch involve a duplicate responsibility, which is in theory objectionable, and may be attended with occasional inconvenience. But there are precedents which justify the belief that they may practically be worked with general success; and having regard to the various considerations which make it advisable that no greater change should be made in the existing order of things in the Punjab and Sind than may be really necessary to the effectual attainment of the ends desired, they are probably more suitable to the circumstances of the present juncture than a more extensive re-organization.

To Secretary of State, No. 346, dated 28th September 1876.

From Secretary of State, No. 40, dated 8th February 1877, No. 102, dated 22nd March 1877, and No. 293, dated 13th September 1877.

RESOLUTION.—With the approval of the Secretary of State for India, the Governor General in Council is pleased to determine that the selection of officers for employment in the Assay Department shall be made in the following manner:—

I.—As declared in Resolution, No. 124, dated 12th May 1876, Commissioned or Covenanted officers only shall, as a general rule, be appointed substantively to the Assay Department.

II.—No officer shall be appointed substantively to the Assay Department without having passed an examination in practical and inorganic Chemistry at the Royal College of Chemistry and without a certificate from the Royal School of Mines of qualification in Metallurgy, specially with reference to the precious metals and their alloys, and of his ability to assay the precious metals and their alloys.

III.—Whenever a want of candidates eligible for admission to the Assay Department is foreseen, the Government will permit a selected officer to attend at the laboratory of the Assay Master at Bombay or Calcutta for a period not exceeding six months, in order to prepare himself for a prescribed examination. During this period of probation, the full salary of his office will be granted to the officer, on condition that he passes the examination at the end of his probation. An officer who has passed the prescribed examination, may be employed in the Assay Department, temporarily, for a period not exceeding twelve months, without having passed the examination and without the certificates of qualification described in Clause II. Save with the special sanction of the Secretary of State for India, no officer may be retained in the Department for a period exceeding twelve months without passing the said examination and obtaining the said certificate.

VOLUNTEER CORPS.

No. 121.—REGULATIONS—

In supersession of G. G. O. No. 1204 of the 1st December 1875, and in conformity with clause 63, War Office Auxiliary Reserve Forces Circular of the 1st July 1877, appointments to the rank of Sub-Lieutenant in the Volunteer Corps in India will cease from this date.

2. Subaltern Officers appointed on or after this date will be granted the rank of Second-Lieutenant, and will, on appointment, receive probationary commissions. They will hold the rank of Second-Lieutenant for two years, unless promoted in the meantime to the rank of Lieutenant after passing the prescribed examination. If not promoted in ordinary succession they will, at the expiration of this period, provided they have passed the prescribed examination and are recommended by the commanding officers of their respective corps, be promoted to Lieutenantcies, and their commissions as such will in all cases bear the date of their first appointment to the corps.

3. Officers serving in the rank of Sub-Lieutenant on this date may be recommended for promotion to the rank of Lieutenant as soon as they shall have passed the prescribed examination. They will take precedence of all Second-Lieutenants. Officers of both ranks will wear a star as the badge of rank on the collar of the uniform.

4. Nothing in this order affects the appointment of qualified Officers direct to higher grades when recommended by commanding officers, and subject to the examination in the first year of appointment, as laid down in Section V, Regulations for the Volunteer Forces in India.

HIGH COURT—Original Side.

NOTIFICATIONS.

Calcutta, the 25th January 1878.

The following Rules, passed by the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal on its Original Side, are now published.

By order,
R. BELCHAMBERS,
Registrar.

It is ordered that the following Rules be read and passed as Rules of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal in its Original Jurisdiction, to take effect from the 1st day of February 1878:—

1. When any property is ordered to be sold by public auction in execution of a decree or order of the High Court, on its Original Side, the ascertainment of the matters required by Section 287 of the Civil Procedure Code to be specified in the proclamation issuing under that Section shall be deemed to be a quasi-judicial act within the meaning of the 637th Section of the Code, and the same shall be done by the Registrar of the Court or such other Officer as shall be named in the order of sale, and the Registrar or such other Officer, as the case may be, shall for that purpose have power to summon any person whom he may think necessary, and examine him in respect of any such matter, and require him to produce any document in his possession or power relating thereto.
2. Every order for sale shall direct a proclamation to be made under the provisions of Section 287 of the Code of Civil Procedure.
3. Unless otherwise ordered by the Court or a Judge, every proclamation of an intended sale shall be settled and approved by the Registrar or such other Officer as may be named in the order for sale.

4. When immoveable property is under attachment in execution, the party at whose instance the same may be attached shall, before applying for an order for the sale of such property, cause search to be made in the Office of the Registrar of Deeds with the object of ascertaining whether such property is subject to any and what incumbrances.
5. Every application for an order for the sale of property in execution, whether moveable or immoveable, shall be supported by an affidavit stating all that is known to the party at whose instance the same has been attached respecting the title to such property, and also, whenever the application is for the sale of immoveable property, stating the result of the search made with respect thereto pursuant to the last preceding Rule.

It is ordered that the following Rules be read and passed as Rules of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal in its Original Jurisdiction, to take effect from the 1st day of February 1878 :—

1. Subsistence money payable into Court under Section 339 of Act 10 of 1877 shall be paid to the Sheriff of Calcutta.
2. Subsistence money paid to the Sheriff prior to the arrest of a judgment-debtor shall be accounted for to the judgment-creditor if the judgment-debtor shall not be arrested, or having been arrested, shall be released without being committed to jail.
3. When a judgment-debtor is committed to jail, if there shall remain any balance of the subsistence money paid prior to his arrest, such balance shall be deemed to be a payment in part of the first payment of the monthly allowance payable for his subsistence in jail.
4. All sums paid to the Sheriff for the subsistence of the judgment-debtor in jail shall be forthwith forwarded by him to the Superintendent of the Presidency Jail.
5. An account shall be kept by the Sheriff of all subsistence monies paid to him and such account may be inspected during office hours by any person having an interest.
